Russians Killed as Exiles Stage Raid on Cuban Coast

MIAMI, Fla (AP)—Cuban exile commandos shelled a Soviet military camp and a Soviet ship in a hit-and-run raid on a northern Cuban port city, anti-Castro groups report. Some Russians were killed, they said, and the raiders escaped.

Havana radio reported Monday night that some wounded sailors had been taken to a hospital, but the [illegible] not mention any raid.

The State Department said it had no information on the raid and it and the Pentagon made no comment.

Spokesmen for two Cuban exile groups, Alpha 66 and the Second National Front of Escambray, said members of their organizations staged the attacks Sunday night. Alpha 66 and the Second Front joined forces last fall and have carried out raids on Cuba before.

The attack was described this way:

The raiders divided into two camps just offshore from Sagua la Grande in Las Villas Province. One group went ashore to a small town called Isabela la Sagua and shelled the Soviet military camp. The others stayed in the boat and lofted 20mm cannon shells into the ship.

One of the artillery shells hit the stack carrying the hammer and sickle, the report said.

In New York, Antonio Vaciana, head of Alpha 66, said the raiders already have returned to a secret base in the Caribbean and that he expected a full report via short wave radio to Alpha 66 in Miami.

Details of the raid will be disclosed at a news conference in Washington, he said.

The initial report of the raid—the first one made in several months—came in a Miami radio broadcast by "The Voice of the People." This is the refugee program that first reported the presence of Soviet troops in Cuba.

Alpha 66, an action group which does not deal in the fractured politics of most exile groups in Miami, claimed credit for shooting the British ship Newfane and two Cuban vessels in a raid Sept. 10.

More Soviet Overflights Seen Over U.S. Carrier

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union should be given to understand that flights over U.S. aircraft carriers are dangerous and "carry the seeds of possible conflict," Sen. Karl E. Mundt said today.

Alaskan members of Congress clamored for stronger defenses for the 49th state in the wake of last Thursday's penetration of Alaskan air space by two Soviet planes. One said a disaster could happen unless the area is made more of a bastion.

Officials sought today to plumb the reason for a series of episodes in which Soviet aircraft flew over U.S. aircraft carriers at sea. There was speculation that these could be tit-for-tat tactics for the close inspection the United States gives to Soviet bloc and other ships proceeding to Communist Cuba.

Revealing the latest of these incidents, the Defense Department said Monday that four Soviet Bears—normally classed as bombers but employed also for reconnaissance—flew over the carrier Constellation in the western Pacific Saturday.

Alerted by radar, U.S. Navy and reconnaissance fighter planes intercepted the Soviet craft about 100 miles from the big ship and escorted them "during a total of nine individual passes over the carrier," the Pentagon related.

As in the case of previous Soviet overflights of U.S. carriers—one off the Azores and others in the North Atlantic and North Pacific—the Russians had a legal right to be where they were because

France Explodes A-Bomb; North Africans Are Angry

King Hassan II of Morocco also ordered his Foreign Ministry to protest to Paris.

As usual, there was no confirmation from the French Ministry of Defense in Paris that another test had been conducted.

Information Minister Hadj Hamou of Algeria told a news conference that carrying out the atomic test in the face of Algerian objections "constitutes a direct attack upon the independence and the sovereignty of Algeria."

The Algerian National Assembly was called into special session. The government said it will be asked to approve decisions taken by the Cabinet of Premier Ahmed

Baby-Sitting Too Much in Mansion Of Governor

It's not that Mrs. Helen Landphier, 64, and Mrs. Mable Cooper don't like children. They simply had other things to tend to, they said, like 57 rooms—including 14 bathrooms—in the mansion of Gov. John Reynolds.

"We were asked by Mrs. Reynolds to baby-sit for the three children every afternoon," Mrs. Landphier said. "We just could not do it."

The women said they wanted to "set the record straight" about why they quit the governor's mansion. They said stories that they left because of a dispute over staggered shifts were inaccurate.

Mrs. Reynolds said she wanted the employes to work a staggered shift so the governor could have a hot meal if he came home late.

"We worked a five-day week and put in a 12 to 16-hour day," she said.

When the two women and another domestic worker left, Mrs. Reynolds had to do her own cooking. She has submitted an application to the state employment service for new domestic help.

$43,000 Windfall Attributed to Error in Bank

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—The Alabama Supreme Court Monday ordered the release of a former used car salesman jailed for refusing to disclose where he had stashed a $43,000 windfall he gained through a banking error.

Earlier in the day, Circuit Judge Eugene Carter jailed T. L. Thaggard. He said he would keep Thaggard locked up until he revealed where the money is located.

But the Supreme Court ordered Thaggard released on $1,000 appearance bond until the court can hear arguments in the case.

Carter had ordered Thaggard to disclose the whereabouts of the money in a suit brought by the Union Bank and Trust Co. The bank seeks to recover the $43,000 it claims was erroneously credited to Thaggard's account and withdrawn March 6.

Thaggard said when he discovered the money had been credited to his account he told a teller but she "said that the figure she had given me the first time was right."

"I went and looked at my bank statement and the same figure was shown," Thaggard said. He said he then went to another teller and she confirmed the figures.

He said he asked if he could withdraw the $43,000 and she replied, "Yes, sir."

Thaggard said he then withdrew the money. He has refused to answer questions on its whereabouts since. He did meet with bank officials and agreed to repay the money but said it would "take time."

Chamber Board Upholds Committee Action to Welcome Rampart College

The Chamber of Commerce board of directors voted 12 to two with two abstaining to uphold the chamber's executive committee action in welcoming Rampart College.

The vote was taken this morning at a special breakfast meeting of the board after a motion was made at Monday's regular board meeting to reverse the executive committee's action.

The motion was made by Thomas McLaughlin, Chamber of Commerce board member, and the motion was tabled at Monday's meeting due to the absence from the meeting of the chamber president, Blakemore McCarty, and vice president, Harry Hoth.

McLaughlin blasted the committee's action in endorsing Rampart College, calling it an "insult to the people of this area."

The chamber executive committee at a meeting Thursday welcomed Rampart College. A part of the letter drafted by the committee at that time read: "Rampart College should be considered as a new industry and is another step forward in the economic development of the Pikes Peak Area.

"Since the primary function of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce is to foster and maintain a healthy economic climate in our area, we welcome Rampart College."

McLaughlin, director of public relations with the Colorado Interstate Gas Co., asked at the time he submitted the following statement for publication in the Gazette Telegraph that he be identified as a member of the chamber's board of directors and not with Colorado Interstate Gas. His statement is as follows:

"Speaking strictly for myself, I want to dissent vigorously, wholeheartedly and unequivocal-

Roberts Praises Freedom School Expansion Plans

Floyd K. Roberts, Chamber of Commerce member, local business man and candidate for the city council in the upcoming April election, said this morning that "In my opinion the enlargement of the Freedom School near Palmer Lake to a small liberal arts college will be an asset to the growing economy of Colorado Springs."

Roberts also said that the region will be benefited by not only additional employment which the school will bring to the area, but also by the influx of high-caliber school faculty that will enhance the cultural aspect of the region.

"I have attended a number of luncheon-meetings sponsored by Freedom School personnel and I have been impressed by the contemplated program of the school, its philosophies and the high caliber of its ideals and teachers," Roberts said.

Girl Who Lived Thru Snowstorm Is Improving

JULESBURG (UPI)—Barbara Einspahr, 11, who survived a lashing snowstorm which took the life of her older sister Saturday, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Sedgwick County Community Hospital.

Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Einspahr, suffered frostbite when she and her sister, Irene, 21, became stranded on U.S. 385 south of Julesburg Saturday and tried to walk from their car home.

Phillips County Undersheriff Fred Thietae said the older girl apparently suffocated as 60-mile-per-hour winds whipped across the northeastern Colorado plains.

Search Resumed For Girl in Avalanche Area

OURAY (UPI)—The search for the last of three victims of the March 3 killer-avalanche on nearby Red Mountain Pass was renewed today after being temporarily halted by a blinding snowstorm.

Highway Department gun crews shot down several potential slides in the search area Monday while searchers were bottled up by the storm and high winds.

Still missing was the body of Pauline Hudson, 11. Her father, the Rev. Marvin Hudson of Ouray, and her sister, Amelia, 17, also were killed when the avalanche swept them and their car off the pass and 75 feet into the Uncompahgre River canyon.

The bodies of the minister and his older daughter have been recovered.

Government Must Not Lie in News, Publishers Say

By ALVIN SPIVAK

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Newspaper publishers today asked for complete and categorical repudiation of the theory that the government has a right to lie to the public.

A spokesman for the American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) told the House Government Information subcommittee that "telling the truth is the highest and most desirable expression of our government's policy."

Subcommittee Chairman John E. Moss, D-Calif., opened the hearings on federal "news management" by calling for "guidelines which will make clear to the press and the public what to expect during periods of crisis."

The first day of the hearings was devoted to a panel discussion among 10 publishers, editors, broadcasters and reporters on government information policies.

Publishers Will Reject Change In Peace Pact

NEW YORK (AP)—Publishers of New York's eight closed newspapers have declared they will not accept any change in a peace pact proposed by Mayor Robert F. Wagner. Striking printers have rejected the settlement.

The publishers said Monday their decision was final and "we see no reason for further meetings, as our position will not change."

Wagner then said he saw "no sense in continuance of negotiations" and dismissed both sides.

Bertram A. Powers, president of striking Local 6 of the International Typographical Union, conceded the situation was deadlocked.

In Cleveland, Ohio, progress was reported today in attempts to settle a strike by printers against that city's two newspapers, blacked out 110 days.

New Computer Computes Optically, Like Frog

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI)—A new data system that computes optically like a frog's eye was disclosed today by the Air Force aeronautical systems division.

Built for the Air Force by Radio Corp. of America, the new system is said to be the most faithful electronic copy of an animal nervous system yet constructed by man.

The common bullfrog has an optical system that makes decisions like a computer—screening out all information that is useless in the simple life of a frog, without bothering to communicate it to the frog's somewhat elementary brain.

The Air Force hopes its new "frog's eye" data system ultimately will do the same in the fields of air traffic control, missile detection and some other defense activities.

"The frog's eye has been studied by electronic scientists for years because it is a natural computer," RCA project engineer Marvin B. Herscher explained.

"A fly is naturally important to a frog as food," Herscher continued, "but a fly moving away is of no importance because the frog can't capture it, so the frog's eye, functioning as a computer, screens out the image of the departing fly and doesn't transmit it to the brain as our eyes would.

President Given Heavy Protection During Nis Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Hundreds of hand-picked American troops have been spotted strategically in the Central American area to insure President Kennedy's safety during his visit to Costa Rica, informed sources said today.

At any sign of trouble, these soldiers and Marines could rush by air to the President's protection from nearby land and sea bases.

Sources said the aircraft carrier Thetis Bay, converted into a helicopter carrier for the Marines, was steaming off the Pacific coast of the little country.

Aboard the ship were more than 100 Marines alerted for immediate helicopter movement if needed.

On the Caribbean side of Costa Rica, the carrier Wasp was standing by. With a full complement of planes, it serves normally as an antisubmarine warfare carrier of the Atlantic Fleet.

Two companies of paratroopers and a special forces unit of guerrilla fighters were posted at Howard Air Force Base, Canal Zone, with six Hercules turbo-prop transports ready for takeoff on short notice, if needed.

Eight P2V patrol planes and a number of carrier-based aircraft kept the seas on both Pacific and Caribbean sides of Costa Rica under continuous surveillance.

The cruiser Northampton, a special command ship crammed with communications equipment, was steaming in the Caribbean and special Army and Air Force facilities were close at hand.

Grenade Explodes In San Francisco Airport Mail Room

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U.S. postal inspectors, sifting through the debris of a San Francisco airport mail room explosion, were trying to find out today who may have sent a live hand grenade through the mail.

Kingman, whose wrist was broken, said he set the sack on the table "rather heavily."

There was a blinding flash and an explosion which knocked Kingman to the floor and shattered every window in the room.

Another clerk, David Belbow, 46, was standing 10 feet away. He too was knocked over, suffering lacerations of the face and chest.

Twelve of the 60 employees on duty at the time were sent to the hospital with minor injuries.

Kingman and Belbow were handling mail bags that had come in from U.S. military installations in Korea and South Viet Nam.

Schools to Face Overcrowding In District 2

Within the boundaries of Harrison School District 2, a significant number of new homes will be constructed in the next few months, but school board members and administrators are not as happy about the development as they might be.

Many of the new homes will be ready for occupancy before the end of this school term. Others will be sold and occupied within the year.

The new residents of the district will include a considerable number of school children and school officials are obliged to include the students to their already bulging classrooms and curriculum.

The addition of the students to the school is a jolt to the budget because the district will not receive the cash from the increased assessment valuation until 1965. In the meantime, while the income is static the cash outlay is mounting.

W. Field Phelps, county assessor, discussed the problem with the school board Monday and explained that only thru legislative action can the problem be remedied.

Phelps said a bill was passed by the legislature several years ago allowing the county assessor to pro-rate tax assessment on new housing, but it had a short life.

Watershed Snow Measures Almost Same as 1962

Snow on the city's watershed on the South Slope of Pikes Peak is just about as heavy this winter as last, according to Art Abbey, caretaker.

He said that 86 inches of snow have fallen so far this winter at Seven Lakes as compared with 94 inches thru March 18, 1962. Seven Lakes is located at an elevation of about 11,000 feet above sea level.

The snowfall was running considerably behind this year but two feet of snow so far in March have boosted the total to close to last winter's output up to this point. Only seven inches of snow fell at Seven Lakes during the first 19 days of March last year.

One reason for the slightly higher snowfall in the 1961-62 winter was a 16-inch fall in September of that season. No snow to speak of fell in September of last year.

Because of strong winds which blow most of the time at Seven Lakes, Abbey said there are deep drifts at many places on the watershed, many ranging up to three feet.

The Chamber of Commerce board of directors voted 12 to two with two abstaining to uphold the chamber's executive committee action in welcoming Rampart College.

The vote was taken this morning at a special breakfast meeting of the board after a motion was made at Monday's regular board meeting to reverse the executive committee's action.

The motion was made by Thomas McLaughlin, Chamber of Commerce board member, and the motion was tabled at Monday's meeting due to the absence from the meeting of the chamber president, Blakemore McCarty, and vice president, Harry Hoth.

McLaughlin blasted the committee's action in endorsing Rampart College, calling it an "insult to the people of this area."

The chamber executive committee at a meeting Thursday welcomed Rampart College. A part of the letter drafted by the committee at that time read: "Rampart College should be considered as a new industry and is another step forward in the economic development of the Pikes Peak Area.

"Since the primary function of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce is to foster and maintain a healthy economic climate in our area, we welcome Rampart College."

McLaughlin, director of public relations with the Colorado Interstate Gas Co., asked at the time he submitted the following statement for publication in the Gazette Telegraph that he be identified as a member of the chamber's board of directors and not with Colorado Interstate Gas. His statement is as follows:

"Speaking strictly for myself, I want to dissent vigorously, wholeheartedly and unequivocal-

Roberts Praises Freedom School Expansion Plans

Floyd K. Roberts, Chamber of Commerce member, local business man and candidate for the city council in the upcoming April election, said this morning that "In my opinion the enlargement of the Freedom School near Palmer Lake to a small liberal arts college will be an asset to the growing economy of Colorado Springs."

Roberts also said that the region will be benefited by not only additional employment which the school will bring to the area, but also by the influx of high-caliber school faculty that will enhance the cultural aspect of the region.

"I have attended a number of luncheon-meetings sponsored by Freedom School personnel and I have been impressed by the contemplated program of the school, its philosophies and the high caliber of its ideals and teachers," Roberts said.

Girl Who Lived Thru Snowstorm Is Improving

JULESBURG (UPI)— Barbara Einspahr, 11, who survived a lashing snowstorm which took the life of her older sister Saturday, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Sedgwick County Community Hospital.

Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Einspahr, suffered frostbite when she and her sister, Irene, 21, became stranded on U.S. 385 south of Julesburg Saturday and tried to walk from their car home.

Phillips County Undersheriff Fred Thietae said the older girl apparently suffocated as 60-mile-per-hour winds whipped across the northeastern Colorado plains.

Search Resumed For Girl in Avalanche Area

OURAY (UPI)—The search for the last of three victims of the March 3 killer-avalanche on nearby Red Mountain Pass was renewed today after being temporarily halted by a blinding snowstorm.

Highway Department gun crews shot down several potential slides in the search area Monday while searchers were bottled up by the storm and high winds.

Still missing was the body of Pauline Hudson, 11. Her father, the Rev. Marvin Hudson of Ouray, and her sister, Amelia, 17, also were killed when the avalanche swept them and their car off the pass and 75 feet into the Uncompahgre River canyon.

The bodies of the minister and his older daughter have been recovered.

By STEWART HENSLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is engaged in a delicate diplomatic game in the Middle East in an effort to keep revolutionary ferment among the Arab states from sparking new turmoil.

On the one hand, Washington firmly supports United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser. And it quickly recognized the new pro-Nasser revolutionary regimes in Yemen, Iraq and Syria.

At the same time, the Kennedy administration has renewed and strengthened its pledges to help safeguard the sovereignty of Saudi Arabia and Jordan, both ruled by monarchies attacked as "reactionary" by the Arab revolutionaries.

The critical point at the moment is Yemen, where Nasser has more than 20,000 troops helping the revolutionary government maintain the control it gained last September. He has promised the United States he will pull them out if Saudi Arabia ends its financial and material aid to royalist remnants clinging to a corner of Yemen.

The adventure is costing Nasser more money than he can afford. The United States believes he wants to withdraw and is bringing pressure on Saudi Arabia to stop aiding the royalists. But Washington sternly warned Nasser against any repetition of bombing raids early this month on Saudi supply points.

The Kennedy administration believes Nasser has become a sober and responsible leader, a stabil-

Lineman Dies In Electric Drill Accident

ARVADA (AP)—A Public Service Company lineman, Kenneth Johnson, 31, of Arvada, was electrocuted Monday when an electric drill he was using on a power pole struck a primary power line.

Members of the Arvada Volunteer Fire Department, on which Johnson served, tried for an hour to revive him.

Johnson was working in a power-operated bucket attached to a truck and was lowered immediately to the ground for aid.

He is survived by his widow and two children.

By ALVIN SPIVAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Newspaper publishers today asked for "complete and categorical repudiation" of the theory that the government has a right to lie to the public.

A spokesman for the American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) told the House Government Information subcommittee that "telling the truth is the highest and most desirable expression of our government's policy."

Subcommittee Chairman John D. Moss, D-Calif., opened the hearings on federal "news management" by calling for "guidelines which will make clear to the press and the public what to expect during periods of crisis."

The first day of the hearings was devoted to a panel discussion among 10 publishers, editors, broadcasters and reporters on government information policies.

ANPA Vice President Gene Robb, publisher of the Albany (N.Y.) Times-Union and Knickerbocker News, said in a statement prepared for the session that government news management has been "among our foremost views-

Publishers Will Reject Change In Peace Pact

NEW YORK (AP)—Publishers of New York's eight closed newspapers have declared they will not accept any change in a peace pact proposed by Mayor Robert F. Wagner. Striking printers have rejected the settlement.

The publishers said Monday their decision was final and "we see no reason for further meetings, as our position will not change."

Wagner then said he saw "no sense in continuance of negotiations" and dismissed both sides.

Bertram A. Powers, president of striking Local 6 of the International Typographical Union conceded the situation was deadlocked.

In Cleveland, Ohio, progress was reported today in attempts to settle a strike by printers against that city's two newspapers, blacked out 110 days.

Electrostatic Printing Process Is Announced

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — The Stanford Research Institute has unveiled a fast, inexpensive printing process that uses dry ink and prints words or pictures by magnetic attraction.

The process was announced Monday. It is called electrostatic, or pressureless, printing, according to Stanford engineers Clyde Childress and Louis Kabell, its inventors, and can be used to print commercially on nearly anything.

Officials expect the process to have a major impact on the printing industry, the nation's second largest business.

Scientists have proved the feasibility of the process by printing on apples and potatoes in Yakima, Wash., they said.

We can print on almost any object or surface you can think of," said Jerome Flax, president of Electrostatic Printing Corp. of America, San Francisco sponsor of the project which has patent rights. "Variations in size and shape or roughness aren't a problem. We can achieve full color reproduction on eggshells or plastic containers, or metal cans or corrugated cardboard."

The process uses electrically charged backing plates to attract the dry ink from an imprinting screen—the other electrode plate—onto the material to be printed. Heat or chemicals are used to fuse the ink particles to the surface.

Drug names or even dosages can be printed on uncoated pills by the new process, Flax said.

New Computer Computes Optically, Like Frog

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — A new data system that computes optically like a frog's eye was disclosed today by the Air Force aeronautical systems division.

Built for the Air Force by Radio Corp. of America, the new system is said to be the most faithful electronic copy of an animal nervous system yet constructed by man.

The common bullfrog has an optical system that makes decisions like a computer—screening out all information that is useless in the simple life of a frog, without bothering to communicate it to the frog's somewhat elementary brain.

The Air Force hopes its new "frog's eye" data system ultimately will do the same in the fields of air traffic control missile detection and some other defense activities.

"The frog's eye has been studied by electronic scientists for years because it is a natural computer," RCA project engineer Marvin B. Herscher explained.

"A fly is naturally important to a frog as food," Herscher continued, "but a fly moving away is of no importance because the frog can't capture it, so the frog's eye, functioning as a computer, screens out the image of the departing fly and doesn't transmit it to the brain as our eyes would.

President Given Heavy Protection During His Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hundreds of hand-picked American troops have been spotted strategically in the Central American area to insure President Kennedy's safety during his visit to Costa Rica, informed sources said today.

At any sign of trouble, these soldiers and Marines could rush by air to the President's protection from nearby land and sea bases.

Sources said the aircraft carrier Thetus Bay, converted into a helicopter carrier for the Marines, was steaming off the Pacific coast of the little country.

Aboard the ship were more than 100 Marines alerted for immediate helicopter movement if needed.

On the Caribbean side of Costa Rica, the carrier Wasp was standing by. With a full complement of planes, it serves normally as an antisubmarine warfare carrier of the Atlantic Fleet.

Two companies of paratroopers and a special forces unit of guerrilla fighters were posted at Howard Air Force Base, Canal Zone, with six Hercules turboprop transports ready for takeoff on short notice, if needed.

Eight P2V patrol planes and a number of carrier-based aircraft kept the seas on both Pacific and Caribbean sides of Costa Rica under continuous surveillance.

The cruiser Northampton, a special command ship crammed with communications equipment, was steaming in the Caribbean and special Army and Air Force facilities were close at hand.

Grenade Explodes In San Francisco Airport Mail Room

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — U.S. postal inspectors, sifting through the debris of a San Francisco airport mail room explosion, were trying to find out today who may have sent a live hand grenade through the mail.

Kingman, whose wrist was broken, said he set the sack on the table "rather heavily."

There was a blinding flash and an explosion which knocked Kingman to the floor and shattered every window in the room.

Another clerk, David Belbow, 46, was standing 10 feet away. He too was bowled over, suffering lacerations of the face and chest.

Twelve of the 60 employees on duty at the time were sent to the hospital with minor injuries.

Kingman and Belbow were handling mail bags that had come in from U.S. military installations in Korea and South Viet Nam.

Schools to Face Overcrowding In District 2

Within the boundaries of Harrison School District 2, a significant number of new homes will be constructed in the next few months, but school board members and administrators are not as happy about the development as they might be.

Many of the new homes will be ready for occupancy before the end of this school term. Others will be sold and occupied within the year.

The new residents of the district will include a considerable number of school children and school officals are obliged to include the students to their already bulging classrooms and curriculum.

The addition of the students to the school is a jolt to the budget because the district will not receive the cash from the increased assessment valuation until 1965. In the meantime, while the income is static the cash outlay is mounting.

W. Field Phelps, county assessor, discussed the problem with the school board Monday and explained that only thru legislative action can the problem be remedied.

Phelps said a bill was passed by the legislature several years ago allowing the county assessor to pro-rate tax assessment on new housing, but it had a short life

Watershed Snow Measures Almost Same as 1962

Snow on the city's watershed on the South Slope of Pikes Peak is just about as heavy this winter as last, according to Art Abbey, caretaker.

He said that 86 inches of snow have fallen so far this winter at Seven Lakes as compared with 94 inches thru March 18, 1962. Seven Lakes is located at an elevation of about 11,000 feet above sea level.

The snowfall was running considerably behind this year but two feet of snow so far in March have boosted the total to close to last winter's output up to this point. Only seven inches of snow fell at Seven Lakes during the first 19 days of March last year.

One reason for the slightly higher snowfall in the 1961-62 winter was a 16-inch fall in September of that season. No snow to speak of fell in September of last year.

Because of strong winds which blow most of the time at Seven Lakes, Abbey said there are deep drifts at many places on the watershed, many ranging up to three feet.

NANCY, France (AP) — Don't snooze where they make the booze—that's the moral of this story.

Former Canon City Cop Is Sentenced

CANON CITY (UPI)—A former Canon City and Pueblo, Colo., policeman was sentenced to four to eight years in the State Penitentiary Monday for larceny.

Dist. Judge Max Wilson passed sentence on Allan W. Zumwalt, 27, of Pueblo. He was charged with the theft of a motor scooter from Jones Bicycle Shop here while he was a Canon City policeman.

It was the stolen motor scooter that led to his arrest and that of former police officer Stanley J. Weaver, 31. Weaver received a similar sentence late last year.

Wives Will Be Tax Deductible, Official Rules

NEW YORK (AP) — Internal Revenue Commissioner Mortimer M. Caplin says liberalized regulations of his agency will include wives of business hosts as permissible tax deductibles in goodwill entertainment.

Widespread protests were heard when the Internal Revenue Service ruled previously that only wives of guests—not of hosts—were covered.

Signs of 'Almost Spring' Discovered by Dick West

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Here it is almost spring again. I can tell it's almost spring because the sap is beginning to rise in press agents, many of whom are dormant during the winter.

The other day, for instance, there came fluttering into the office a robin-like notice that Alfred Hitchcock, the movie director, was coming to town.

It said he planned to visit Lafayette Park near the White House and feed the pigeons from the famous bench that Bernard Baruch once used for an office.

Reading that gave me the same sensation I get when I spy the first crocus, or inhale my first whiff of fertilizer.

On the appointed day, Hitchcock arrived at the park in a long limousine and deposited himself on the bench while a press agent sprinkled peanuts around him. In a trice, he was awash with pigeons.

Some of the more state observers at the scene were able to detect a tie-in between this ornithological tableau and Hitchcock's new movie, the name of which momentarily escapes me.

My own thoughts, however,

Lack of Sleep Gives Rise to Nightmares

EDINBURGH (AP) — The scientists kept watch as the university student paced up and down the room, kicking again and again into the empty air.

The student thought he was clearing away a swirling mass of cobwebs floating over the floor. The scientists knew it was only an illusion produced in his brain after going 80 hours without sleep.

Dr. Ralph Berger and Dr. Ian Oswald paid six students of Edinburgh University to keep awake so their reactions could be watched and their brain waves recorded on an electrical machine.

One of the sleepless students claimed he saw an unpleasant old woman like a witch peering at him. The vision vanished as he drew near it — the body often disappearing before the face—but when he returned around, she was there again.

Another guinea pig student, who was working with a chart, kept kissing it. He said he thought it was his girl friend.

Yet another became convinced that Dr. Berger was an enemy inquisitor trying to brainwash him.

Who The Heck IS "CHAUNCEY"?

Inner Conflict Marks The 'Sudden Murderer'

This is the conclusion drawn from a study of the so-called "sudden murderer," the person who, without having been involved in any previous serious aggressive antisocial acts, kills, or attempts to kill, another human being.

An analysis of 43 such murderers was reported by Drs. Nathan Blackman, St. Louis, James M. A. Weiss, Columbia, Mo., and Joseph W. Lamberti, Winnipeg, Man., Canada, in the current March Archives of General Psychiatry, published by the American Medical Association.

Characteristically, they said, the sudden murderer was a young man who came from a close knit family in which the mother was a domineering, overprotective figure who emphasized conformity to the rules of the social system.

Failing in his attempt to conform because of underlying feelings of inadequacy and hostility, the murderer-to-be tended to blame other people, and to wander from place to place looking for greater opportunities," they said. "As a result, he felt quite consciously alone and isolated from other people."

Surprisingly, they said, when such a person seemed to be getting along quite well, when society apparently expected him to be even more conforming and mature, and when he had no one to blame, he would become more and more tense and angry.

Typically there was a period of about a month preceding the offense when the murderer seemed to make an adequate social adjustment, the authors said. But the very effort to maintain a facade of competence and independence saps some of the strengths and weakens some of the defenses with which the person wards off his more basic feelings of insecurity and inadequacy, they said, adding:

"It seems likely that it is during this period when the patient presents a superficial appearance of conformity and adequacy, that in reality he is more and more preoccupied with this feelings of helplessness and with the necessity to terminate his ever-increasing inner disequilibrium."

Of the 43 sudden murderers studied, 29 demonstrated this behaviour pattern, the authors said.

In conclusion, they said, "most such persons suffer from constant conflict between inner feelings of inadequacy and conscious needs to succeed, between an inner sense of psychological isolatedness and an outward drive toward conformity. Such persons maintain an extremely precarious emotional equilibrium."

Dr. Blackman is senior consultant in psychiatry, Social Maladjustment Study Unit, Malcolm Bliss Mental Health Center. Drs. Weiss and Lamberti, also psychiatrists, formerly were associated with the study unit.

ADC's 64th Air Division Will Be Deactivated

The units of the 64th Air Division, which has had its headquarters here since 1960, will be assigned to the 26th Air Division at Hancock Field near Syracuse, the Air Force said. These units include most of the Air Force installations in Canada and Greenland.

Consolidation of the two division headquarters, the Air Force said, would save manpower. The 64th, one of nine divisions in the Air Defense Command, has assigned to it more than 300 persons, including 80 civilian employes.

Remaining here will be an Arctic support wing of the 64th with 97 Air Force men and 36 civilian employes. This air base Newburgh also houses a unit of the Boston Air Defense Sector and the 4603rd Support Group of the 26th.

The only United States-based operational unit of the widespread 64th is the 4601st Support Wing at Paramus, N.J. That unit supervises operation and maintenance of the Distant Early Warning Line, the northernmost air attack warning system in the Air Defense Command.

Outside the United States, the 64th has under its command the air bases at Sonderstrom and Thule in Greenland, the Goose Air Defense Section in Labrador and Newfoundland, and the Air Force's Iceland at Keflavik. Included are fighter interceptor units in Labrador, Iceland and Greenland.

Pick-up Plunges Over Bank: Driver Escapes

A 1963 pick-up truck was declared a total loss by the State Patrol after the vehicle plunged over an embankment on the Rampart Range Road at 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

State Patrol reports said the truck was pulling a flatbed trailer about 3½ miles north of Woodland Park when the accident happened.

35-Hour-Week Is Favored by James Hoffa

DENVER (AP) — James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, says a national 35-hour week and early retirement are the best solutions to the problems of unemployment.

Hoffa, here to address the convention of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), said in an interview Sunday that merger, amalgamation and automation are ahead for teamster members. "Only by organizing can we keep abreast," he said.

Hoffa was in good humor except when questioned about a $220 million union pension fund, now the target of a Justice Department inquiry.

"How does $220 million give anyone power?" he said. "We have to invest and we have to report."

The union leader termed Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, his longtime adversary, "a young spoiled individual who keeps violating his oath of office."

He also aimed a barb at President Kennedy: "I have to work seven days a week to run a 1.7 million-member union," Hoffa said. "How can he run the country on a four-day week."

Hoffa commented ... his time is spent with lawyers. His trial at Nashville, Tenn., on conspiracy charges ended in a hung jury in December. He faces trial in Tampa, Fla., on charges of using the mails to defraud in promotion of a housing development.

Mortgage Lending Operations Seen

DENVER (AP) — An official said here savings and loan associations are seeing a shift in management emphasis from savings activities to mortgage lending operations.

Frank B. Yelding Jr. of Birmingham, president of the United States Savings and Loan League, spoke at the opening session of the American Savings and Loan Institute's annual conference.

The league represents nearly 5,000 savings and loan associations.

Yelding said between 1945 and 1960, "the savings and loan business was characterized by a furious scramble for savings in order to meet the demand for home mortgage credit which was generally in short supply."

"Today, instead of a shortage of mortgage credit, we have an abundance of credit of all types, and competition is intense for quality loans," he said.

Lack of Sleep Gives Rise to Nightmares

EDINBURGH (AP) — The scientists kept watch as the university student paced up and down the room, kicking again and again into the empty air.

The student thought he was clearing away a swirling mass of cobwebs floating over the floor. The scientists knew it was only an illusion, produced in his brain after going 60 hours without sleep.

Dr. Ralph Berger and Dr. Ian Oswald paid six students of Edinburgh University to keep awake so their reactions could be watched and their brain waves recorded on an electrical machine.

One of the sleepless students claimed he saw an unpleasant old woman like a witch peering at him. The vision vanished as he drew near it — the body often disappearing before the face—but, when he returned around, she was there again.

Another guinea pig student, who was working with a chart, kept kissing it. He said he thought it was his girl friend.

Yet another became convinced that Dr. Berger was an enemy inquisitor trying to brainwash him.

Inner Conflict Marks The 'Sudden Murderer'

This is the conclusion drawn from a study of the so-called "sudden murderer," the person who, without having been involved in any previous serious aggressive antisocial acts, kills, or attempts to kill, another human being.

An analysis of 43 such murderers was reported by Drs. Nathan Blackman, St. Louis, James M. A. Weiss, Columbia, Mo., and Joseph W. Lamberti, Winnipeg, Man., Canada, in the current (March) Archives of General psychiatry, published by the American Medical Association.

Characteristically, they said, the sudden murderer was a young man who came from a close knit family in chich the mother was a domineering, overprotective figure who emphasized conformity to the rules of the social system.

"Failing in his attempt to conform because of underlying feelings of inadequacy and hostility, the murderer-to-be tended to blame other people, and to wander from place to place looking for greater opportunities," they said. "As a result, he felt quite consciously alone and isolated from other people."

Surprisingly, they said, when such a person seemed to be getting along quite well, when society apparently expected him to be even more conforming and mature, and when he had no one to blame, he would become more and more tense and angry.

Typically there was a period of about a month preceding the offense when the murderer seemed to make an adequate social adjustment, the authors said. But the very effort to maintain a facade of competence and independence saps some of the strengths and weakens some of the defenses with which the person wards off his more basic feelings of insecurity and inadequacy, they said, adding:

"It seems likely that it is during this period, when the patient presents a superficial appearance of conformity and adequacy, that in reality he is more and more preoccupied with this feelings of helplessness and with the necessity to terminate his ever-increasing inner disequilibrium...."

Of the 43 sudden murderers studied, 29 demonstrated this behaviour pattern, the authors said.

In conclusion, they said, "most such persons suffer from constant conflict between inner feelings of inadequacy and conscious needs to succeed, between an inner sense of psychological isolatedness and an outward drive toward conformity. Such persons maintain an extremely precarious emotional equilibrium."

Dr. Blackman is senior consultant in psychiatry, Social Maladjustment Study Unit, Malcolm Bliss Mental Health Center. Drs. Weiss and Lamberti, also psychiatrists, formerly were associated with the study unit.

ADC's 64th Air Division Will Be Deactivated

The units of the 64th Air Division, which has had its headquarters here since 1960, will be assigned to the 26th Air Division at Hancock Field near Syracuse, the Air Force said. These units include most of the Air Force installations in Canada and Greenland.

Consolidation of the two division headquarters, the Air Force said, would save manpower. The 64th, one of nine divisions in the Air Defense Command, has assigned to it more than 300 persons, including 63 civilian employes.

Remaining here will be an Arctic support wing of the 64th with 97 Air Force men and 36 civilian employes. This air base Newburgh also houses a unit of the Boston Air Defense Sector and the 4603rd Support Group of the 26th.

The only United States-based operational unit of the widespread 64th is the 4601st Support Wing at Paramus, N.J. That unit supervises operation and maintenance of the Distant Early Warning Line, the northernmost air-attack warning system in the Air Defense Command.

Outside the United States, the 64th has under its command the air bases at Sonderstrom and Thule in Greenland, the Goose Air Defense Section in Labrador and Newfoundland, and the Air Force's Iceland at Keflavik. Included are fighter interceptor units in Labrador, Iceland and Greenland.

Another 64th unit, the 4602nd Support Wing at Ottawa, Canada, supports the Pinetree radar chain near the U.S.-Canadian border.

Pick-up Plunges Over Bank; Driver Escapes

A 1963 pick-up truck was declared a total loss by the State Patrol after the vehicle plunged over an embankment on the Rampart Range Road at 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

State Patrol reports said the truck was pulling a flatbed trailer about 3½ miles north of Woodland Park when the accident happened.

35-Hour-Week Is Favored by James Hoffa

DENVER (AP) — James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union says a national 35-hour week and early retirement are the best solutions to the problems of unemployment.

Hoffa, here to address the convention of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), said in an interview Sunday that "merger, amalgamation and automation" are ahead for teamster members. "Only by organizing can we keep abreast," he said.

Hoffa was in good humor except when questioned about a $220 million union pension fund, now the target of a Justice Department inquiry.

"How does $220 million give anyone power?" he said. "We have to invest and we have to report."

He also aimed a barb at President Kennedy. "I have to work seven days a week to run a 1.7 million-member union," Hoffa said. "How can be run the country on a four-day week?"

Hoffa commented "one-third of my time is spent with lawyers." His trial at Nashville, Tenn. on conspiracy charges ended in a hung jury in December. He faces trial in Tampa, Fla., on charges of using the mails to defraud in promotion of a housing development.

Mortgage Lending Operations Seen

DENVER (AP) — An official said here savings and loan associations are seeing a shift in management emphasis from savings activities to mortgage lending operations.

Frank B. Yeilding Jr. of Birmingham, president of the United States Savings and Loan League, spoke at the opening session of the American Savings and Loan Institute's annual conference.

The league represents nearly 5,000 savings and loan associations.

Yeilding said between 1945 and 1960, "the savings and loan business was characterized by a furious scramble for savings in order to meet the demand for home mortgage credit which was generally in short supply."

"Today, instead of a shortage of mortgage credit, we have an abundance of credit of all types, and competition is intense for quality loans," he said.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy is of the opinion that if Congress keeps on debating economic and fiscal policy long enough the people will get a better understanding of what his deficit-financing, tax-cut program is all about.

This presidential view is not tongue in cheek, but was expressed in utmost seriousness in his latest speech to drum up support for his tax reduction method of preventing a recession.

Unless Kennedy's intelligence agents operating on the domestic political scene are vacationing, then he is getting the bummest sort of advice about the reaction of the public pulse to this congressional debate over the tax issue.

It isn't necessary even to check the mail of representatives and senators to find the folks back home are bored sick already with the so-called "grand debate." The same stale phrases and tired old cliches about budget balancing, fiscal responsibility, inflation perils have turned up day after day. Only the congressional voices uttering them vary.

And yet the President [illegible] wise and expects [illegible] to keep on [illegible] congressional discussions for months ahead. Presumably by June, for instance, Congress will have an intelligent knowledge of the intricate fiscal and economic problems involved and what is more important, the nation, too.

The harsh fact is that for two months now all the chief characters on both sides of the issue thrust before Congress by the administration have made their position clear thru constant repetition. Even the President, despite his enthusiasm for his "must" tax program, has been at a loss for new arguments in its favor.

His latest public effort to rally support was before a meeting of advertisers here last Wednesday. Apparently realizing that the subject matter of taxes, if closely adhered to, would put any captive audience to sleep, he almost apologized for his choice of a topic.

Anxious to get his point across, however, even if he had nothing new in the way of an argument to offer than what he had said time and time before, he larded his speech with a few good wisecracks. This, of course, is the only way to keep an audience half awake during an economic speech—it tends to cock one ear hopefully for the next joke.

But what was important about the President's approach to the Advertising Council for support of his unprecedented fiscal-economic program, was that he found himself falling back on the same hackneyed phrases that once he was so anxious to eliminate from any national debate over fiscal matters.

[illegible] reflection on the President [illegible] in June 1962 he [illegible] make an inspirational appeal aimed at [illegible] political consideration of fiscal problems out of the intellectual gutter.

Speaking in New Haven, Conn., before a Yale University audience, the President [illegible] various [illegible] that ought to be discarded [illegible] in any future intelligent discussions of federal fiscal and economic matters.

One [illegible] was the "myth" that big government is necessarily [illegible]. Then there were the various myths about how [illegible] [illegible] and budget [illegible] prevent [illegible].

Also Kennedy said at the time [illegible] what was hailed as an [illegible] speech [illegible] not a realist [illegible] it was high time for a "more sophisticated view than the old and automatic cliche that deficits automatically bring inflation."

That brave attempt to wave away myths and cliches from any [illegible] major controversies over federal economic and fiscal policy was summed up in a paragraph which, as examined now, has a stinging quality.

"Some conversations I have heard around the country," the President said at Yale, "sound like an old record, long-playing, left over from the middle 30's. If there is any current trend [illegible] meeting present problems with old cliches, this is the moment to stop it—before it lands [illegible] in a bog of sterile acrimony."

There is little argument that the [illegible] in Congress for the last two months, along with the additional statements from administration spokesmen themselves, sound just like that old long playing record Kennedy once was so sarcastic about.

And congressional mail also indicates that even on the pocketbook issue of tax breaks themselves, aside from this fuzzy economic philosophical controversy, there is a so-what attitude.

MILAN — Italian industrialists are at odds with labor leaders as to what the exact cost to the auto industry is the new wage settlement.

CC Professor Makes Rich Haul of Writings

An English professor at Colorado College has returned from a literary expedition into San Francisco with a rich haul in unpublished articles and fictional sketches by the famed American short story writer and satirist Ambrose Bierce.

"Many of the short stories that earned Bierce his fame when they appeared in book form were significantly different from the original pieces he wrote for the San Francisco newspapers and magazines," Professor Berkove said.

He now is [illegible] several hundred photographs of letters, stories and articles by Bierce, who disappeared mysteriously in 1913.

The research [illegible] grant made available [illegible] funds provided by the college, is providing the necessary material for a book on Bierce and his concern with mind and man.

"I hope to be able to throw new light on Bierce as a serious thinker and literary craftsman," Berkove said.

"Bierce generally is considered bitter and grimly facetious," Dr. Berkove said. "But this is not correct. He was a very serious writer who was profoundly concerned with mankind.

"His purpose was to make the reader think seriously about the deadliness of life and the plight of man," said the 33-year-old scholar who has devoted several years to the study of the San Francisco writer.

Professor Berkove did most of his research [illegible] during Colorado College's month-long mid-winter vacation in the San Francisco Public Library, the morgue of a San Francisco newspaper, the library at the University of California at Berkeley, and in the collections of San Francisco scholars.

"Most Bierce scholars know that much important material never has been published," he said. "But few realize just how much there is and just how important it is. And most of the works that have been published in book form have not had adequate editorial explanation."

In order to place the works into historical context, Dr. Berkove has been reading San Francisco periodicals published during the last 30 years of the 19th century. "It is amazing how Bierce reflected his time," he said.

The Colorado College professor noted that most of Bierce's works profited greatly by the sensitive editing of the author. Bierce revised many of the newspaper and magazine pieces when they were collected and re-published.

"His techniques became refined over the years," Professor Berkove said. "Sometimes he replaced whole sections of stories and he even changed the endings on several occasions."

Professor Berkove, who holds a Ph. D. degree in English from the University of Pennsylvania, joined the faculty at Colorado College in 1962. He previously taught at DePaul University, Skidmore College and at Pennsylvania.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy is of the opinion that if Congress keeps on debating economic and fiscal policy long enough the people will get a better understanding of what his deficit-financing, tax-cut program is all about.

This presidential view is not tongue in cheek, but was expressed in utmost seriousness in his latest speech to drum up support for his tax reduction method of preventing a recession.

Unless Kennedy's intelligence agents operating on the domestic political scene are vacationing, then he is getting the bummest sort of advice about the reaction of the public pulse to this congressional debate over the tax issue.

It isn't necessary even to check the mail of representatives and senators to find the folks back home are bored sick already with the so-called "grand debate." The same stale phrases and tired old cliches about budget balancing, fiscal responsibility, inflation perils have turned up day after day. Only the congressional voices uttering them vary.

And yet the President thinks all this political talky-talk is "very wise," and expects it to continue to keep on dominating congressional discussions for months ahead. Presumably by June, for instance, Congress will have an intelligent knowledge of the intricate fiscal and economic problems involved and what is more important, the nation, too.

The harsh fact is that for two months now all the chief characters on both sides of the issue thrust before Congress by the administration have made their position clear thru constant repetition. Even the President, despite his enthusiasm for his "must" tax program, has been at a loss for new arguments in its favor.

His latest public effort to rally support was before a meeting of advertisers here last Wednesday. Apparently realizing that the subject matter of taxes, if closely adhered to, would put any captive audience to sleep, he almost apologized for his choice of a topic.

Anxious to get his point across, however, even if he had nothing new in the way of an argument to offer than what he had said time and time before, he larded his speech with a few good wisecracks. This, of course, is the only way to keep an audience half awake during an economic spiel—it tends to cock one ear hopefully for the next joke.

But what was important about the President's approach to the Advertising Council for support of his unprecedented fiscal-economic program, was that he found himself falling back on the same hackneyed phrases that once he was so anxious to eliminate from any national debate over fiscal matters.

This was no reflection on the President, altho in June, 1963, he did make an inspirational appeal aimed at lifting political consideration of fiscal problems out of the intellectual gutter.

In view of the present intensive flow of the same old cliches in the present "grand debate," what the President proposed almost a year ago is at least worth a retrospective chuckle.

Speaking in New Haven, Conn., before a Yale University audience, the President listed various "myths" that ought to be dispensed with in any future intelligent discussions of federal fiscal and economic matters.

One of course, was the "myth" that big government is necessarily bad. Then there were the variety of myths about how "deficits create inflation and budget surpluses prevent it."

Also Kennedy said at the time in what was hailed as an erudite speech, if not a realistic one, that it was high time for a "more sophisticated view than the old and automatic cliche that deficits automatically bring inflation."

That brave attempt to wave away myths and cliches from any future major controversies over federal economic and fiscal policy was summed up in a paragraph which, as examined now, has a stinging quality:

"Some conversations I have heard around the country," the President said at Yale, "sound like an old record, long-playing, left over from the middle 30's . . . If there is any current trend toward meeting present problems with old cliches, this is the moment to stop it—before it lands us all in a bog of sterile acrimony."

There is little argument that the debate in Congress for the last two months, along with the additional statements from administration spokesmen themselves, sound just like that old long playing record Kennedy once was so sarcastic about.

CC Professor Makes Rich Haul of Writings

An English professor at Colorado College has returned from a literary expedition into San Francisco with a rich haul in unpublished articles and fictional sketches by the famed American short story writer and satirist Ambrose Bierce.

"Many of the short stories that earned Bierce his fame when they appeared in book form were significantly different from the original pieces he wrote for the San Francisco newspapers and magazines," Professor Berkove said.

He now is analyzing several hundred photographs of letters, stories and articles by Bierce, who disappeared mysteriously in 1913.

The research, assisted by a grant made available thru funds provided by the college, is producing the necessary material for a book on Bierce and his concern with mind and man.

"I hope to be able to throw new light on Bierce as a serious thinker and literary craftsman," Berkove said.

"Bierce generally is considered bitter and grimly facetious," Dr. Berkove said. "But, this is not correct. He was a very serious writer who was profoundly concerned with mankind.

"His purpose was to make the reader think seriously about the deadliness of life and the plight of man," said the 33-year-old scholar who has devoted several years to the study of the San Francisco writer.

Professor Berkove did much of his research with a camera during Colorado College's month-long mid-winter vacation in the San Francisco Public Library, the morgue of a San Francisco newspaper, the library at the University of California at Berkeley, and in the collections of San Francisco scholars.

"Most Bierce scholars know that much important material never has been published," he said, "but few realize just how much there is, and just how important it is. And most of the works that have been published in book form have not had adequate editorial explanation."

In order to place the works into historical context, Dr. Berkove has been reading San Francisco periodicals published during the last 30 years of the 19th century. "It is amazing how Bierce reacted to his time," he said.

The Colorado College professor noted that most of Bierce's works profited greatly by the sensitive editing of the author. Bierce revised many of the newspaper and magazine pieces when they were collected and re-published.

"His techniques became refined over the years," Professor Berkove said. "Sometimes he replaced whole sections of stories and he even changed the endings on several occasions."

Professor Berkove, who holds a Ph. D. degree in English from the University of Pennsylvania, joined the faculty at Colorado College in 1962. He previously taught at DePaul University, Skidmore College and at Pennsylvania.

Chamber Board Upholds Rampart College Welcome

"The executive committee may have acted within its authority in writing the letter which was published in the Friday issue of the afternoon paper, but I believe authoring such a letter was a mistake. And if the dollar sign is to be the sole criterion governing actions of the executive committee, as was demonstrated by the reasoning expressed in the letter to Rampart College, I believe this shows a serious shortcoming in the thinking processes of those who wrote the letter.

"I can think of many enterprises which would bring additional dollars to the community and which would have a considerable payroll yet which would be no more wanted by the chamber members than is a skunk welcomed at a family picnic.

"The letter of the chamber executive committee stated the primary function of the group is to foster and maintain a healthy economic climate. No one will quarrel with that, but I do quarrel with the idea of extending an official welcome to a man whose written and spoken words indicate he wants to tear down and destroy practically everything which makes this community today.

"He seeks financial support for this school by saying it will enhance our already growing reputation as an intellectual and cultural center. And he includes in his list of institutions which help make this area what it is today, the U.S. Air Force Academy, and the Colorado School for Deaf and Blind. These are I'm certain, you'll agree outstanding schools ... made possible by our tax dollars. While he cites their presence here to support his case, the founder of Freedom School forgets to tell you how he opposes public tax-supported schools, such as the Air Force Academy, the Colorado School for Deaf and Blind and all the public schools, here and elsewhere.

"Then you, who recently went on record unanimously supporting bonds for construction of additional public schools here, turn around to welcome the man whose principles include the destruction of our public school system.

"It just doesn't make sense to me and I personally don't want to be associated in any way, other than in opposition, with the letter of the executive committee.

"The founder of Freedom School can, thanks be to God, preach here whatever gospel he wishes. But that doesn't mean that I have to support him or his philosophy, directly or indirectly. And whether you wish it or not, the letter of the executive committee is support of him. . . a letter, which I'm sure, can be used in soliciting funds elsewhere.

"Men's memories sometimes are conveniently short. I think it important to recall to you some features of our way of life the Freedom School founder opposes.

"He is against government, those who work in government, be it federal, state, county, city or what have you. . He has gone so far as to practically label those who work for government as nothing better than plunderers or thieves, using guns to extract moneys from others.

"He is against majority rule, a principle which even the chamber board supports in reaching its conclusions.

"He is against our military forces. He doesn't believe in paid army, navy, air force, or what have you. And I remind you ever so gently of the close ties this community enjoys with our military forces.

"He is against public libraries, public parks, tax-supported police and fire protection, tax-supported highways and streets. Yes, he has voiced and written his opposition to these and many other things quite often.

"And he's entitled to say and write these things because he lives in this country where he can enjoy his God-given rights.

"But I don't support his philosophy. I don't believe as he does and I refuse to extend any hand of welcome to him.

"And I believe the great majority of chamber members feel as I do with respect to this man and his school or any extension of his school. I think the action of the executive committee in offering an official welcome to the further extension of philosophies which aim to destroy and tear down was an affront and insult to the people of this area who support the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce."

Harry Hoiles, a trustee of the Freedom School and publisher of the Gazette Telegraph, speaking in the absence of Robert LeFevre, president of the school and editor of the Gazette Telegraph who is now on a speaking tour in the Midwest, said in reference to Mr. McLaughlin's attack:

"Mr. McLaughlin is unduly upset by the chamber's action with respect to a voluntarily supported school. How can he logically charge anyone who refuses to use initiated force with wanting to 'destroy' anything? 'Destruction' involves the use of force. The philosophy Mr. McLaughlin so bitterly attacks is based entirely on voluntary action as he should know if he knows anything about it."

The extension of the existing Freedom School to the status of a liberal arts college under the name 'Rampart College' was recently discussed by a group of more than 80 Colorado Springs businessmen.

LeFevre, president of the Freedom School, told the group at the meeting that the normal cost of establishing such a school initially would be $15 million but with the know-how gleaned from experience at the present school plus the use of its existing acreage the cost could be reduced to $5 million, 20 per cent of which should be contributed locally.

An advisory board of the school is now being formed and local financial contributions to the new college have already been received.

LeFevre told the group at the initial meeting that the tax cost of education in Colorado is at an all-time high and will go higher unless the business community assumes voluntarily at least some of the educational potential existing here.

Indecent Exposure Cases Reported

Two cases of indecent exposure were reported to police yesterday.

A 17 year old girl walking south with another girl in the 200 block of North Tejon Street told police that a youth about 18, with dark hair and wearing a dark jacket and pants, approached them and exposed himself.

He kept on walking after the incident, which occurred at 5:45 p.m. p.m. Monday. The second girl said she was not aware of what had happened.

A 16 year old girl told police that a youth followed her off the bus on West Caramillo Street, ran in front of her, exposed himself and ran away. She claimed that the blond youth, who looked about 15 and was wearing a high school jacket, had followed her once before, but had done nothing.

Signs of 'Almost Spring' Discovered by Dick West

After this, nobody who is at all interested in keeping up appearances will dream of feeding the pigeons in the park unless he can afford to hire someone to sprinkle the peanuts for him.

Another harbinger of spring came my way in a press release announcing that a new liqueur, created in Japan "from the fragile petals of the cherry blossom" would be introduced here during this year's Cherry Blossom Festival.

A sheet of vital statistics listed the liqueur as 40 proof, but the press release must have been close to 100 proof. By the time I had finished drinking in its heady hyperboles I was fairly reeling.

What attracted me [illegible] rative telling how the magic mood of Japan had been cap tured in the liqueur so that the "gossamer enchantment" of the islands could be enjoyed in bottled form.

"In the cherry blossom (yae sakura) forests of Japan in early April, you will find thousands of men, women and children strolling among the cherry trees picking the beautiful, fragrant, fragile blossoms . . .

"They take these lovely blossoms home, place them on a wooden tray and pickle them with the addition of salt. For to the Japanese, the pickled cherry blossoms are an exotic delicacy . . ."

This ancient tradition has now been carried a step further by a distillery, which "collects the most perfect and fragrant of these blossoms and through a process known only to themselves extracts from the blossoms the essence of the yae sakura."

Think of that! For years people have pickled cherry blossoms and now a way has been found for cherry blossoms to pickle people.

Ski Equipment Stolen From Parked Car Here

Dick Talley of 324 Collins Rd. reported to the sheriff's office Monday that two pairs of skis, two pairs of ski boots and two pairs of aluminum ski poles had been stolen from his car.

The skis are Blizzard brand and the boots Kofloch. He said the theft happened the night of Feb. 22 when his car was parked outside his home.

More Soviet Overflights Seen Over U.S. Carrier

But Sen. Mundt, South Dakota Republican who is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said:

"I think it is high time the appropriate officials of our government came to an understanding with the Russians that flights of that kind carry with them the seeds of possible conflict. Sooner or later there is going to be a shooting and nobody could look with relish upon the repercussions from such an incident."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the carrier overflights and the one over Alaska represent an effort on the part of Russians to show some of their air muscle after the backdown in Cuba."

No shooting occurred in any of the incidents, including the one last Thursday in which the United States charged two Soviet reconnaissance planes penetrated 30 miles into American air space over the southwestern corner of Alaska.

However, Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, said the episode pointed up what he considers the woefully inadequate defense of Alaska. He said he and other members of Alaska's three-man congressional delegation have been trying for years to get the Pentagon to station missiles like the Minuteman in Alaska, but without success. Even conventional defenses are weak, especially in the area around Nome, he said.

Government Must Not Lie in News, Publishers Say

Robb suggested several steps the government could take to solve a "broad range of problems . . . in this area of news management and manipulation." He said:

"First, we need a complete and categorical repudiation of the suggestion that, no matter what the circumstances, our government has a right to lie to the people or that it will lie even as a matter of self-protection. We need a reaffirmation of the very opposite—namely that telling the truth is the highest and most desirable expression of our government's policy.

"Second, we need some quite affirmative statement by our top-ranking public information officers that whatever they were thinking about with respect to news management, it is henceforth eschewed and eliminated as a matter of policy in giving out the facts and the news.

"Third, we need to see by permissions granted that reporters can witness all the possibly great and near-great stories of our time. They should be given access to all the news. If military security is a factor, censorship of such stories would be expected and carefully observed."

Robb noted that "at least one highly placed public relations officer of the Defense Department is on record as justifying a lie in an important news story if the stakes are high enough."

There have already been several instances of governmental lying in times of crisis, he said, ranging from the flight of the U2 over Russia through the Bay of Pigs invasion and the Cuban blockade.

"A government can successfully lie no more than once to its people," Robb said. "Thereafter everything it says and does becomes suspect . . ."

"The press will always cooperate whenever the government determines that withholding information is necessary to national security. But we ask that it be freely known if and when security considerations require censorship. Do not hesitate to put a military censor label on any story that has to be cut or held back in the interest of security."

But, Robb said, "telling less than all the truth when such national security situations require it does not excuse telling lies."

Robb also urged complete access to witness history-making events. He cited the government action in barring reporters from nuclear bomb tests and from U.S. ships taking part in the Cuban blockade.

"Even if national security considerations entail some consideration, the kind of reporters who serve in virtually combat duty posts during wartime should be given access to all of the news," he said. "Let them get the news and if necessary let them be censored by military authorities.

"Sooner or later the public on whose confidence the institutions of our free society completely depend, will thus get the facts [illegible]

Registrations For City Election Lags, Clerk Says

Registrations for the April 2 city election continue to lag, according to City Clerk-Treasurer Robert F. Parker.

Only about 11,000 persons are now registered to vote as compared with 15,579 two years ago.

Of the 15,579 registered in April, 1961, only 9,979 cast votes, which meant the purging of 5,600 names from the registration books. Slightly more than 1,000 have reregistered since that time.

The deadline for registering is 5 p.m. March 29. The clerk's office in City Hall will stay open late March 28 to accomodate those wishing to register, but Parker urged people not to wait until the last minute.

City voters this year will elect five council members and vote on five other issues, including two charter amendments, an initiated ordinance, repeal of a present ordinance and a new ordinance.

The charter amendments deal with the use of voting machines and registrations. Voters will have to approve both in order to use voting machines in future city elections and to simplify registering to vote in such a way that the county clerk's office will handle all registrations.

Mayor William C. Henderson said approval of both charter amendments would benefit all voters and result in economies in future elections.

In addition to the initiated ordinance concerning a code of ethics, voters will also decide on two other ordinances.

"Approval of these two other ordinances would permit residents of the city to employ anyone they wish to haul away garbage," the mayor said. Approval would also prohibit the city from entering the business except in the case of an extreme emergency.

Typewriter, Studebaker Taken From College

Two thefts at Colorado College were reported to police Monday. The first incident involved a grey 1949 Studebaker, which had been parked over the weekend on the circular drive, north of Rastall Center. Owner of the car is Lloyd E. Worner, 2218 Mesa Rd. Inside the car was a $150 set of golf clubs. The car itself was valued at $200.

Today's Weather

(Reports furnished by U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 5:30 a.m. today!)

The cold stormy air which now covers the middle Mississippi and Ohio valleys into the central Appalachians was spilling into the coastal plains of Virginia shortly after dawn.

Showers and thundershowers were scattered thruout this area, with some of the showers occasionally heavy.

High pressure was nudging its way across the western half of the country and as a result, fair weather was the general rule.

However, moist air flowing across the Pacific northwest coast was bringing rain to northwest Oregon and western Washington, while an occasional flurry broke out across the mountains of Colorado.

Warm air clung to the southeast this morning where the 50s and 60s were common. Readings in the 70s were noted thru the Gulf states.

Elsewhere, the 20s and 30s were logged — colder along the northeast border sectors and some mountain areas.

Schools to Face Overcrowding In District 2

"I am for the bill and believe that it is good and proper legislation," Phelps said. "It is up to school board members and other officials to get behind the proposal so it can be reborn into law."

As the law stands now, homes constructed after the Feb. 1 assessment date are added to the tax rolls the following year and the tax money is due the next year.

The homes now under construction in District 2 will be added to the tax rolls as of Feb. 1, 1964 with taxes due in the summer of 1965.

Phelps said it is a dilemna for school districts and also for fire and water districts. He urged the board to study the now defunct law related to pro-rating taxes and do everything in their power to get it or something similar into the legislative hopper.

Phelps, however, reminded the board that legislative enforcement of pro-rated assessment can be a burden to developers and builders.

The county assessor did have one encouraging word for the District 2 board. He told them they would not lose any tax money this year thru the normal-age depreciation system.

In 1962, School District 2 lost approximately $300,000 as a result of real estate depreciation which occurs every five years at a rate of about 10 per until a maximum of 60 per cent is reached.

The 1962 valuation for the district is $8.9 million and development within Harrison boundaries contributed to the county's record year of construction.

Joseph W. Jones To Succeed Davis Here With Braniff

Retirement of Byran L. Davis as district sales manager here for Braniff International Airways and appointment of his successor, Joseph W. Jones of San Antonio, Tex., effective Monday, April 1, were announced Monday at a luncheon meeting of civilian and military leaders at the Broadmoor Hotel by Reginald Brack, senior vice president, Dallas.

Jones has been sales representative for Braniff in San Antonio. He is a native of Bonham, Tex., attended San Antonio College and served three years in the U.S. Navy prior to entering the airline industry in November, 1957. He joined Braniff as an operations agent in San Antonio and was promoted to sales representative in December, 1960. He is married and has two children.

Davis, a retired Air Force colonel, joined Braniff following a career in the armed services that spanned both World Wars. A native of Kansas and a graduate of the University of Kansas, he served in World War I as a first lieutenant in the field artillery.

As a member of the regular Army, Davis advanced thru the various grades to lieutenant colonel, and was assistant to the adjutant general in Washington, D.C., at the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

During World War II, he was promoted to the rank of full colonel, and served as adjutant general for the 8th Air Force in England, the 2nd Air Force in Colorado Springs, the U.S. Air Forces in Europe with headquarters in Wiesbaden, Germany, and later for the Air Material Command at Wright-Patterson Air Base, Dayton, Ohio.

Col. Davis retired from military service in March, 1951, and returned to Colorado Springs to live. He joined Braniff International Airways in September, 1951, and has been district sales manager here since that time.

Davis said his plans are uncertain but indicated he may do more traveling.

"I've always wanted to do more traveling," he said. Davis has been in about 50 countries, spent four years in the Orient and four years in Europe. He has traveled thru Central and South America.

Brack indicated to those attending the luncheon that Colorado Springs will have jet plane service in the not too distant future since Braniff International Airways expects to be "all jet" after 1964.

Braniff has ordered 12 BAC-111 jet planes, now being built by British Aircraft Corp. Ltd., the Vickers-Armstrong unit which built, among others, the famous "Spitfire" of World War II and the Viscount turbo-prop, which has attained world-wide acceptance.

The BAC-111 is a jet-powered plane smaller than those in use generally and is designed to operate on short flights. Braniff's schedules operate with sector flights of 250 miles or less, and the BAC-111 is designed for economical short-haul operation while providing jet speed and comfort.

The BAC-111 passenger capacity varies from 56 in first class seating configuration to 70 in five-abreast all-coach. The BAC's cruising speed will be up to 550 miles an hour.

Braniff Airway was founded in 1928 by Tom Braniff with a single-motored plane and three employes. At the end of 1962, the airline had 5,537 employes. It operates lines as far west as Denver and Colorado Springs, as far east as New York City and as far north as Minneapolis-St. Paul, with its international routes extending south to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and Buenos Aires, Argentina.

First report of the new French test came from Rabat, Morocco.

A communique said the French government had advised the Algerian government of the test—the fifth it has conducted—and said the explosion was underground.

The Algerian ambassador to France Abdelatif Rahal, was recalled to Algiers for consultation.

The reaction in Algiers, on the first anniversary of the signing of the accord ending the Algerian revolution, was one of disbelief. Under the pact, France was permitted to keep its testing ground in the desert for five years.

Most government officials and a good part of the public had appeared to believe French President Charles de Gaulle had decided to call off the experiment to preserve the cooperative agreements with Algeria.

Some officials have expressed concern for the safety of the 170,000 Europeans still living in Algeria.

Algeria threatened earlier Monday to break its economic cooperation agreements with France if President Charles de Gaulle ordered another test in the Sahara, which is part of newly independent Algeria. Rumors have been current for days that such an explosion was imminent, but the Moroccan report was the first claim that one had taken place.

The French government maintained its usual refusal either to confirm or deny the report.

The Moroccan communique gave no source for its claim that France had exploded a nuclear device. Speculation has been that the next French test would be of an underground device—the hardest to detect.

King Hassan telephoned Algerian Premier Ahmed Ben Bella and gave him Morroco's support for his opposition to French testing.

France retained control of the Sahara testing bases for five years under the Evian agreements which gave Algeria independence last year. Atomic testing was not mentioned, but the Algerians knew that was what the bases were used for. Sources close to the Algerian Foreign Ministry said Ben Bella's government might not object to a final French test if the French announced simultaneously they would no longer test at the Sahara site.

A construction magazine published in Honolulu reported last month that France is moving test facilities from the Sahara to Mangareva Island in the South Pacific, 1,000 miles east of Tahiti.

The French refused to comment on the reports. The British and New Zealand governments, which administer nearby islands, said they had heard rumors but had no definite information.

Publishers Will Reject Change In Peace Pact

Elmer Brown, international president of the ITU, who had urged the Local 6 members to approve the pact—and was booed in the process—told newsmen Monday night, "By the first of next week, I hope the whole matter will be cleared away and we can prepare to return to work."

Complicating matters was a strike called Monday by the photoengravers union against the four papers originally struck. The 375 photoengravers acted after their separate contract talks became deadlocked over the issue of a shorter work week.

Brown said a decision was reached by the ITU's executive council on whether the parent union should withhold financial support from Local 6 unless it reverses its vote. But he said he will not publicly announce the decision for a few days.

Powers said, "In my opinion, the international will not withdraw its aid."

Since becoming eligible for state unemployment insurance in early February, the printers have received an average $121.77 weekly payment. This includes $50 weekly in unemployment insurance and union strike benefits varying from $64.47 to $85.95.

Robbery Charges Filed Monday In District Court

Two separate charges of simple robbery were filed in District Court Monday and this morning against Wilburn Anthony Henderson, 20, 331 N. Logan St. Judge G. Russell Miller set bonds on the charges at a total of $17,500.

The first charge, filed Monday, alleges Henderson robbed Danny's Liquor's, 2 S. Cascade Ave., on March 6. Police reports said Henderson admitted taking $105 from this establishment.

In the second charge, Henderson is accused of robbing the Ra-Jan Party Shop, 2223 N. Weber St., of $115 on March 12.

Judge Miller set bond at $7,500 on the first charge and at $10,000 on the second charge.

He was arrested Saturday after an alert police officer, John W. Poyner who was off-duty, saw the defendant in the street. He had a toy German Luger pistol in his possession and a pair of horn-rimmed glasses in his pocket. The report said he displayed no gun at any of the hold-ups although he told his victims he had one.

Firemen Called To Assist Man

Robert Miles, 36, of 1436 N. Walnut St., suffered convulsions and difficulty in breathing Monday at 2828 W. Company 1 Wednesday made a run to ADC building S-3 when an electric wire was contacted during construction work, setting off an automatic fire alarm. There was no fire.

Chamber Board Upholds Rampart College Welcome

ly with the contents of any communication of this group, or its executive committee which, in any way, can be termed a welcome to the so-called Rampart College, sponsored by the founder of Freedom School.

"The executive committee may have acted within its authority in writing the letter which was published in the Friday issue of the afternoon paper, but I believe authoring such a letter was a mistake. And if the dollar sign is to be the sole criterion governing actions of the executive committee, as was demonstrated by the reasoning expressed in the letter to Rampart College, I believe this shows a serious shortcoming in the thinking processes of those who wrote the letter.

"I can think of many enterprises which would being additional dollars to the community and which would have a considerable payroll yet which would be no more wanted by the chamber members than is a skunk welcomed at a family picnic.

"The letter of the chamber executive committee stated the primary function of the group is to foster and maintain a healthy, economic climate. No one will quarrel with that, but I do quarrel with the idea of extending an official welcome to a man whose written and spoken words indicate he wants to tear down and destroy practically everything which makes this community today.

"He seeks financial support for this school by saying it will enhance our already growing reputation as an intellectual and cultural center. And he includes in his list of institutions which help make this area what it is today, the U.S. Air Force Academy, and the Colorado School for Deaf and Blind. . .These are, I'm certain, you'll agree outstanding schools. . .made possible by our tax dollars. While he cites their presence here to support his case, the founder of Freedom School forgets to tell you how he opposes public, tax-supported schools, such as the Air Force Academy, the Colorado School for Deaf and Blind and all the public schools, here and elsewhere.

"Then you, who recently went on record unanimously supporting bonds for construction of additional public schools here, turn around to welcome the man whose principles include the destruction of our public school system.

"It just doesn't make sense to me and I personally don't want to be associated in any way, other than in opposition, with the letter of the executive committee.

"The founder of Freedom School can, thanks be to God, preach here whatever gospel he wishes. But that doesn't mean that I have to support him or his philosophy, directly or indirectly. And whether you wish it or not, the letter of the executive committee is support of him. . . a letter, which I'm sure, can be used in soliciting funds elsewhere.

"Men's memories sometimes are conveniently short. I think it important to recall to you some features of our way of life the Freedom School founder opposes.

"He is against government, those who work in government, be it federal, state, county, city or what have you. . .He has gone so far as to practically label those who work for government as nothing better than plunderers or thieves, using guns to extract moneys from others.

"He is against majority rule, a principle which even the chamber board supports in reaching its conclusions.

"He is against our military forces. He doesn't believe in paid army, navy, air force, or what have you. And I remind you ever so gently of the close ties this community enjoys with our military forces.

"He is against public libraries, public parks, tax-supported police and fire protection, tax-supported highways and streets. Yes, he has voiced and written his opposition to these and many other things quite often.

"And he's entitled to say and write these things because he lives in this country where he can enjoy his God-given rights.

"But I don't support his philosophy. . .I don't believe as he does and I refuse to extend any hand of welcome to him.

"And I believe the great majority of chamber members feel as I do with respect to this man and his school or any extension of his school. I think the action of the executive committee in offering an official welcome to the further extension of philosophies which aim to destroy and tear down was an affront and insult to the people of this area who support the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce."

Harry Hoiles, a trustee of the Freedom School and publisher of the Gazette Telegraph, speaking in the absence of Robert LeFevre, president of the school and editor of the Gazette Telegraph who is now on a speaking tour in the Midwest, said in reference to McLaughlin's attack:

"Mr. McLaughlin is unduly upset by the chamber's action with respect to a voluntarily supported school. How can he logically charge anyone who refuses to use initiated force with wanting to 'destroy' anything? 'Destruction' involves the use of force. The philosophy Mr. McLaughlin so bitterly attacks is based entirely on voluntary action as he should know if he knows anything about it."

The extension of the existing Freedom School to the status of a liberal arts college under the name "Rampart College" was recently discussed by a group of more than 80 Colorado Springs businessmen.

LeFevre, president of the Freedom School, told the group at the meeting that the normal cost of establishing such a school initially would be $15 million but with the know-how gleaned from experience at the present school plus the use of its existing acreage the cost could be reduced to $5 million, 20 per cent of which should be contributed locally.

An advisory board of the school is now being formed and local financial contributions to the new college have already been received.

LeFevre told the group at the initial meeting that the tax cost of education in Colorado is at an all-time high and will go higher unless the business community assumes voluntarily at least some of the educational potential existing here.

Signs of 'Almost Spring' Discovered by Dick West

were flying off in another direction. It occurred to me that we were witnessing the creation of a new status symbol.

After this, nobody who is at all interested in keeping up appearances will dream of feeding the pigeons in the park unless he can afford to hire someone to sprinkle the peanuts for him.

Another harbinger of spring came my way in a press release announcing that a new liqueur, created in Japan "from the fragile petals of the cherry blossom" would be introduced here during this year's Cherry Blossom Festival.

A sheet of vital statistics listed the liqueur as 40 proof, but the press release must have been close to 100 proof. By the time I had finished drinking in its heady hyperboles, I was fairly reeling.

What intoxicated me was a narration telling how "the magic mood of Japan" had been captured in the liqueur so that the "gossamer enchantment" of the islands could be enjoyed in bottled form.

"In the cherry blossom (yae sakura) forests of Japan in early April, you will find thousands of men, women and children strolling among the cherry trees picking the beautiful, fragrant, fragile blossoms . . .

"They take these lovely blossoms home, place them on a wooden tray and pickle them with the addition of salt. For to the Japanese, the pickled cherry blossoms are an exotic delicacy . . ."

This ancient tradition has now been carried a step further by a distillery, which "collects the most perfect and fragrant of these blossoms and through a process known only to themselves extracts from the blossoms the essence of the 'yae sakura.'"

Think of that! For years, people have pickled cherry blossoms and now a way has been found for cherry blossoms to pickle people.

they were over international waters, a Defense Department statement said. The latest flyover occurred about 600 miles southwest of Midway Island.

But Sen. Mundt, South Dakota Republican who is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee,said : . . . .

"I think it is high time the appropriate officials of our government came to an understanding with the Russians that flights of thtat kind carry with them the seeds of possible conflict. Sooner or later there is going to be a shooting and nobody could look with relish upon the repercussions from such an incident."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the carrier overflights and the one over Alaska represent an effort on the part of Russians to show some of their air muscle after the backdown in Cuba."

No shooting occurred in any of the incidents, including the one last Thursday in which, the United States charged, two Soviet reconnaissance planes penetrated 30 miles into American air space over the southwestern corner of Alaska.

However, Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, said the episode pointed up what he considers the woefully inadequate defense of Alaska. He said he and other members of Alaska's three-man congressional delegation have been trying for years to get the Pentagon to station missiles like the Minuteman in Alaska, but without success. Even conventional defenses are weak, especially in the area around Nome, he said.

Government Must Not Lie in News, Publishers Say

with-alarm" since the Cuban crisis.

Robb suggested several steps the government could take to solve a "broad range of problems . . . in this area of news management and manipulation." He said:

"First, we need a complete and categorical repudiation of the suggestion that, no matter what the circumstances, our government has a right to lie to the people or that it will lie even as a matter of self-protection. We need a reaffirmation of the very opposite—namely that telling the truth is the highest and most desirable expression of our government's policy.

"Second, we need some quite affirmative statement by our top-ranking public information officers that whatever they were thinking about with respect to news management, it is henceforth eschewed and eliminated as a matter of policy in giving out the facts and the news.

"Third, we need to see by permissions granted that reporters can witness all the possibly great and near-great stories of our time. They should be given access to all the news. If military security is a factor, censorship of such stories would be expected and carefully observed."

Robb noted that "at least one highly placed public relations officer of the Defense Department is on record as justifying a lie in an important news story if the stakes are high enough."

There have already been several instances of governmental lying in times of crisis, he said, ranging from the flight of the U2 over Russia through the Bay of Pigs invasion and the Cuban blockade.

"A government can successfully lie no more than once to its people," Robb said. "Thereafter everything it says and does becomes suspect . . ."

"The press will always cooperate whenever the government determines that withholding information is necessary to national security. But we ask that it be freely known if and when security considerations require censorship. Do not hesitate to put a military censor label on any story that has to be cut or held back in the interest of security."

But, Robb said, "telling less than all the truth when such national security situations require it does not excuse telling lies."

Robb also urged complete access to witness history-making events. He cited the government action in barring reporters from nuclear bomb tests and from U.S. ships taking part in the Cuban blockade.

"Even if national security considerations entail some consideration, the kind of reporters who serve in virtually combat duty posts during wartime should be given access to all of the news," he said. "Let them get the news and, if necessary, let it then be censored by military authorities.

"Sooner or later the public, on whose confidence the institutions of our free society completely depend, will thus get the facts."

Registrations For City Election Lags, Clerk Says

Registrations for the April 2 city election continue to lag, according to City Clerk - Treasurer Robert E. Parker.

Only about 11,000 persons are now registered to vote as compared with 15,579 two years ago.

Of the 15,579 registered in April, 1961, only 9,979 cast votes, which meant the purging of 5,600 names from the registration books. Slightly more than 1,000 have reregistered since that time.

The deadline for registering is 5 p.m. March 29. The clerk's office in City Hall will stay open late March 28 to accomodate those wishing to register, but Parker urged people not to wait until the last minute.

City voters this year will elect five council members and vote on five other issues, including two charter amendments, an initiated ordinance, repeal of a present ordinance and a new ordinance.

The charter amendments deal with the use of voting machines and registrations. Voters will have to approve both in order to use voting machines in future city elections and to simplify registering to vote in such a way that the county clerk's office will handle all registrations.

Mayor William C. Henderson said approval of both charter amendments would benefit all voters and result in economies in future elections.

In addition to the initiated ordinance concerning a code of ethics, voters will also decide on two other ordinances.

"Approval of these two other ordinances would permit residents of the city to employ anyone they wish to haul away garbage," the mayor said. Approval would also prohibit the city from entering the business except in the case of an extreme emergency.

Typewriter, Studebaker Taken From College

Two thefts at Colorado College were reported to police Monday. The first incident involved a grey 1949 Studebaker, which had been parked over the weekend on the circular drive, north of Rastall Center. Owner of the car is Lloyd E. Worner, 2218 Mesa Rd. Inside the car was a $150 set of golf clubs. The car itself was valued at $200.

Judith Anne Stampfli told police that her typewriter had recently been stolen from Ticknor Hall. It was valued at $145.

Today's Weather

(Reports furnished by U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 5:30 a.m. today!)

The cold stormy air which now covers the middle Mississippi and Ohio valleys into the central Appalachians was spilling into the coastal plains of Virginia shortly after dawn.

Showers and thundershowers were scattered thruout this area, with some of the showers occasionally heavy.

High pressure was nudging its way across the western half of the country and as a result, fair weather was the general rule.

However, moist air flowing across the Pacific northwest coast was bringing rain to northwest Oregon and western Washington, while an occasional flurry broke out across the mountains of Colorado.

Warm air clung to the southeast this morning where the 50s and 60s were common. Readings in the 70s were noted thru the Gulf states.

Elsewhere, the 20s and 30s were logged — colder along the northeast border sectors and some mountain areas.

Phelps, however, reminded the board that legislative enforcement of pro-rated assessment can be a burden to developers and builders.

The county assessor did have one encouraging word for the District 2 board. He told them they would not lose any tax money this year thru the normal-age depreciation system.

In 1962, School District 2 lost approximately $300,000 as a result of real estate depreciation which occurs every five years at a rate of about 10 per until a maximum of 60 per cent is reached.

The 1962 valuation for the district is $8.9 million and development within Harrison boundaries contributed to the county's record year of construction.

Retirement of Byran L. Davis as district sales manager here for Braniff International Airways and appointment of his successor, Joseph W. Jones of San Antonio, Tex., effective Monday, April 1, were announced Monday at a luncheon meeting of civilian and military leaders at the Broadmoor Hotel by Reginald Brack, senior vice president, Dallas.

Jones has been sales representative for Braniff in San Antonio. He is a native of Bonham, Tex., attended San Antonio College and served three years in the U. S. Navy prior to entering the airline industry in November, 1957. He joined Braniff as an operations agent in San Antonio and was promoted to sales representative in December, 1960. He is married and has two children.

Davis, a retired Air Force colonel, joined Braniff following a career in the armed services that spanned both World Wars. A native of Kansas and a graduate of the University of Kansas, he served in World War I as a first lieutenant in the field artillery.

As a member of tne regular Army, Davis advanced thru the various grades to lieutenant colonel and was assistant to the adjutant general in Washington, D. C., at the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

During World War II, he was promoted to the rank of full colonel, and served as adjutant general for the 8th Air Force in England, the 2nd Air Force in Colorado Springs, the U. S. Air Forces in Europe with headquarters in Wiesbaden, Germany, and later for the Air Material Command at Wright-Patterson Air Base, Dayton, Ohio.

Col. Davis retired from military service in March, 1951, and returned to Colorado Springs to live. He joined Braniff International Airways in September, 1951, and has been district sales manager here since that time.

Davis said his plans are uncertain but indicated he may do more traveling.

"I've always wanted to do more traveling," he said. Davis has been in about 50 countries, spent four years in the Orient and four years in Europe. He has traveled thru Central and South America.

Brack indicated to those attending the luncheon that Colorado Springs will have jet plane service in the not too distant future since Braniff International Airways expects to be "all jet" after 1964.

Braniff has ordered 12 BAC-111 jet planes, now being built by British Aircraft Corp. Ltd., the Vickers-Armstrong unit which built, among others, the famous "Spitfire" of World War II and the Viscount turbo-prop, which has attained world-wide acceptance.

The BAC-111 is a jet-powered plane smaller than those in use generally and is designed to operate on short flgihts. Braniff's schedules operate with sector flights of 250 miles or less, and the BAC-111 is designed for economical short-haul operation while providing jet speed and comfort.

The BAC-111 passenger capacity varies from 56 in first class seating configuration to 70 in five-abreast all-coach. The BAC's cruising speed will be up to 550 miles an hour.

Braniff Airway was founded in 1928 by Tom Braniff with a single-motored plane and three employes. At the end of 1962, the airline had 5,537 employes. It operates lines as far west as Denver and Colorado Springs, as far east as New York City and as far north as Minneapolis-St. Paul, with its international routes extending south to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Ben Bella. The nature of the decisions was not disclosed.

First report of the new French test came from Rabat, Morocco.

A communique said the French government had advised the Algerian government of the test—the fifth it has conducted—and said the explosion was underground.

The Algerian ambassador to France, Abdelatif Rahal, was recalled to Algiers for consultation.

The reaction in Algiers, on the first anniversary of the signing of the accord ending the Algerian revolution, was one of disbelief. Under the pact, France was permitted to keep its testing ground in the desert for five years.

Most government officials and a good part of the public had appeared to believe French President Charles de Gaulle had decided to call off the experiment to preserve the cooperative agreements with Algeria.

Some officials have expressed concern for the safety of the 170,000 Europeans still living in Algeria.

Algeria threatened earlier Monday to break its economic cooperation agreements with France if President Charles de Gaulle ordered another test in the Sahara, which is part of newly independent Algeria. Rumors have been current for days that such an explosion was imminent, but the Moroccan report was the first claim that one had taken place.

The French government maintained its usual refusal either to confirm or deny the report.

The Moroccan communique gave no source for its claim that France had exploded a nuclear device. Speculation has been that the next French test would be of an underground device—the hardest to detect.

King Hassan telephoned Algerian Premier Ahmed Ben Bella and gave him Morroco's support for his opposition to French testing.

France retained control of the Sahara testing bases for five years under the Evian agreements which gave Algeria independence last year. Atomic testing was not mentioned, but the Algerians knew that was what the bases were used for. Sources close to the Algerian Foreign Ministry said Ben Bella's government might not object to a final French test if the French announced simultaneously they would no longer test at the Sahara site.

A construction magazine published in Honolulu reported last month that France is moving test facilities from the Sahara to Mangareva Island in the South Pacific, 1,000 miles east of Tahiti.

The French refused to comment on the reports. The British and New Zealand governments, which administer nearby islands, said they had heard rumors but had no definite information.

Publishers Will Reject Change In Peace Pact

1,557 Sunday to reject the Wagner peace formula and continue their strike against four dailies. Five other major newspapers here closed down voluntarily when the strike began Dec. 8, but one, the Post, broke from the publishers' ranks and resumed publication March 4.

Elmer Brown, international president of the ITU, who had urged the Local 6 members to approve the pact—and was booed in the process—told newsmen Monday night, "By the first of next week, I hope the whole matter will be cleared away and we can prepare to return to work."

Complicating matters was a strike called Monday by the photo-engravers union against the four papers originally struck. The 375 photoengravers acted after their separate contract talks became deadlocked over the issue of a shorter work week.

Brown said a decision was reached by the ITU's executive council on whether the parent union should withhold financial support from Local 6 unless it reverses its vote. But he said he will not publicly announce the decision for a few days.

Powers said, "In my opinion, the international will not withdraw its aid."

Since becoming eligible for state unemployment insurance in early February, the printers have received an average $121.77 weekly payment. This includes $50 weekly in unemployment insurance and union strike benefits varying from $64.47 to $85.95.

izing force for Egypt and the largest power in the Middle East. The British agree that Nasser has been good for Egypt. They are not so sure he will prove to be good for the Middle East.

Nasser received $257.4 million in U. S. economic aid in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1962, and is getting about $150 million more this year.

However, he also has received $800 million in recent years from Russia for the Aswan dam and industrial development. He is in hock to the Kremlin for a considerable part of the $2.5 billion in military equipment supplied by Russia during the past six years.

Some critics of administration policy believe Nasser is playing the United States for a sucker. The Kennedy administration does not think so.

Washington officials point to his continued suppression of Communists within Egypt, the great decrease in anti-Western propaganda there, and Nasser's willingness to consult closely on methods for stabilizing the Middle East.

This U. S. policy soon may be put to some stern tests, however, as a result of the emergency in Iraq last month and Syria this month of new revolutionary regimes plugging for a militant "Arab union" with Nasser and "liberation" of Jordon and Saudi Arabia.

Robbery Charges Filed Monday In District Court

Two separate charges of simple robbery were filed in District Court Monday and this morning against Wilburn Anthony Henderson, 20, 331 N. Logan St. Judge G. Russell Miller set bonds on the charges at a total of $17,500.

The first charge, filed Monday, alleges Henderson robbed Danny's Liquor's, 2 S. Cascade Ave., on March 6. Police reports said Henderson admitted taking $105 from this establishment.

In the second charge, Henderson is accused of robbing the Ru-Jan Party Shop, 2223 N. Weber St., of $115 on March 12.

Judge Miller set bond at $7,500 on the first charge and at $10,000 on the second charge.

He was arrested Saturday after an alert police officer, John W. Poyner who was off-duty, saw the defendant in the street. He had a toy German Luger pistol in his possession and a pair of horn-rimmed glasses in his pocket. The report said he displayed no gun at any of the hold-ups although he told his victims he had one.

Firemen Called To Assist Man

Robert Miles, 36, of 1436 N. Walnut St., suffered convulsions and difficulty in breathing Monday at 2828 W. Colorado Ave. The fire department was called at 8:19 p.m. and Company 5 and aerial resuscitator crews responded. An inhalator was used by the firemen, after which Miles was taken to the Ft. Carson hospital.

Company 1 Wednesday made a run to ADC building S-3 when an electric wire was contacted during construction work, setting off an automatic fire alarm. There was no fire.

Public Works Program Urged By Farm Union

By OVID MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP) — President James G. Patton of the National Farmers Union called here for a massive public works program to put the nation's unemployed and underemployed to work at increasing the U.S. economic growth.

The farm leader said such a program should emphasize projects such as hydroelectric dams, steam generating plants, pollution abatement, desalinization of water and atomic energy plants.

Patton made this plea in a talk prepared for the annual convention of his organization, attended by an estimated 2,000 delegates and members from 44 states.

Patton, long a supporter of public welfare, farm programs and related federal spending programs, rapped critics of President Kennedy's budget and proposals for a tax cut.

"The fact that we suffer recurrent recessions, economic plateaus and increasing unemployment is the result," he said, "of rules and procedures of a scarcity economy being applied to an economy of abundance."

The convention drew farmers from as far west as the Rocky Mountain states, many of whom came here in bus caravans.

Patton discounted the seriousness of the national debt and the President's record peacetime budget.

He said critics of the debt ignore the fact that the per capita share actually is less than it was in 1946.

The farm leader said a big constructive public works program would accelerate economic growth—bring it possibly up to an annual rate of 7 to 10 per cent compared with the present estimated annual rate of 3½ per cent. Furthermore, he said, it would put the jobless to work and generate new tax revenues.

Grim Alcatraz May Become Tourist Trap

EDITOR'S NOTE: Alcatraz Island will be closed and abandoned by July 1. What's in store for the nation's "toughest prison"? AP [illegible] tells of [illegible] a tourist at[illegible].

By HUBERT J. ERB

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Picture if you can sightseeing boats running to and from Alcatraz Island every hour on the hour.

Imagine tourists crawling all over "The Rock" oohing and ahing at such information as, "And here, ladies and gentlemen, is where Al Capone slept in isolation."

The glowering rock in San Francisco Bay has a history, mostly grim, that dates back to 1854. For the past 29 years it has been the nation's toughest prison, the tan[illegible] for gangland's most hardened criminals, but by July 1 it will be closed and abandoned.

What to do with it is a topic of great speculation. If something isn't done soon the 12-acre island could become a deserted crag crowned by decayed buildings and an automatic lighthouse. The pelicans for which it was named could take over again.

Leaving Alcatraz for the birds, however, has no place in the imagination of Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco. He has asked California's congressional delegation to introduce a bill for a special study commission on Alcatraz' future.

It is his idea to send tourists by the boat load from Fisherman's Wharf, just a mile and a quarter away.

"I believe hundreds of thousands of people would pay a dollar apiece to see the prison as it was, to rub elbows with the ghosts of Capone, Machine Gun Kelly and all the others," the mayor said.

"Then, after interest lost, [illegible] I would want to see something truly magnificent put there. A huge statue like New York's Statue of Liberty big enough so you could climb right into the [illegible]."

The Justice Department decision to abandon Alcatraz Prison followed two sensational breaks last year, although the connection is not acknowledged.

James V. Bennett, director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, told Congress that Alcatraz would have to be rebuilt or replaced. An estimate that renovation would cost about $5 million brought the announcement that Alcatraz would be "phased out" in 1963.

A break by three daring bank robbers brought matters to a head.

Frank Morris and brothers John and Clarence Anglin made for shore the night of June 11-12, 1962, equipped with prison-made raft, paddles and waterwings. It developed they had chipped through decaying concrete with spoons, set up a workshop atop their cellblock, and roamed in and out at night probably for months.

They are presumed officially to have drowned, but their exploits underlined what Bennett himself called Alcatraz' "rundown and eroded condition."

Then last December John Paul Scott and Darl Dee Parker, two more bank robbers, finished what Morris and the Anglins had started.

Scott used kitchen cleanser and a banjo string to saw through a bar. Parker went along. Parker was picked up on a rock 100 yards from the island, but Scott swam to the mainland.

Scott was near death when found, but he had proved that a convict could survive the swift tides and 50-degree water. Alcatraz' awesome reputation was irreparably damaged.

Now Operation Phaseout is in high gear. In June, 1962, there were 269 prisoners on the island; now there are only 34.

Warden Olin G. Blackwell, who probably will be the last at Alcatraz, says the erosion wrought by the salt air and the bay's rough weather doomed the prison long ago. He implies that the escapes would not have been possible if money had been made available to maintain the physical structure.

With the abandonment of Alcatraz as a penitentiary, the latest chapter in a long, lurid history will draw to a close.

Ignored by the Spaniards and Mexicans, Alcatraz as a habitat for man started with erection of a lighthouse in 1854. It became a U.S. Army fort in 1858.

Confederate sympathizers who tried to seize the fort in the Civil War became instead its first prisoners. In 1868 it officially became an Army prison, holding, among others, fierce Indian chiefs captured on the Great Plains.

In 1933 the Army quit the island, and in June 1934 the first civilian convicts arrived. Touted from the first as escape-proof, it was set aside to house only the most incorrigible and dangerous of the country's federal prisoners.

Throughout the years they periodically tested it: a total of 40 inmates participated in 13 escape attempts, the first in 1936.

Seven, including the notorious kidnaper Arthur "Doc" Barker, were shot dead and one drowned. Three of those killed participated in the 1946 break. Two guards also were killed and one convict and 14 guards were wounded in what became known as "The Battle of Alcatraz."

Still missing after fleeing the 135-foot-high clifftop island are five men, Morris, the Anglins and bank robbers Ralph Roe and Ted Cole. Roe and Cole vanished in 1937 and are presumed drowned.

New Kind Of Highways Crossing Nation

Call them what you will—turnpikes, expressways, freeways, tollways, thruways — this new kind of highway is criss-crossing the nation, according to the Colorado highway safety council.

More and more people are turning into the curving ramps as the new Interstate System continues to grow.

These new superhighways are different. Old hazards are gone. There are no crossings. Grades are gentle, sight distance is almost unlimited. There are no pedestrians. Opposing lanes are divided.

"Turnpikes are so different they demand a new set of driving techniques — many at complete variance with those safety rules which motorists must observe in city and urban driving," says Duke W. Dunbar, Chairman, Colorado Highway Safety Council.

These roads are engineered for safety. But they can't be used in the same way as the traditional city and urban street — and the traditional safety rules must be left behind at the clover leaf when you "blast off" into the legal high speed driving.

Conversely, it must be emphasized that [illegible] the adjustment of the mind and body from high speed driving to city and urban driving is a risk not fully explored and unquestionably contributes to numerous unsolved fatals.

AAA Says Auto Tune-Ups Can Reduce Air Pollution

If every car owner in Colorado would tune up his automobile and keep the vehicle in top running condition, part of the state's air pollution problem would be solved, commented the Rocky Mountain AAA Club this week.

Further, pointed out the club, motorists could reduce their gasoline bills considerably by driving more efficient vehicles. Cars clogged with carbon deposists, for example, can rob the motorist of several miles for each gallon of gasoline burned.

"All motor vehicles contribute somewhat to the air pollution problem," said the auto club, "but some cars produce 10 times the smog producing gases as do other cars."

Poor maintenance was blamed by the auto club for the fact that some cars are so much worse than others in contributing to the air pollution problem.

The AAA club was especially critical of the motorist whose car exhaust pours out a continual cloud of black smoke as he drives along and especially when the vehicle first starts out. Such cars, pointed out the club, are obviously in need of servicing. But when the problem gets that bad, something more than a mere tune-up is usually necessary.

Several air pollution proposals are now being considered by the Colorado General Assembly. Until the time auto exhaust pollution control devices are available, the auto club urged all motorists to cooperate by helping minimize the pollution on a voluntary basis.

A campaign to curb motor vehicle air pollution on a voluntary basis was launched this week in Denver by representatives of the motor vehicle industry, automobile dealers, service station operators, highway users and a motorist organization.

"Anti-pollution steps can be taken now," commented Clarence Werthan, president of the motorist group — the Rockey Mountain AAA Club. "It is not necessary to wait until suitable legislation can be passed."

Action urged at this time consists primarily of an education campaign aimed both at car owners and at establishments that service automobiles.

Said Werthan: "Late model cars are equipped with devices to reduce air pollution from the crankcase. These devices must, however, be serviced repeatedly or they no longer function. The typical owner of a late model car doesn't even know his vehicle has such a device. And few stations or garages are yet equipped to properly service the devices."

In a letter sent this week to Gov. John Love and chairman of general assembly committees in which air pollution bills are pending, Werthan urged that any legislation enacted on the matter of motor vehicle air pollution be separated completely from any legislation concerning pollution caused by smoke-stacks, back yard incinerators and the like.

"It is premature," commented Werthan, "to enact laws dealing with motor vehicle air pollution control devices. We should, instead, keep up with developments in Los Angeles and Detroit, where millions of dollars are being spent on this problem."

AAA Says Auto Tune-Ups Can Reduce Air Pollution

If every car owner in Colorado would tune up his automobile and keep the vehicle in top running condition, part of the state's air pollution problem would be solved, commented the Rocky Mountain AAA Club this week.

Further, pointed out the club, motorists could reduce their gasoline bills considerably by driving more efficient vehicles. Cars clogged with carbon deposists, for example, can rob the motorist of several miles for each gallon of gasoline burned.

"All motor vehicles contribute somewhat to the air pollution problem," said the auto club, "but some cars produce 10 times the smog producing gases as do other cars."

Poor maintenance was blamed by the auto club for the fact that some cars are so much worse than others in contributing to the air pollution problem.

The AAA club was especially critical of the motorist whose car exhaust pours out a continual cloud of black smoke as he drives along and especially when the vehicle first starts out. Such cars, pointed out the club, are obviously in need of servicing. But when the problem gets that bad, somthing more than a mere tune-up is usually necessary.

Several air pollution proposals are now being considered by the Colorado General Assembly. Until the time auto exhaust pollution control devices are available, the auto club urged all motorists to cooperate by helping minimize the pollution on a voluntary basis.

A campaign to curb motor vehicle air pollution on a voluntary basis was launched this week in Denver by representatives of the motor vehicle industry, automobile dealers, service station operators, highway users and a motorist organization.

"Anti-pollution steps can be taken now," commented Clarence Werthan, president of the motorist group — the Rockey Mountain AAA Club. "It is not necessary to wait until suitable legislation can be passed."

Action urged at this time consists primarily of an education campaign aimed both at car owners and at establishments that service automobiles.

Said Werthan: "Late model cars are equipped with devices to reduce air pollution from the crankcase. These devices must, however, be serviced repeatedly or they no longer function. The typical owner of a late model car doesn't even know his vehicle has such a device. And few stations or garages are yet equipped to properly service the devices."

In a letter sent this week to Gov. John Love and chairman of general assembly committees in which air pollution bills are pending, Werthan urged that any legislation enacted on the matter of motor vehicle air pollution be separated completely from any legislation concerning pollution caused by smoke-stacks, back yard incinerators and the like.

"It is premature," commented Werthan, "to enact laws dealing with motor vehicle air pollution control devices. We should, instead, keep up with developments in Los Angeles and Detroit, where millions of dollars are being spent on this problem."

One-Person, One-Vote Decision Is Explained

EDITORS NOTE—The Supreme Court handed down a significant "one person, one vote" decision Monday. How do lawyers who are fighting for more political strength for city dwellers look upon the ruling—and how about those on the other side of the fence? Both sides give their views in this story.

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lawyers fighting for more political power for city folks and suburbanites got a big lift today out of a "one person, one vote" decision by the U.S. Supreme Court.

To Charles S. Rhyne, former president of the American Bar Association and attorney for city dwellers, the decision points in only one direction:

Eventually—and probably sooner than many people think—both houses of each state legislature in the 50 states will be apportioned according to population. This would indeed be a political revolution, turning many a politician's plans and future topsy-turvy.

But the day is not yet, and a leader on the other side of the fight, Brevard Crihfield, executive secretary of hte Council of State Governments, sees a long, controversy-strewn road ahead.

Crihfield holds with retired Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter that the high court was unwise to venture into the "political thicket" of voting apportionment.

"I foresee," Crihfield told a newsman today, "almost limitless litigation and confusion ahead of us, to the detriment of orderly governmental processes."

"Actually Monday's 8-1 decision did not deal with apportionment of state legislatures—though many lawyers felt it inscribed certain handwriting on the wall.

What it did was to administer the coup de grace to Georgia's old county unit system for reckoning results of statewide Democratic primaries. The system, before it was revamped somewhat in a vain attempt to get by the courts, made a farmer's vote in the least populous county worth 99 times the vote of an Atlanta citizen.

This was done by providing that a governorship candidate, for example, who carried a county got all its unit votes. One result was that red-gallused Gene Talmadge, late governor, once remarked that he never bothered to campaign in a community big enough to have streetcar tracks.

The system was knocked out by a lower federal court, and last year's Georgia primary was on a popular basis. An appeal was filed, however, and Monday the unit system went out the window irrevocably. Writing for the majority, Justice William O. Douglas said the concept of political equality, from the Declaration of Independence down, "can mean only one thing—one person, one vote."

To the dissenter, Justice John M. Harlan, this "flies in the face of history." He said the idea of "one person, one vote" has never been universally accepted in England or this country.

Harlan said he could not deem it irrational for Georgia to "apply its county unit system to the selection of candidates for . . . statewide offices in order to assure against a predominantly 'city point of view' in the administration of state affairs."

Ferment over apportionment has spread rapidly across the nation as a result of the Supreme Court's "Baker vs. Carr" decision in March 1962. The court ruled then for the first time that federal courts have jurisdiction when citizens contend they are victims of "individious discrimination" in apportionment of state legislatures.

Nobody can keep track of the total number of lawsuits filed since then, but they number at least 78 in 38 states. Fifteen state legislatures have taken some reapportionment action, although not in many cases to the satisfaction of city dwellers. In 17 states reapportionment is in one stage or another of consideration.

Eleven cases are headed for possible decision by the Supreme Court, with more to follow. One prime question remains unanswered. Is it all right to base one house of a legislature on geography, as in Congress, where each state has two senators?

Cases from Maryland and Michigan could be the vehicles for deciding this momentous issue. Maryland's highest court ruled it is legal for the state Senate to be based on geography; Michigan's Supreme Court ruled the opposite.

Rhyne, who argued on the winning side in Baker vs. Carr, said today he felt population would be the basis finally decided upon.

"You cannot get around the constitutional principle of equality," he said. "You cannot carve up equality and allot it unequally."

Behind the cities' drive for proportionate power in legislatures is the feeling they are short-changed now on mass transport, education and other metropolitan needs.

Behind the rural blocs' fight is a fear that city voters might ride roughshod over them, neglecting the problems peculiar to the countryside.

States' righters have begun a backfire against the Supreme Court. Circulating among state legislatures now is a resolution asking a constitutional amendment for a super-court of judges from the 50 states. They could overrule the U.S. Supreme Court on matters affecting states rights.

Goldwater Has Reason to Wait With Candidacy

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conservatives are becoming impatient for Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., to announce his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination.

Before they chivvy the senator into committing himself, the Republican conservatives should consider their own sorry political record since World War I. Goldwater is familiar with that record. That is reason enough for him to hesitate long before committing himself to a pre-convention campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Republican conservatives have not since 1924 nominated their conservative candidate for President. Their man in 1924 was Calvin Coolidge, already President by succession to Warren G. Harding who died in office Aug. 2, 1923.

Thereafter, the Republicans nominated candidates actively opposed by the Conservative Party factions — Herbert Hoover, Alf M. Landon, Wendell L. Willkie, Thomas E. Dewey, Dwight D. Eisenhower. Richard M. Nixon had conservative support in 1960 but he lost much of it during the Republican national convention and more of it before the campaign ended.

Republican conservatives might have little to offer their hero, Goldwater, except an opportunity to get his political brains knocked out at the 1964 Republican national convention. Goldwater — anyone — deserves a better deal tha that.

The argument against nominating for President a conservative Republican or a conservative Democrat is both simple and effective. The argument is that a conservative cannot win the electoral votes of the populous industrial states whose politics is dominated by big cities such as Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Los Angeles, St. Louis.

It is further argued that it is impossible to elect a presidential candidate without some or all of the big states. And there is another important factor working against conservatives in the national political conventions. That is the need of big city political leaders to nominate for President candidates who will appeal strongly to the various blocs of big city voters. Without this bloc support the big city political leader would be out of business. These blocs include the labor vote insofar as it is controlled or delivered by labor bosses, the Negro and other ethnic groups and so on.

U. S. senators and governors with big cities within their constituencies equally must oppose nomination of a conservative presidential candidate. The senators, governors and state political bosses demand a presidential candidate who can rally the bloc voters, the balance-of-power elements of American politics.

Some conservative Republicans believe that they have the answer to this problem. It is for the Republican Party to forget the liberal bloc voters in the North—the Negro, labor, ethnic bloc—and to go after the conservative, white southern voters. Some Goldwater enthusiasts believe their man could be elected without electoral votes from New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New England, Michigan, Missouri, Washington, Oregon and California.

These conservatives may be wrong but they are political realists. If they have no future in the North, they must look elsewhere.

State, National Concrete Groups Merge

Robert Norton of Fort Collins, president of the Colorado Concrete Masonry Association, announced this week the state group has become affiliated with the National Concrete Masonry Association.

Norton noted NCMA membership will involve participation in what has been termed a "Q-Blok" program, a voluntary-policing program of quality control under the administration of the National Concrete Masonry Association.

Under the "Q-Blok" program, all concrete masonry units of member companies will bear a trademark indicating consistent high standards of quality thruout the state under an inspection and testing service conducted by an independent testing laboratory on a periodic basis. Blocks will be tested four times a year.

Members of the Colorado association will allow personnel from a testing laboratory to visit job sites to select masonry units for stringent tests on such characteristics as strength.

The Colorado group has adopted an insignia to be used in advertising, on job site signs and on stationery. The insignia features a large letter "Q," designating the "Q-Blok" program.

The NCMA is promoting reference to "Q-Blok" in specifications used by architects, engineers and specification writers. Under the program, it will be unnecessary to make further tests, since all "Q" units will be assured quality as demonstrated by periodic tests.

Speaker Says Hospital Cost Increase Due to Overuse

Hospital costs have been on the increase in the past few years because of "overutilization" of hospital services by persons with pre-paid service plans, a doctor and hospital administrator said here Monday.

Both Fred Graham, business manager for the Colorado Springs Medical Center, and Dr. William Day, proctologist, agreed that this "overutilization" is a tremendous problem which has skyrocketed hospital insurance costs.

"Persons with pre-paid hospital plans htave a tendency to abuse these beneftis and to stay in the hospital longer than necessary — longer than they really need to." Graham told persons attending the final noon luncheon sponsored by the Senior Co-ordinating Council at the Antlers Hotel.

"It's everyone's responsibiltiy to see that we don't use hospital services longer than necessary," he said.

Dr. Day explained that local admission and discharge committees have become necessary to determine which patients need care. "This is one reason why monies for Colorado old age pensioners and county welfare have been increased," Dr. Day said.

Graham said the Evanston, Ill., hospital where he once worked now had a per diem cost of $42, as compared with $8 in 1942. He said extra services now provided by hospitals, such as telephones, television and music, have helped to add to costs. Better and more modern equipment and services also has increased costs.

Graham said Colorado Springs is fortunate to have three first-class hospitals, adequate nursing homes, and a high calibre of doctors to serve the community.

"We now rank 7th or 8th in the U.S. concentration of doctors available to the population," he said.

Dr. Day explained the proposed Kerr-Mills assistance plan now in the Colorado legislative hopper which, he said, "hits the medical assistance problem with a local answer."

He said the bill, supported by the Colorado Medical Society, should be passed and is the best plan under the present circumstances. It will, he said, "cost less; cover more people with drug and medcial care; be under local administration; be more flexible; and is based on the need of the individual."

Cost of the program in Colorado for the first year would be $14,751,000. The Kerr-Mill plan provides for federal assistance in medical funds with matching monies from the state.

A third speaker on the panel program, moderated by Dr. A. F. Pierce, was Eleanor McGuire, director of nursing for the City-County Health Department and head of the Visiting Nurses Association.

The association provides generalized nursing service to any county resident on request of the patient's family physician. Persons may pay a fee to the association for the service, based on actual cost of the service. The association gets a yearly allocation from the United Fund to make up the difference.

Last year, Miss McGuire said, the Visiting Nurses made 6,170 visits to 1,344 patients for bedside care, on request of 78 physicians in the county.

Inspector Can Always Spot Hair Dye Job

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Norfolk's police traffic department claims that the hairdressers isn't the only one who knows for sure.

Inspector Roxey Curles says he can "always spot a dye job. But he contends the color of hair should remain on drivers' licenses.

"The way I feel about it is that the license should show whatever color the good Lord gave you," said Curles.

But at least two states—Maine and New York — have agreed to drop the hair color question from drivers' licenses.

Floating Garage Used To Transport Autos

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A floating garage has carried more than 20,000 automobiles to Hawaii from San Francisco and Los Angeles in the past two years.

The garage is Matson Navigation Company's ship Hawaiian Motorist, equipped with loading cradles which can lift five cars at once from the wharf to the holds, which contain 517 parking spaces.

Matson estimates that automobile shippers have saved $6 million from the usual method of carting and shipping on forward decks. Also, the cars can be shipped without draining gasoline tanks or disconnecting batteries.

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Small-business men would be among the most-favored beneficiaries of President Kennedy's tax program, a study indicated today. Their cuts would total about $1.2 billion if the plan wins approval.

Small-business spokesmen were among the gentler critics of the tax proposals in House Ways and Means Committee hearings on the tax bill last week. But, in language exactly like that of the big-business witnesses, they:

1. Urged curtailed federal spending to offset the revenue loss; and

2. Opposed many of the tax reforms by which Kennedy hopes to cushion the loss—including even some changes which were designed expressly to help small firms.

The small-business witnesses, however, left the net impression that they want tax reduction badly and would be pleased to take the Kennedy plan — with several reservations.

"We are well aware that probably the greatest benefit flowing from the proposed reduction in rates would accrue to the small business community," said John A. Gosnell, general counsel of the National Small Business Association.

Although the Treasury has said that the Kennedy tax package is stuffed with special bonbons for small businesses, the department never has added up the tax savings which would accrue to the several types of firms affected—sole proprietors, partnerships and small corporations.

Data from the Small Business Administration indicates, however, that these groups would save roughly $1.2 billion under the individual income and business tax changes—a surprisingly large figure, since it is equivalent to nearly half the proposed $2.6 billion reduction in corporation rates.

FILES OTHERS' RETURNS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — George Little, a certified public accountant, has until April 22 to begin a 90-day sentence for failing to file income tax returns in 1958 and 1960.

A U. S. District judge here granted the stay on request of Little's attorney, who said the convicted man needed time to complete income tax work for his clients.

Accidental Poisoning Now Major Accident Cause

Accidental poisoning, mostly in the home, has become one of the major causes of accidents in America, particularly to small children.

And no wonder. A quarter of a million products used in the home and in industry are potentially hazardous, according to the American Medical Association's first aid card on accidental poisonings.

To help emphasize potential hazards, the AMA has joined with many other national organizations to observe National Poison Prevention Week beginning today.

To prevent poisoning: Keep all drugs, poisonous substances and household chemicals out of reach of children.

Never give or take medicines in the dark.

Speed is essential to stop absorption of a poison. If possible, one person should begin first aid while another calls a physician. The nature of the poison will determine the first aid measures.

Save and give to the hospital or physician the poison container with its label and remaining contents.

Do not induce vomiting if the patient is unconscious or in convulsions; or, if the patient has swallowed a petroleum product such as kerosene, gasoline or lighter fluid; or if the patient has swallowed a corrosive poison that causes severe pain and burning in the mouth and throat.

Corrosive poisons are found in toilet bowl cleaners, rust removers, drain cleaners and household bleaches. If one of these is swallowed give milk or water, one to two cups for small children, as much as a quart for those 5 years and older.

If the patient has swallowed a non-corrosive poison, such as an overdose of medicine, give milk or water and induce vomiting by depressing the back end of the patient's tongue with the blunt end of a spoon or your finger. Or, use an emetic, such as two tablespoons of salt in a glass of warm water.

If the poison was inhaled, such as from an insect spray, fresh air is important. Give artificial respiration if breathing has stopped.

If the poison gets on the skin, cleanse rapidly by drenching with a stream of water from hose or faucet. If poison gets into the eye, hold the lids open and wash with a gentle stream of running water. Delay of even a few seconds in washing out the eyes may be serious.

Most important of all in cases of accidental poisoning is to get the patient to a physician or a hospital as quickly as possible. Almost equally important is to bring along the container, so that the physician can identify the poison and thus know how to proceed with treatment.

Prevention is much easier than treatment. Examine your household today for potential poison hazards to your family, particularly to small children. Correct those hazards and you can help to avoid serious injury from accidental poisoning.

A small card outlining what to do in case of accidental poisoning, suitable for taping to the inside of your medicine cabinet door, is available from the American Medical Association, 535 N. Dearborn St., Chicago. Single copies are 5 cents. Twenty or more copies are 1 cent each.

Tube Testing Machine Must Cool Quickly

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Cooling capacity equivalent to about 400 room air conditioners is built into a $400,000 tube testing machine built by Votater Division of Chemetron Corporation.

To remove the intense heat thrown out by powerful high-frequency electron tubes being tested for uses such as overseas broadcast transmission, satellite warning systems, the unit takes in and constantly recirculates as much as 108 gallons of water a minute.

PUMPING PREVENTS POLLUTION

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pumping water under a river seemingly makes as much sense as carrying coals to Newcastle.

But city officials here are pumping waste liquids under the East River through heavy industrial hose to avoid pollution of the river.

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

© 1963 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: Do forces beyond our control guide us along the channels of life best suited to our individual needs? A friend said that because God loves His children He plans the course of their lives. What is your opinion? —T. L.

ANSWER: The Bible specifically teaches that God has a plan for His children and that He guides them and leads them in the way He would have them go. Isaiah said, "And thine ears shall hear a word behind thee, saying, This is the way, walk ye in it, when you turn to the right hand, and when you turn to the left." (Isa. 30:21)

But when you ask if there are forces beyond our control which lead us, I would answer that the leadings of God must always be by the consent of those who are led. He does not lead us against our will. Always we have the power to refuse to follow where He leads. He respects our power of choice, always — and never forces His will upon us.

But the wise person will always bend his will to the will of God. He trusts God's unerring judgment in all things. He knows that what may seem difficult is possible if God is leading. He knows that, even though hardship and suffering is involved, the joy of obeying God's voice will bear its rich reward in joy, peace and satisfaction. Wise is the person who can sing: "I can hear my Savior calling. I'll go with Him all the way."

More White Oak Barrels to Be Needed

MONROE, La. (UPI)—A federal regulation requiring that Bourbon whiskey be aged in brand-new charred white oak barrels is partly responsible for the start of the first white oak "tree farm" in U.S. history.

Since the barrels may not be used a second time for aging Bourbon, the country's natural population of tall white oaks, the type best suited to making "whiskey-tight" barrels, is dwindling. The trees are being consumed much faster than they can reproduce themselves unaided, because it takes the tiny acorns 60 to 100 years to grow into fully matured oaks. Schenley Industries, Inc., is planting upwards of 10,000 seedlings on its "farm" near here in a longe-range conservation program.

WINTER SPORTS

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Winter sports areas of the national forests of Oregon and Washington attracted more than 1 million visitors in 1962, according to the regional forester.

Skiing accounted for 95 per cent of winter sports activity.

Packaging May Be Costly Sometime

KINGSTON, R. I. (UPI)—If the supermarket checker rings up $20 for your week's groceries, it's a safe guess that $1.50 to $2 of the total is for packages.

Jim Bromley, consumer education specialist for the University of Rhode Island, says that on low-priced items, the cost of the package often is high in relation to the cost of the product. On a tube of toothpaste, for instance, the package cost may be 60 to 70 per cent of the cost of the product.

The safest time to drive a car is between 9 and 11 a.m., according to Dodge safety engineers.

One-Person, One-Vote Decision Is Explained

EDITORS NOTE—The Supreme Court handed down a significant "one person, one vote" decision Monday. How do lawyers who are fighting for more political strength for city dwellers look upon the ruling—and how about those on the other side of the fence? Both sides give their views in this story.

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lawyers fighting for more political power for city folks and suburbanites got a big lift today out of a "one person, one vote" decision by the U.S. Supreme Court.

To Charles S. Rhyne, former president of the American Bar Association and attorney for city dwellers, the decision points in only one direction.

Eventually—and probably sooner than many people think—both houses of each state legislature in the 50 states will be apportioned according to population. This would indeed be a political revolution, turning many a politician's plans and future topsy-turvy.

But the day is not yet, and a leader on the other side of the fight, Brevard Crihfield, executive secretary of hte Council of State Governments, sees a long controversy stretch road ahead.

Crihfield holds with retired Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter that the high court was unwise to venture into the "political thicket" of voting apportionment.

"I foresee," Crihfield told a newsman today, "almost limitless litigation and confusion ahead of us, to the detriment of orderly governmental processes."

Actually Monday's 8-1 decision did not deal with apportionment of state legislatures—though many lawyers felt it inscribed certain handwriting on the wall.

What it did was to administer the coup de grace to Georgia's old county unit system for reckoning results of statewide Democratic primaries. The system, before it was revamped somewhat in a vain attempt to get by the courts, made a farmer's vote in the least populous county worth 99 times the vote of an Atlanta citizen.

This was done by providing that a governorship candidate, for example, who carried a county got all its unit votes. One result was that red-gallused Gene Talmadge, late governor, once remarked that he never bothered to campaign in a community big enough to have streetcar tracks.

The system was knocked out by a lower federal court and last year's Georgia primary was on a popular basis. An appeal was filed, however, and Monday the unit system went out the window irrevocably. Writing for the majority, Justice William O. Douglas said the concept of political equality, from the Declaration of Independence down, "can mean only one thing—one person, one vote."

To the dissenter, Justice John M. Harlan, this "flies in the face of history." He said the idea of "one person, one vote" has never been universally accepted in England or this country.

Harlan said he could not deem it irrational "for Georgia to "apply its county unit system to the selection of candidates for state-wide offices in order to assure against a predominantly "city" point of view in the administration of state affairs.

Ferment over apportionment has spread rapidly across the nation as a result of the Supreme Court's "Baker vs Carr" decision in March 1962. The court ruled then for the first time that federal courts have jurisdiction when citizens contend they are victims of "individious discrimination" in apportionment of state legislatures.

Nobody can keep track of the total number of lawsuits filed since then, but they number at least 78 in 38 states. Fifteen state legislatures have taken some reapportionment action, although not in many cases to the satisfaction of city dwellers. In 17 states reapportionment is in one stage or another of consideration.

Eleven cases are headed for possible decision by the Supreme Court, with more to follow. One prime question remains unanswered: Is it all right to base one house of a legislature on geography, as in Congress, where each state has two senators?

Cases from Maryland and Michigan could be the vehicles for deciding this momentous issue. Maryland's highest court ruled it is legal for the state Senate to be based on geography. Michigan's Supreme Court ruled the opposite.

Rhyne, who argued on the winning side in Baker vs. Carr, said today he felt population would be the basis finally decided upon.

"You cannot get around the constitutional principle of equality," he said. "You cannot carve up equality and allot it unequally."

Behind the cities' drive for proportionate power in legislatures is the feeling they are short-changed now on mass transport, education and other metropolitan needs.

Behind the rural blocs' fight is a fear that city voters might ride roughshod over them, neglecting the problems peculiar to the countryside.

States' righters have begun a backfire against the Supreme Court. Circulating among state legislatures now is a resolution asking a constitutional amendment for a super-court of judges from the 50 states. They could overrule the U.S. Supreme Court on matters affecting states rights.

Goldwater Has Reason to Wait With Candidacy

By LYLE C. WILSON

Before they chivvy the senator into committing himself, the Republican conservatives should consider their own sorry political record since World War I. Goldwater is familiar with that record. That is reason enough for him to hesitate long before committing himself to a pre-convention campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Republican conservatives have not since 1924 nominated their conservative candidate for President. Their man in 1924 was Calvin Coolidge, already President by succession to Warren G. Harding who died in office Aug. 2, 1923.

Thereafter, the Republicans nominated candidates actively opposed by the Conservative Party factions — Herbert Hoover, Alf M. Landon, Wendell L. Willkie, Thomas E. Dewey, Dwight D. Eisenhower. Richard M. Nixon had conservative support in 1960 but he lost [illegible] the Republican [illegible] more or [illegible] the campaign ended.

Republican conservatives might [illegible] to offer their hero, Goldwater, except an opportunity to get his political brains knocked out at the 1964 Republican national convention. Goldwater — anyone — deserves a better deal tha that.

The argument against nominating for President a conservative Republican or a conservative Democrat is both simple and effective. The argument is that a conservative cannot win the electoral votes of the populous industrial states whose politics is dominated by big cities such as Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Los Angeles, St. Louis.

It is further argued that it is impossible to elect a presidential candidate without some or all of the big states. And there is another important factor working against conservatives in the national political conventions. That is the need of big city political leaders to nominate for President candidates who will appeal strongly to the [illegible] blocs of big city voters. Without this bloc support the big city political leader would be out of business. These blocs include the labor vote insofar as it is controlled or delivered by labor bosses, the Negro and other ethnic groups and so on.

U.S. senators and governors with big cities within their constituencies equally must oppose nomination of a conservative presidential candidate. The senators, governors and state political bosses demand a presidential candidate who can rally the bloc voters, the balance-of-power elements of American politics.

Some conservative Republicans believe that they have the answer to this problem. It is for the Republican Party to forget the liberal bloc voters in the North—the Negro, labor, ethnic bloc—and to go after the conservative, white southern voters. Some Goldwater enthusiasts believe their man could be elected without electoral votes from New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New England, Michigan, Missouri, Washington, Oregon and California.

These conservatives may be wrong but they are political realists. If they have no future in the North, they must look elsewhere.

VETERAN RETIRES—Lt. Col. Herbert E. Kemp, 41, son of Mrs. Nana H. Kemp, 153 Santa Clara Ave., Dayton, Ohio, recently retired from the U.S. Army in Colorado Springs, after more than 20 years of active Federal service. Col. State, National Concrete Groups Merge

Robert Norton of Fort Collins, president of the Colorado Concrete Masonry Association, announced this week the state group has become affiliated with the National Concrete Masonry Association.

Norton noted NCMA membership will involve participation in what has been termed a "Q-Blok" program, a voluntary-policing program of quality control under the administration of the National Concrete Masonry Association.

Under the "Q-Blok" program, all concrete masonry units of member companies will bear a trademark indicating consistent high standards of quality thruout the state under an inspection and testing service conducted by an independent testing laboratory on a periodic basis. Blocks will be tested four times a year.

Members of the Colorado association will allow personnel from a testing laboratory to visit job sites to select masonry units for stringent tests on such characteristics as strength.

The Colorado group has adopted an insignia to be used in advertising, on job site signs and on stationery. The insignia features a large letter "Q," designating the "Q-Blok" program.

The NCMA is promoting reference to "Q-Blok" in specifications used by architects, engineers and specification writers. Under the program, it will be unnecessary to make further tests, since all "Q" units will be assured quality as demonstrated by periodic tests.

Speaker Says Hospital Cost Increase Due to Overuse

Hospital costs have been on the increase in the past few years because of "overutilization" of hospital services by persons with pre-paid service plans, a doctor and hospital administrator said here Monday.

Both Fred Graham, business manager for the Colorado Springs Medical Center, and Dr. William Day, proctologist, agreed that this "overutilization" is a tremendous problem which has skyrocketed hospital insurance costs.

"Persons with pre-paid hospital plans htave a tendency to abuse these benefits and to stay in the hospital longer than necessary — longer than they really need to," Graham told persons attending the final noon luncheon sponsored by the Senior Co-ordinating Council at the Antlers Hotel.

"It's everyone's responsibility to see that we don't use hospital services longer than necessary," he said.

Dr. Day explained that local admission and discharge committees have become necessary to determine which patients need care. "This is one reason why monies for Colorado old age pensioners and county welfare have been increased," Dr. Day said.

Graham said the Evanston, Ill., hospital where he once worked now had a per diem cost of $42, as compared with $8 in 1942. He said extra services now provided by hospitals, such as telephones, television and music, have helped to add to costs. Better and more modern equipment and services also has increased costs.

Graham said Colorado Springs is fortunate to have three first-class hospitals, adequate nursing homes, and a high calibre of doctors to serve the community.

"We now rank 7th or 8th in the U.S. concentration of doctors available to the population," he said.

Dr. Day explained the proposed Kerr-Mills assistance plan now in the Colorado legislative hopper which, he said, "hits the medical assistance problem with a local answer."

He said the bill, supported by the Colorado Medical Society, should be passed and is the best plan under the present circumstances. It will, he said, "cost less; cover more people with drug and medcial care; be under local administration; be more flexible; and is based on the need of the individual."

Cost of the program in Colorado for the first year would be $14,751,000. The Kerr-Mill plan provides for federal assistance in medical funds with matching monies from the state.

A third speaker on the panel program, moderated by Dr. A. F. Pierce, was Eleanor McGuire, director of nursing for the City-County Health Department and head of the Visiting Nurses Association.

The association provides generalized nursing service to any county resident on request of the patient's family physician. Persons may pay a fee to the association for the service based on actual cost of the service. The association gets a yearly allocation from the United Fund to make up the difference.

Last year, Miss McGuire said, the Visiting Nurses made 6,170 visits to 1,344 patients for bedside care on request of 78 physicians in the county.

Inspector Can Always Spot Hair Dye Job

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Norfolk's police traffic department claims that the hairdressers isn't the only one who knows for sure.

Inspector Roxey Curles says he can "always spot a dye job. But he contends the color of hair should remain on drivers' licenses.

"The way I feel about it is that the license should show whatever color the good Lord gave you," said Curles.

But at least two states—Maine and New York — have agreed to drop the hair color question from drivers' licenses.

Poe's Story 'Raven' Is Written on Stamp

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Edgar Allan Poe Society of Bam gar Allan Poe Society of Baltimore has flews of some European activity on behalf of the famed author.

Hans Stendahl of Namsos, Norway, wrote the society that he has written Poe's poem, "The Raven," on the back of a stamp, and the short story, "MS. Found in a Bottle," on the back of another stamp — both in English.

Floating Garage Used To Transport Autos

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A floating garage has carried more than 20,000 automobiles to Hawaii from San Francisco and Los Angeles in the past two years.

The garage is Matson Navigation Company's ship Hawaiian Motorist, equipped with loading cradles which can lift five cars at once from the wharf to the holds, which contain 517 parking spaces.

Matson estimates that automobile shippers have saved $6 million from the usual method of carting and shipping on forward decks. Also, the cars can be shipped without draining gasoline tanks or disconnecting batteries.

DOES GOD really love the world? Look at it! Confusion. Fear. Disorder. A frantic seeking for material possessions. If there's a God-directed order for the Universe, it doesn't seem to apply to our chaotic planet...

DOES GOD REALLY CARE?

The Christian answers, "God created the world, and made it good. He made food, metals, energy—everything—for us to use and enjoy. It is we who have mismanaged, we who misuse what He created. The disorder is ours, not His!"

The Christian knows that God loved the world so much He sent His Son, Jesus Christ, into our world to become involved with us, guide us, carry our load.

The Christian reflects God's love, enjoys the world He made for us, knows he is personally responsible for managing his share of it. For a clearer understanding of God's concern for you and the world you live in, send for this free 40-page book, DOES GOD REALLY CARE?

DAR Hears Report of Naval Importance in General War

Capt. David McCampbell, USN, assistant deputy chief of staff, operations at North American Air Defense Command, spoke at the DAR State Convention Monday night on the "Role of the United States Navy in Nation Defense." He reported that:

"The Navy is driving at flank speed toward four targets: a tremendous expansion of the nuclear submarine fleet . . . a sizeable increment of nuclear-powered carriers, a brand new system of functionalized, highly technical apparatus for dealing with the threat presented by the Soviet submarine flotilla; and finally, a general program for replacing all its old World War II vessels before 'block' obsolescence overtakes the fleet between now and 1965. . .

"In recent months Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, former chief of naval operations has pointed out the urgent need for a mobile general-war deterrent," he said.

"Burke went so far as to theorize that forty-eight hours after the outbreak of a general war it might well be that the Navy power at sea might be the only power left."

He described the merits of the carrier and Polaris submarine systems as a "blend of movements, dispersal, concealment, and versatility which buys time for retaliatory action and which separates retaliatory sources from our cities." He also pointed out the Navy's response to a challenge can vary "from a cautioning gesture to an atomic bomb."

Mrs. E. Roy Chesney, state regent, is presiding at all the business sessions of the DAR state conference at the Broadmoor Hotel. The morning session was taken up with reports of committees.

Lunch at 12:30 Monday was sponsored by the DAR Good Citizens Committee, with Mrs. Kenneth Quale, Sr., of Ault presiding. Mrs. Quale is the national vice-chairman, Good Citizens, and supervises the contest in thirteen western states.

Frist prize of a $100 U.S. bond was awarded to Diane Bailey, of Estes Park, and the second place winner, Lora Like, of Trinidad, received a $25 U.S. bond.

The National Society DAR is awarding a $1,000 scholarship to the college of her choice to the winner of the national Good Citizens contest. These girls are all seniors in high school. Prof. Robert H. Buchanan, of Adams State College, Alamosa, gave the address.

After a short business session in the afternoon members adjourned to the Episcopal Chapel for the Hour of Remembrance. The call to remembrance was given by Mrs. Gordon H. Rowe, state chaplain, and the response led by Mrs. H. R. Gueck, state registrar.

A highlight of the conference banquet at 7 p.m. was music furnished by Lee White Penkhus at the organ and Eugene McCleary, soloist. Selections by Mr. McCleary included "Colorado" composed by the late Maude McFerran Price, pioneer resident of the Pikes Peak Region.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

The top rack is about ten inches from the top of the door. This holds tall bottles such as alcohol and so forth and all dangerous items which should be kept out of the reach of children's hands.

The other racks are about 8 or 10 inches apart. These hold shampoos, suntan lotion, insect repellent, etc.

The lowest rack is used for extra soap, tooth paste and similar items. These racks come in all widths and can be purchased to fit any sized can or bottle.

These shelves should not be used for small bottles of pills, iodine, and tubes of ointment. They could fall over and roll off the shelves. —Helen C.

Dear Heloise:

The best hint I have found in your column is using soap to dispel detergent suds. Now, after I have washed my sink, I rub my sponge over the bar of hand soap and all of the detergent suds disappear down the drain. Before I read this I was writing complaint letters to cleanser manufacturers about their products. —Mrs. Charles F. Chevillon

Dear Heloise:

How can one remove the stamp which is ironed on linens as a guide for embroidery work? Sometimes we do not completely finish this embroidery or do not wish to do the entire pattern. Also, linens are often given to us and we would like to remove the stamp without embroidering any of it. We would be most appreciative if anyone can tell us how to remove this. —Ide St. Geor

Did anyone ever find out how to remove it? If so, write to Heloise care-of this paper. Please. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I spilled nail polish remover on my dining room rug. I immediately blotted the stained area, but in doing so, the rug pile seemed to dissolve and to stick to the rug. Upon drying, the area became very hard and brittle. What can I do? I cannot afford new carpeting. —Melissa

Dear Heloise:

I remove the bits of dough from my pastry board by sprinkling the board liberally with salt and rubbing it with a damp cloth.

When mixing pancake or waffle batter . . . I use any container with a spout and just pour the batter on the grids instead of using a drippy spoon.

I sprinkle the top of my hot corn starch puddings with a dab of granulated sugar and it keeps a film from forming.

I run dry, dirty jeans through my dryer for a few minutes before washing them to get rid of that extra dirt. —Ruth Hill

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Small-business men would be among the most-favored beneficiaries of President Kennedy's tax program, a study indicated today. Their cuts would total about $1.2 billion if the plan wins approval.

Small-business spokesmen were among the gentler critics of the tax proposals in House Ways and Means Committee hearings on the tax bill last week. But, in language exactly like that of the big-business witnesses, they

1. Urged curtailed federal spending to offset the revenue loss; and

2. Opposed many of the tax reforms by which Kennedy hopes to cushion the loss—including even some changes which were designed expressly to help small firms.

The small-business witnesses, however, left the net impression that they want tax reduction badly and would be pleased to take the Kennedy plan — with several reservations.

"We are well aware that probably the greatest benefit flowing from the proposed reduction in rates would accrue to the small business community," said John A. Gosnell, general counsel of the National Small Business Association.

Although the Treasury has said that the Kennedy tax package is stuffed with special bonbons for small businesses, the department never has added up the tax savings which would accrue to the several types of firms affected—sole proprietors, partnerships and small corporations.

Data from the Small Business Administration indicates, however, that these groups would save roughly $1.2 billion under the individual income and business tax changes—a surprisingly large figure, since it is equivalent to nearly half the proposed $2.6 billion reduction in corporation rates.

Accidental Poisoning Now Major Accident Cause

Accidental poisoning, mostly in the home, has become one of the major causes of accidents in America, particularly to small children.

And no wonder. A quarter of a million products used in the home and in industry are potentially hazardous, according to the American Medical Association's first aid card on accidental poisonings.

To help emphasize potential hazards, the AMA has joined with many other national organizations to observe National Poison Prevention Week beginning today.

To prevent poisoning: Keep all drugs, poisonous substances and household chemicals out of reach of children.

Never give or take medicines in the dark.

Speed is essential to stop absorption of a poison. If possible, one person should begin first aid while another calls a physician. The nature of the poison will determine the first aid measures.

Save and give to the hospital or physician the poison container with its label and remaining contents.

Do not induce vomiting if the patient is unconscious or in convulsion, or if the patient has swallowed a petroleum product such as kerosene, gasoline or lighter fluid, or if the patient has swallowed a corrosive poison that causes severe pain and burning in the mouth and throat.

Corrosive poisons are found in toilet bowl cleaners, rust removers, drain cleaners and household bleaches. If one of these is swallowed give milk or water, one to two cups for small children, as much as a quart for those 5 years and older.

If the patient has swallowed a non-corrosive poison, such as an overdose of medicine, give milk or water and induce vomiting by depressing the back end of the patient's tongue with the blunt end of a spoon or your finger. Or, use an emetic, such as two tablespoons of salt in a glass of warm water.

If the poison was inhaled, such as from an insect spray, fresh air is important. Give artificial respiration if breathing has stopped.

If the poison gets on the skin, cleanse rapidly by drenching with a stream of water from hose or faucet. If poison gets into the eye, hold the lids open and wash with a gentle stream of running water. Delay of even a few seconds in washing out the eyes may be serious.

Most important of all in cases of accidental poisoning is to get the patient to a physician or a hospital as quickly as possible. Almost equally important is to bring along the container so that the physician can identify the poison and thus know how to proceed with treatment.

Prevention is much easier than treatment. Examine your household today for potential poison hazards to your family, particularly to small children. Correct those hazards and you can help to avoid serious injury from accidental poisoning.

A small card outlining what to do in case of accidental poisoning, suitable for taping to the inside of your medicine cabinet door, is available from the American Medical Association, 535 N. Dearborn St., Chicago. Single copies are 5 cents. Twenty or more copies are 1 cent each.

QUESTION: Do forces beyond our control guide us along the channels of life best suited to our individual needs? A friend said that because God loves His children He plans the course of their lives. What is your opinion? —T. L.

ANSWER: The Bible specifically teaches that God has a plan for His children and that He guides them and leads them in the way He would have them go. Isaiah said: "And thine ears shall hear a word behind thee, saying, This is the way, walk ye in it, when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left" (Isa. 30:21).

But when you ask if there are forces beyond our control which lead us, I would answer that the leadings of God must always be by the consent of those who are led. He does not lead us against our will. Always we have the power to refuse to follow where He leads. He respects our power of choice always — and never forces His will upon us.

But the wise person will always bend his will to the will of God. He trusts God's unerring judgment in all things. He knows that what may seem difficult is possible if God is leading. He knows that, even though hardship and suffering is involved, the joy of obeying God's voice will bear its rich reward in joy, peace and satisfaction. Wise is the person who can sing: "I can hear my Saviour calling... I'll go with Him all the way."

More White Oak Barrels to Be Needed

MONROE, La. (UPI) —A federal regulation requiring that Bourbon whiskey be aged in brand-new charred white oak barrels is partly responsible for the start of the first white oak "tree farm" in U.S. history.

Since the barrels may not be used a second time for aging Bourbon, the country's natural population of tall white oaks, the type best suited to making "whiskey-tight" barrels, is dwindling. The trees are being consumed much faster than they can reproduce themselves unaided, because it takes the tiny acorns 60 to 100 years to grow into fully matured oaks. Schenley Industries, Inc., is planting upwards of 10,000 seedlings on its farm near here in a long-range conservation program.

WINTER SPORTS

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) —Winter sports areas of the national forests of Oregon and Washington attracted more than 1 million visitors in 1962, according to the regional forester.

Skiing accounted for 95 per cent of winter sports activity.

Packaging May Be Costly Sometime

KINGSTON, R. I. (UPI)—If the supermarket checker rings up $20 for your week's groceries, it's a safe guess that $1.50 to $2 of the total is for packages.

Jim Bromley, consumer education specialist for the University of Rhode Island, says that on low-priced items, the cost of the package often is high in relation to the cost of the product. On a tube of toothpaste, for instance, the package cost may be 60 to 70 per cent of the cost of the product.

The safest time to drive a car is between 9 and 11 a.m., according to Dodge safety engineers.

What To Do 'Till The Doctor Comes

Emergencies strike with sudden swiftness. A slip, a fall, a collision is seldom announced. So be prepared. At least one member of every family should have a working knowledge of first aid. There are books on the subject and the American Red Cross gives classes where such information and training can be acquired. We recommend that you or someone in your household acquire the know-how. Another worthy recommendation is to maintain a supply of first-aid medications on hand at all times: antiseptic, gauze bandages, adhesive tape, alcohol, soothing creams, etc. The cost is small and we'll be glad to assist you in your selection.

"Never use self-polishing wax on wood floors!"

...says Henry M. Tobey, Research Director of the world's largest hardwood floor maker

"Did you know that most self-polishing waxes are made primarily of synthetic plastics? They are impossible to remove from wood floors without damaging the wood or the finish.

As a result, layer after layer of old self-polishing wax piles up until your wood floor darkens and discolors.

The right way to take care of wood floors is to use either Bruce Cleaning Wax or Bruce Floor Cleaner. Both contain a removable liquid paste wax and waterless wood floor cleaner. They clean; remove the old wax; and leave a rich, new coat of paste wax protection—all at the same time.

If you like a heavy coat of wax, use Bruce Cleaning Wax. When lighter waxing is desired or floors are badly soiled, you'll want Bruce Floor Cleaner. It's the right way to keep your wood floors clean and bright. Easier, too."

DAR Hears Report of Naval Importance in General War

Capt. David McCampbell, USN, assistant deputy chief of staff, operations at North American Air Defense Command, spoke at the DAR State Convention Monday night on the "Role of the United States Navy in Nation Defense." He reported that:

"The Navy is driving at flank speed toward four targets: a tremendous expansion of the nuclear submarine fleet ... a sizeable increment of nuclear-powered carriers ... a brand new system of [illegible] highly technical apparatus for dealing with the threat presented by the Soviet submarine [illegible] and [illegible] a general program for replacing [illegible] World War II vessels before 'block' obsolescence overtakes the fleet between now and 1965 ...

"In recent months Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, former chief of naval operations, has pointed out the urgent need for a mobile general war deterrent," he said.

Burke went so far as to the [illegible] the outbreak of a general war it might well be that the Navy power at sea might be the only power left."

He described the merits of the carrier and Polaris submarine systems as a "blend of movements, dispersal, concealment, and versatility which buys time for retaliatory action and which separates retaliatory sources from our cities." He also pointed out the Navy's response to a challenge can vary "from a cautioning gesture to an atomic bomb."

Mrs. E. Roy Chesney, state regent, is presiding at all the business sessions of the DAR state conference at the Broadmoor Hotel. The morning session was taken up with reports of committees.

Luncheon at 12:30 Monday was sponsored by the DAR Good Citizens Committee, with Mrs. Kenneth Quale, Sr., of Ault presiding. Mrs. Quale is the national vice-chairman, Good Citizens, and supervises the contest in thirteen western states.

First prize of a $100 U.S. bond was awarded to Diane Bailey, of Estes Park, and the second place winner, Lora Like of Trinidad, received a $25 U.S. bond.

The National Society DAR is awarding a $[illegible] scholarship to the college of her choice to the winner of the national Good Citizens contest. These girls are all seniors in high school. Prof. Robert H. Buchanan, of Adams State College, Alamosa, gave the address.

After a short business session in the afternoon members adjourned to the Episcopal Chapel for the Hour of Remembrance. The call to remembrance was given by Mrs. Gordon H. Rowe, state chaplain, and the response led by Mrs. H. R. Gueck, state registrar.

A highlight of the conference banquet at 7 p.m. was music furnished by Lee White Pershus at the organ and Eugene McCleary, soloist. Selections by Mr. McCleary included Colorado compositions by the late Mattie M. Ferris Price, pioneer resident of the Pikes Peak Region.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

The top rack is about ten inches from the top of the door. This holds tall bottles such as alcohol and so forth and all dangerous items which should be kept out of the reach of children's hands.

The other racks are about 8 or 10 inches apart. These hold shampoos, suntan lotion, insect repellent, etc.

The lowest rack is used for extra soap, tooth paste and similar items. These racks come in all widths and can be purchased to fit any sized can or bottle.

These shelves should not be used for small bottles of pills, iodine, and tubes of ointment. They could fall over and roll off the shelves. —Helen C.

Dear Heloise:

The best hint I have found in your column is using soap to dispel detergent suds. Now, after I have washed my sink, I rub my sponge over the bar of hand soap and all of the detergent suds disappear down the drain. Before I read this I was writing complaint letters to cleanser manufacturers about their products. —Mrs. Charles F. Chevillon

Now, aren't you a doll to tell us? —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

How can one remove the stamp which is ironed on linens as a guide for embroidery work? Sometimes we do not completely finish this embroidery or do not wish to do the entire pattern. Also, linens are often given to us and we would like to remove the stamp without embroidering any of it. We would be most appreciative if anyone can tell us how to remove this. —Ide St. Geor

Did anyone ever find out how to remove it? If so, write to Heloise care of this paper. Please. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I save up about 6 or 8 large empty sardine cans and use them to make individual crusts for meat pies. Children love their own initials on the crust! The tins may be used over and over again. —Helen E. Bissmmeshe

Dear Heloise:

I spilled nail polish remover on my dining room rug. I immediately blotted the stained area, but in doing so, the rug pile seemed to dissolve and to stick to the rug. Upon drying, the area became very hard and brittle. What can I do? I cannot afford new carpeting. —Melissa

Dear Heloise:

I remove the bits of dough from my pastry board by sprinkling the board liberally with salt and rubbing it with a damp cloth.

When mixing pancake or waffle batter ... I use any container with a spout and just pour the batter on the grids instead of using a drippy spoon.

Kidney Transplant Still Works, 11 Months Later

BOSTON (AP)—Last April 5, accountant Melbourne Doucette Jr., 25, received a kidney transplanted from a dead man whose name Doucette doesn't know to this day.

Now, 11 months later, Doucette, father of two boys, works in a basement office in his Wakefield home and lives an almost normal life, except for daily check-up visits to a hospital.

Beneficiary of an historic surgical operation, Doucette now has lived longer than any other person in America after receiving a kidney from a dead man. A patient in France has survived 14 months.

He told about the operation — what little he remembers—after doctors at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital disclosed the transplant here at a news conference.

"They took me into the operating room about 8 o'clock one night, and I told them I wasn't supposed to have an operation," Doucette recalled.

"But they said, 'We've got a kidney and you're going to get it,' and then they gave me the needle."

Although the doctors won't tell him the name of the donor, Doucette says he believes from conversations with other patients that he was about 30 years old, a father like himself and that he died in the hospital.

Doucette has fixed up an office in the basement of his new home, installed an electric typewriter, adding machine and files and now all he needs is more clients. In his spare time he is paneling the cellar.

Colgate A Leader in Reducing New Cavities!

COLGATE'S ROLE IN NEW TEST FOR CAVITY REDUCTION

In October, 1960, a group of independent dental investigators set out to determine the value of Colgate's Gardol formula in reducing new cavities in the 7 to 17 year age group—the age when teeth are most vulnerable to decay. To make the test the most critical possible, the researchers chose to measure Colgate with its ingredient, Sodium N-Lauroyl Sarcosinate (Gardol), against the leading stannous fluoride toothpaste, which had previously shown effectiveness in cavity reduction. Hundreds of dental patients in the most cavity-prone age group were selected from the student body of a large school in the Southeastern United States. These students were then divided into groups and instructed to use exactly the same dentist-recommended brushing method. For the next two years, one group was to brush only with Colgate's exclusive Gardol formula. Another group only with the leading stannous fluoride toothpaste.

COLGATE'S CLINICAL ACHIEVEMENT IN CAVITY REDUCTION

At the end of two years—over half a million brushings later—supervising dentists carefully checked results, group-for-group, Colgate's Gardol formula against the stannous fluoride formula. So there would be no chance of human error, these dental records were then analyzed and compared by the most advanced electronic computing machines. Statistically, it was discovered that in this test* Colgate with Gardol had achieved the same low incidence of new cavities as the stannous fluoride formula. When you consider that the study was conducted among the most cavity-prone of all age groups, results achieved by the group brushing with Colgate are even more significant. This study—one of many planned to acquaint you and your dentist with the Colgate-Palmolive Company's continuing interest in dental hygiene—shows what today's Colgate Dental Cream can do in reducing tooth decay. Its results are wonderful assurance that even the youngest family member can brush with Colgate . . . in the complete program of oral hygiene dentists recommend.

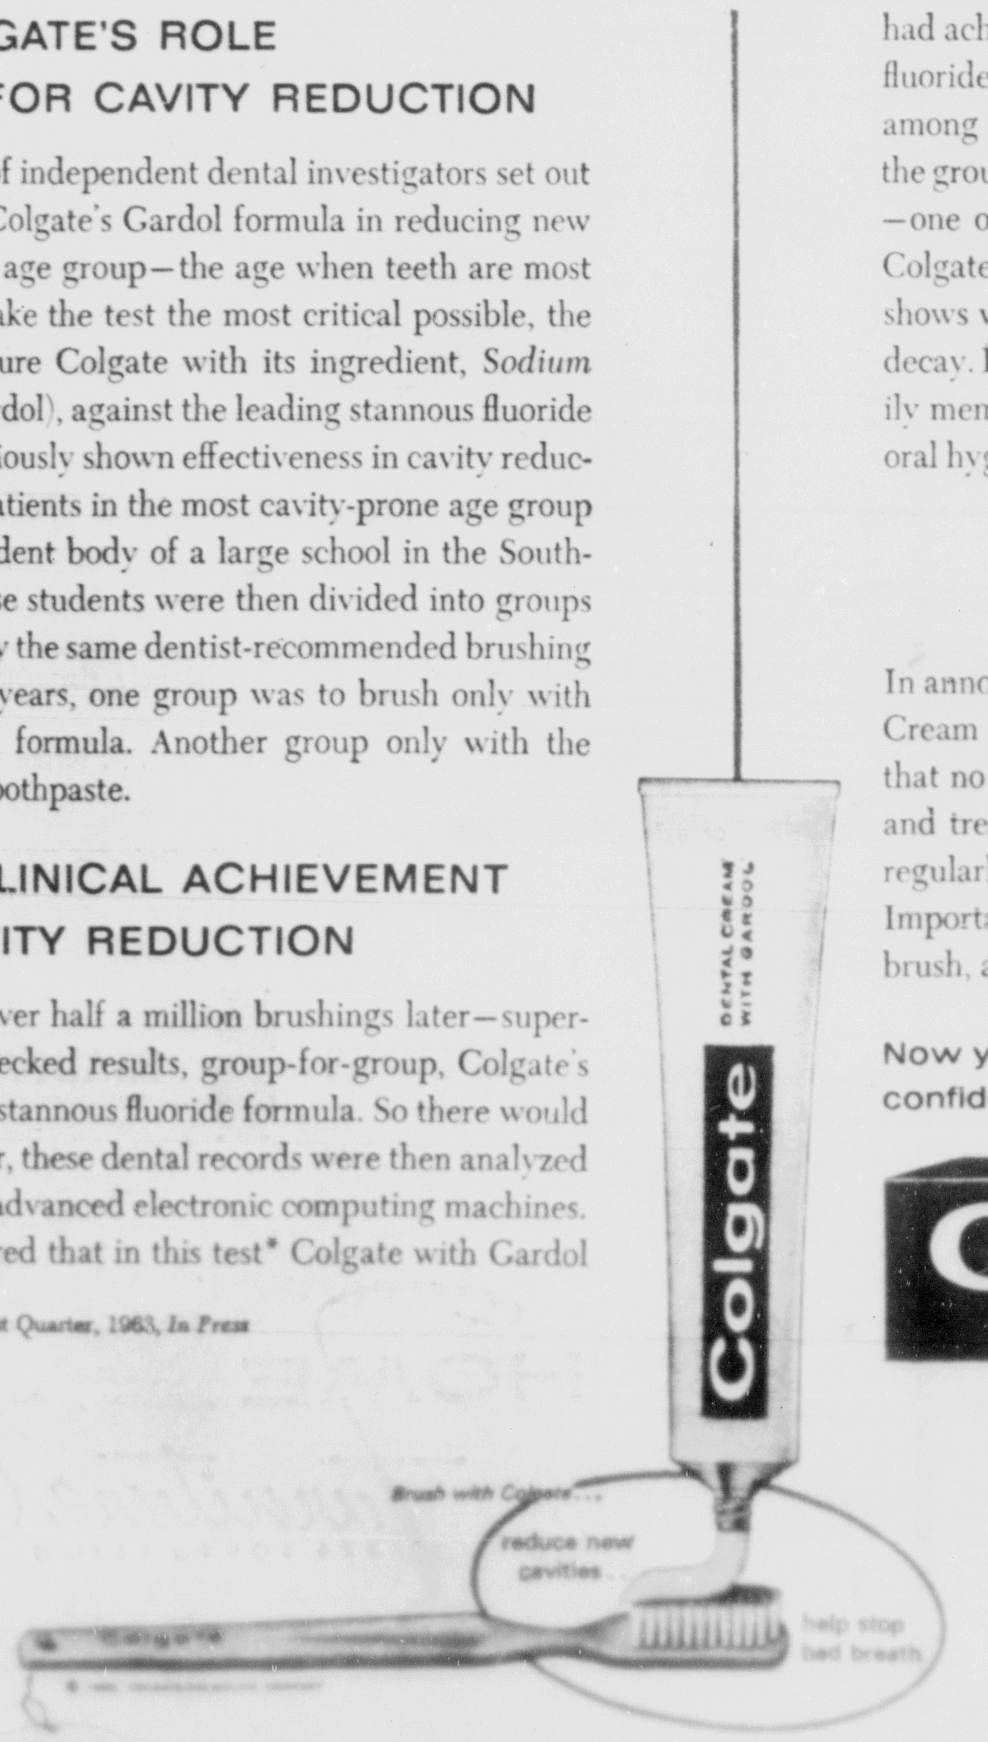
YOUR DENTIST'S ROLE IN CAVITY REDUCTION

In announcing the results of this study, the makers of Colgate Dental Cream emphasize their agreement with leading dental authorities that no toothpaste—fluoride or non-fluoride—can substitute for care and treatment of teeth by your family dentist. Seeing your dentist regularly is the most important part of any dental-health program. Important, too, is his advice on diet, as well as how to brush, when to brush, and how often to brush.

Now you can be a "one-toothpaste family" again with confidence in Colgate's clinically-tested Gardol formula!



Colgate helps stop mouth odor instantly for most people—has the between-teeth cleaning action of penetrating Gardol foam and the most mouth-refreshing toothpaste taste in the whole world!

New German Industry Flourishes in Ireland

By JOHN P. GALE

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Nuala O'Dea, 26, from an old Irish farming family, is a tiny and satisfied part of a German economic invasion rolling across her homeland.

Miss O'Dea works for a German factory in the sprawling industrial hinterland springing up around Shannon Airport. She starts at 8 a.m. in a brightly lit, air-conditioned factory block, takes orders from German bosses and earns $18.20 a week.

"I'm at least 3 pounds—$8.40—a week better off than in my last job as a waitress," she says. "I am also able to stay in Ireland. Until this job came along, I had made up my mind to emigrate, probably to America. There was not enough work for me on the farm."

German land investments have sent valued rocketing in some areas, good farms of 200 acres now cost more than twice the national average of $225 to $250 an acre. German demand has also pushed the prices of some residential holdings in County Cork to about 10 times their previous level—to $700 per acre.

Germans bid this month for about $30,000 worth of property in County Donegal. Much of it is farmland.

So far, the Irish government has stood off demands to curb the rate of investment. It is in fact trying to attract more industrialists, settling them in factories and paying state grants up to two-thirds of the total capital cost of building, site development and machinery.

There are benefits ranging from interest-free 7-year loans to a 10-year tax holiday on the profits of all new export industries. At Shannon, the tax holiday lasts until 1984 and raw materials enter the airport free of duty.

Twenty-four German industries have settled in the republic since 1959, attracted by these favorable terms and also the availability of a large low-cost labor pool. German industries are turning out on Irish soil such diverse products as ballpoint pens, carpets, cranes, grain driers, wallets, fork lift trucks and mouth organs.

Grants total $16.8 million since the government scheme got up steam in 1958. The German share is 28 per cent, Irish 25, British 16, American 10 and the rest 21 per cent.

Among critics of the German infiltration a Dublin economist said: "One trouble is they don't jolly their work people around, which is what we like to do over here. Nor are they so good at handling the unions. They're inclined to be paternalistic. And in their private lives, they tend to stick together in little German cliques."

Jack Lynch, Ireland's minister for industry and commerce, gave the reporter a differing view: "There were difficulties of language, initially, and difficulties of temperament. These have been steadily overcome.

"At the Liebherr (crane) factory, the Germans built a row of chalets along one of the lakes and lived there in a community. But I have heard no complaints they are not miring as much as one would expect with the local community."

Nuala O'Dea's boss is Anton Dahmen from Aachen. He is works manager of a factory at Shannon that turns out fine wire gauze for television screens, auto carbureters and pharmaceutical purposes.

Dahmen, 32, lives with his wife and 19-month-old baby in an apartment block constructed by Shannon Airport Development Co. Four other Germans are at the plant in supervisory categories.

"There are no cliques here," said Dahmen. "two of our Germans have Irish girl friends. I go to the chess club in the Shannon Community Hall and visit with Irish friends."

Dahmen said he had made a point of trying "not to bear down too hard" on his work force.

"They are more easily led than driven. Once they wanted alonger tea break. They got it. They wanted new stuff for the canteen—electric kettles and so on. They got that too.

"The big advantages of manufacturing here are the plentiful staff and our location. We are much nearer to our markets in the states and in England. We can meet an order from the U.S. in three days if the stuff is in stock."

"Never use self-polishing wax on wood floors!"
. . . says Henry M. Tobey, Research Director of the world's largest hardwood floor maker
"Did you know that most self-polishing waxes are made primarily of synthetic plastics? They are impossible to remove from wood floors without damaging the wood or the finish.
As a result, layer after layer of old self-polishing wax piles up until your wood floor darkens and discolors.
The right way to take care of wood floors is to use either Bruce Cleaning Wax or Bruce Floor Cleaner. Both contain a removable liquid paste wax and waterless wood floor cleaner. They clean; remove the old wax, and leave a rich, new coat of paste wax protection—all at the same time.
If you like a heavy coat of wax, use Bruce Cleaning Wax. When lighter waxing is desired or floors are badly soiled, you'll want Bruce Floor Cleaner. It's the right way to keep your wood floors clean and bright."

Civic Leaders Honored by Salvation Army

Two long-time civic leaders in Colorado Springs — C. C. Morris and Roy A. Davis — were honored Monday night for their service to the Salvation Army Advisory Board.

Each of the men, who have served as board members for more than 42 years, were presented awards of appreciation by Brig. Victor Newbould, divisional commander, Denver, at the annual dinner meeting of the board at the Antlers Hotel.

Morris, past president of the Exchange National Bank and now chairman of the bank's executive committee, has served as treasurer of the Salvation Army board since the present headquarters building was built in 1924.

Davis, who has worked with the Colorado State Board of Public Welfare since 1938, was also member-at-large on the board of the American Public Welfare Association in 1953 and 1954. In 1921 he served as speaker of the House in the Colorado legislature, and in 1927 was elected to the State Senate and later served as president pro-tem.

Some 140 persons attended the Salvation Army dinner, highlighted by a talk by Newbould on legacies, trusts and the Salvation Army program.

Newbould installed the asvisory board officers and new members who are: chairman, Judge Hunter Hardeman; vice chairman, Harold Whitney; secretary, Mrs. Helen O'Donnell; treasurer, C. C. Morris; Harry McWilliams, Byron L. Akers, Albert Bloom, Roy Davis, I. A. Isaac, Harry Lee Jr., Campbell F. Rice, E. R. Richardson, C. Keith Riddock, Gerald Shaw, Mrs. J. O. Shields, the Rev. Paul Towner, Carl Wangberg and Reed Whetstone.

Maj. and Mrs. Wilfred J. Mahy are corps officers.

Judge Hardeman was master of ceremonies for the event which included civic greetings by Mayor William Henderson; vocal selections by the Hit-N-Misses, ladies barbershop quartet; the annual report by Maj. Mahy; installation of advisory board officers and new members; instrumental selections by the Division Brass Ensemble; and invocation by the Rev. G. L. Edie, president, Ministerial Alliance and pastor of the First Evangelical United Brethren Church; and benediction by Lt. Col. M. Holt, chaplain, U.S. Air Force Academy.

Fountain School Grad Now Heads CBS Paris Bureau

Word has just been received here that Blaine Littell, who graduated from the Fountain Valley School in 1943, has been appointed chief of the CBS News Paris Bureau.

Littell has covered Africa for CBS News for more than two years and has been at the scene of all the recent stories, including Katanga, the Congo, Ghana, Ethiopia and Angola, for regular radio and television news broadcasts as well as such broadcasts as CBS Reports, "The Twentieth Century" and "Eyewitness." The Saturday Evening Post recently bought an article he wrote on Katanga.

Prior to his appointment as correspondent, Littell logged thousands of miles at home and abroad in quest of foreign and domestic news. He has criss-crossed the country as a CBS News reporter, a unit manager and a program producer. He went to Cuba early in 1959 to cover the early stages of Fidel Castro's revolution, and to Geneva in the fall of 1959 to co-ordinate CBS News operations for the ill-fated East-West foreign ministers conference.

Littell joined CBS News in 1952 as a writer. He had served in the United States Army during World War II, entering at the age of 18, and was awarded three battle stars in France and Germany. After his discharge at the age of 20, he attended Yale University, and later Columbia.

In 1947, Littell went to England to work in the British motion picture industry. While in Europe, he met Antoinette Francois of Geneva, Switzerland. They were married, and then they returned to the United States, where he went to work for the Denver Post.

After almost two years with the Post, Littell accepted an offer from Goldwyn Productions to go to Germany to write a movie script on the American occupation. After completing the script, he returned to New York where he joined the news staff of the Herald Tribune.

At CBS News, Littell's first reporting was on special events assignments for the CBS Radio Network's "The World Today." The assignment took him all over the country with a team composed of Robert A. Skedgell, then CBS Radio Director of Special Events and now Assistant General Manager, Radio News, and CBS News Correspondent Edward P. Morgan.

In the fall of 1954, the trio produced a series of eight special half-hour CBS radio network reports titled "Campaign '54." Littell became the narrator for the series, as well as the writer.

In 1955, Littell was appointed WCBS-TV News Bureau Manager. He produced a year-end show, and then conceived the idea of CBS News' Campaign Cavalcade, a roving unit of CBS News reporters and technicians which toured the country during the winter, summer and fall of 1956 covering the Presidential candidates.

Littell also took part in the original conception of the CBS Radio Network Peabody Award-winning program, "The World Tonight," as its producer.

Littell's family has made a distinguished contribution to American journalism and music. His great-great-grandfather, Eliakim, founded a magazine called "Littell's Living Age." His grandfather, Philip Littell, was a writer, essayist and editorial writer. Littell's father, Robert, now an editor of the Reader's Digest, also wrote drama criticism for the old New York World, and wrote for the New Republic. His uncle, Whittemore Littell, is at present head of the mathematics department at Fountain Valley school.

On his maternal side, Littell's great-grandfather, James G. Blaine, was governor of Maine, speaker of the House of Representatives from 1869 to 1875, a candidate for the presidency against Grover Cleveland in 1884; he served as secretary of State in President Benjamin Harrison's Cabinet from 1889 to 1892. Littell's grandfather was the distinguished conductor Walter Damrosch.

Genial British Consul Visits In Colorado Springs Monday

By JIM GLEN

Laurence P. S. L'Estrange, O.B.E. (order of British Empire) Denver's new British consul who visited Colorado Springs Monday, has a gloriously full moustache which brought a nostalgic twinge to this ex-member of the RAF.

"Raff types" as we were generally known as in war-time England, generally made it a point of honor to sprout and carefully nurture the largest, bushiest and most luxurious moustaches in the armed forces. Consul L'Estrange was also in the RAF and his moustache maintains the grand tradition tho he admitted it dated from an earlier period than his air force days.

He spent most of Monday with Mayor William Henderson. L'Estrange succeeds Consul Ian Adams who is being transferred to Washington, D. C. Adams is a Scot and his successor comes of Anglo — Irish parentage which occasionally makes observers not fully acquainted with the ramifications of the British scene, wonder if there are any Englishmen in the British Foreign Office.

L'Estrange is a genial, free-wheeling individual, several light years removed from the conventional idea of the aloof and stuffy British. His family come from Dublin and originally moved there from England during the time of Cromwell, an unpopular name in Ireland even today, as the consul ruefully admitted.

He had been with the British government since 1935 and served in several parts of the world including Venezuela, Caracas, Peru, the Phillipines and Spain. This is not his first visit to the United States. He was with the Consulate General in Chicago for two years.

During the war he was in the R. A. F. and flew with bomber command. For the last two years L'Estrange has been in London working in the Western Hemisphere Exports Division and headed the Latin American Division, a position he was eminently qualified to occupy due to his knowledge of South American countries and the Spanish language. He is married and has two grown-up sons. Mrs. L'Estrange will be joining the consul shortly.

When questioned about the recent Common Market fracas he said "It was a blow, but not a fatal one." One thing it had done, he continued, was to make trade between Great Britain and the United States assume a greater importance.

L'Estrange said this was his first visit to Colorado and described it as "absolutely lovely." Golf, riding, shooting and fishing are his hobbies and in that order.

Earlier Monday the consul visited NORAD and the Air Force Academy which made a considerable impression on him. He ended the interview by saying with a warm sincerity which should please Coloradoans, "I hope to spend many happy years here."

Civic Players Present Comedy Of Quiet Humor

By JOHN FETLER

A comedy of quiet humor, involving two sisters, a baby and a few other characters in a picture of 1914 urban Americana, is "Farewell, Farewell Eugene," launched by the Civic Players Monday night at the Fine Arts Center, to continue the rest of the week.

The characters are cast with interesting contrast: E. J. Sprague as the staunch, stern and controlled Gertrude, the main wheel of the personages, who nevertheless is susceptible to a change of heart; Her sister Minerva, played with usual effervescence by Pat Bearthrong; Peonie Povis, played with proper emotionalism by Wini Pyle; and Chuck Davis, played with the usual exhuberance by Wayne Roper. The other players included Sharon Sprague, Mickie Tucker, Russ Mickelson and C. W. Smart.

The subject of the quiet humor is that of the shattering of an outworn and unrealistic ideal, and the coming to terms with reality, even if it is in a basement apartment in a brownstone house somewhere in Manhattan late in 1914.

Some fairly familiar characters are in the background, without appearing: The "Father," who was a minister, now dead; the brother, somewhere in Africa serving a good cause, but, as it turns out, more like a sailor than a missionary; and so forth, in stock descriptions and stock characterizations by the actors which fall into well-worn patterns of Americana, to illustrate the "message."

Kidney Transplant Still Works, 11 Months Later

BOSTON (AP)—Last April 5, accountant Melbourne Doucette Jr., 25, received a kidney transplanted from a dead man whose name Doucette doesn't know to this day.

Now, 11 months later, Doucette, father of two boys, works in a basement office in his Wakefield home and lives an almost normal life, except for daily check-up visits to a hospital.

Beneficiary of an historic surgical operation, Doucette now has lived longer than any other person in America after receiving a kidney from a dead man. A patient in France has survived 14 months.

He told about the operation — what little he remembers—after doctors at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital disclosed the transplant here at a news conference.

"They took me into the operating room about 8 o'clock one night, and I told them I wasn't supposed to have an operation," Doucette recalled.

"But they said, 'We've got a kidney and you're going to get it,' and then they gave me the needle."

Although the doctors won't tell him the name of the donor, Doucette says he believes from conversations with other patients that he was about 30 years old, a father like himself and that he died in the hospital.

Doucette has fixed up an office in the basement of his new home, installed an electric typewriter, adding machine and files and now all he needs is more clients. In his spare time he is paneling the cellar.

The kidney transplants were pioneered at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Dr John P. Merrill, who has had a prominent role in the operations, said 61 transplants have been done at the hospital and 20 recipients survived. The first seven patients died but four of the last six survived.

Colgate A Leader in Reducing New Cavities!

COLGATE'S ROLE IN NEW TEST FOR CAVITY REDUCTION

In October, 1960, a group of independent dental investigators set out to determine the value of Colgate's Gardol formula in reducing new cavities in the 7 to 17 year age group—the age when teeth are most vulnerable to decay. To make the test the most critical possible, the researchers chose to measure Colgate with its ingredient, Sodium N-Lauroyl Sarcosinate (Gardol), against the leading stannous fluoride toothpaste, which had previously shown effectiveness in cavity reduction. Hundreds of dental patients in the most cavity-prone age group were selected from the student body of a large school in the Southeastern United States. These students were then divided into groups and instructed to use exactly the same dentist-recommended brushing method. For the next two years, one group was to brush only with Colgate's exclusive Gardol formula. Another group only with the leading stannous fluoride toothpaste.

COLGATE'S CLINICAL ACHIEVEMENT IN CAVITY REDUCTION

At the end of two years—over half a million brushings later—supervising dentists carefully checked results, group-for-group, Colgate's Gardol formula against the stannous fluoride formula. So there would be no chance of human error, these dental records were then analyzed and compared by the most advanced electronic computing machines. Statistically, it was discovered that in this test* Colgate with Gardol had achieved the same low incidence of new cavities as the stannous fluoride formula. When you consider that the study was conducted among the most cavity-prone of all age groups, results achieved by the group brushing with Colgate are even more significant. This study—one of many planned to acquaint you and your dentist with the Colgate-Palmolive Company's continuing interest in dental hygiene—shows what today's Colgate Dental Cream can do in reducing tooth decay. Its results are wonderful assurance that even the youngest family member can brush with Colgate . . . in the complete program of oral hygiene dentists recommend.

YOUR DENTIST'S ROLE IN CAVITY REDUCTION

In announcing the results of this study, the makers of Colgate Dental Cream emphasize their agreement with leading dental authorities that no toothpaste—fluoride or non-fluoride—can substitute for care and treatment of teeth by your family dentist. Seeing your dentist regularly is the most important part of any dental-health program. Important, too, is his advice on diet, as well as how to brush, when to brush, and how often to brush.

Now you can be a "one-toothpaste family" again with confidence in Colgate's clinically-tested Gardol formula!

By JOHN P. GALE

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Nuala O'Dea, 26, from an old Irish farming family, is a tiny and satisfied part of a German economic invasion rolling across her homeland.

Miss O'Dea works for a German factory in the sprawling industrial hinterland springing up around Shannon Airport. She starts at 8 a.m. in a brightly lit, air-conditioned factory block, takes orders from German bosses and earns $18.20 a week.

"I'm at least 3 pounds—$8.40—a week better off than in my last job as a waitress," she says. "I am also able to stay in Ireland. Until this job came along, I had made up my mind to emigrate, probably to America. There was not enough work for me on the farm."

German land investments have sent values rocketing in some areas; good farms of 200 acres now cost more than twice the national average of $225 to $250 an acre. German demand has also pushed the prices of some residential holdings in County Cork to about 10 times their previous level—to $700 per acre.

Germans bid this month for about $30,000 worth of property in County Donegal. Much of it is farmland.

So far, the Irish government has stood off demands to curb the rate of investment. It is in fact trying to attract more industrialists, settling them in factories and paying state grants up to two-thirds of the total capital cost of building, site development and machinery.

There are benefits ranging from interest-free 7-year loans to a 10-year tax holiday on the profits of all new export industries. At Shannon, the tax holiday lasts until 1984 and raw materials enter the airport free of duty.

Twenty-four German industries have settled in the republic since 1959, attracted by these favorable terms and also the availability of a large low-cost labor pool. German industries are turning out on Irish soil such diverse products as ballpoint pens, carpets, cranes, grain driers, wallets, fork lift trucks and mouth organs.

Grants total $16.8 million since the government scheme got up steam in 1958. The German share is 28 per cent, Irish 25, British 16, American 10 and the rest 21 per cent.

Among critics of the German infiltration a Dublin economist said, "One trouble is they don't jolly their work people around, which is what we like to do over here. Nor are they so good at handling the unions. They're inclined to be paternalistic. And in their private lives, they tend to stick together in little German cliques."

Jack Lynch, Ireland's minister for industry and commerce, gave the reporter a differing view. "There were difficulties of language, initially, and difficulties of temperament. These have been steadily overcome.

"At the Liebherr (crane) factory, the Germans built a row of chalets along one of the lakes and lived there in a community. But I have heard no complaints they are not mixing as much as one would expect with the local community."

Nuala O'Dea's boss is Anton Dahmen from Aachen. He is works manager of a factory at Shannon that turns out fine wire gauze for television screens, auto carbureters and pharmaceutical purposes.

Dahmen, 32, lives with his wife and 19-month-old baby in an apartment block constructed by Shannon Airport Development Co. Four other Germans are at the plant in supervisory categories.

"There are no cliques here," said Dahmen. "Two of our Germans have Irish girl friends. I go to the chess club in the Shannon Community Hall and visit with Irish friends."

Dahmen said he had made a point of trying "not to bear down too hard" on his work force.

"They are more easily led than driven. Once they wanted a longer tea break. They got it. They wanted new stuff for the canteen—electric kettles and so on. They got that too.

"The big advantages of manufacturing here are the plentiful staff and our location. We are much nearer to our markets in the states and in England. We can meet an order from the U.S. in three days if the stuff is in stock."

PRINCESS MARGE WON'T E AT PARIS PREMIERE

New York. — Elizabeth Taylor substituted for Princess Margaret at the Paris premiere of "Lawrence of Arabia." Since proceeds go to the British hospital in Paris, the princess had agreed to attend, but Prime Minister Macmillan took a dim view of England's Margaret stepping foot in de Gaulle territory, so Liz did the honors. The British Embassy in Paris gave a big party afterwards for the stars and members of the company — Peter O'Toole, Jack Hawkins, Alec Guinness, Omar Sharif and Sam Spiegel. Director David Lean missed the big do — he opened the picture in Brussels. The film was cheered, as it should be, at its first showing in Japan. The crown prince was in the audience. Incidentally, O'Toole just received the Variety club award as best actor of the year.

Danny Kaye will have no trouble filling an hour on TV every week next year. He could do 60 minutes of ad lib commercials and get more laughs than any other comedian, which is almost what he did when he joined me on Arthur Godfrey's radio show. We had a hilarious session, cut two records at one sitting —and woe is me, I don't even have a radio to tune it in. Danny did commercials as they've never been done, even by Godfrey. Before the show ended, Arthur was pleading, "Please, Danny, will you let me keep just one sponsor?" Kaye did everything but stand on his head — that must have slipped his mind. After a week in Chicago, he returns here for a month at the Ziegfeld Theater. He dropped by to case the joint and almost fainted at the sight of the dressing room he'll occupy. "It looked like a slum." Following his Ziegfeld stand he'll do a night in Buffalo for benefit of that city's symphony orchestra. Lucky he's young or he'd collapse.

Asked Godfrey when he'd be going west to make his motion picture debut. He had read "Distant Trumpet," which Jack Warner gave him last time he was on the coast. Says the story's enchanting but he didn't care much for the way it had been adapted for the screen. Mr. Warner ordered a rewrite.

Hard-to-get Duke Wayne will be guest of honor at the biggest bang-up party the Lambs club has ever given on April 6 at the Waldorf-Astoria, the only place in town big enough to hold all the people who want in. Frank Thomas, shepherd of the Lambs, was the one who tied up Wayne for the shindig. In the old days the Lambs with their gambols took to the road to tour leading cities. They always staged a parade with all the members marching behind John Philip Sousa, keeping time to his wonderful march "Stars and Stripes Forever" which was written for "El Capitan." The Lamb who got the biggest hand and had the largest number of admiring ladies waiting at his door when the parade was over was David Belasco, the man with the shock of white hair and the turned around collar.

Millie Considine lived it up in Palm Beach despite the fact that she wasn't feeling well. Finally had to go to Mayo's where her ailment was diagnosed as ulcers. From now on she'll have to watch her diet and take off 20 pounds. Millie, who loves parties almost as much as she loves her husband, Bob, has the miseries.

Carroll Baker agreed to attend the Minneapolis premiere of "How the West Was Won" if Metro's Si Seadler could go along. He knows how to keep stars happy — would that M-G-M had a hundred public relations men like him.

Si has loved Judy Garland from the old days. Every time she does something outstanding, he always writes her a note. She never replies but he keeps right on sending her valentines. Critic Alice Hughes took in the London opening of Judy's picture "I Could Go On Singing"; reports the picture is very good and Judy was in fine voice and fettle.

An occupant of a cottage at the Pioneer Courts, 155 Manitou Ave., received burns on his hands and face Monday following an explosion of a container of paint which was being heated in the oven.

When the oven door was opened, the blast occurred, injuring Williams and propelling flames into the kitchen.

About 20 members of the fire department answered the call and confined the fire to the kitchen and attic.

Fountain School Grad Now Heads CBS Paris Bureau

Word has just been received here that Blaine Littell, who graduated from the Fountain Valley School in 1943, has been appointed chief of the CBS News Paris Bureau.

Littell has covered Africa for CBS News for more than two years and has been at the scene of all the recent stories, including Katanga, the Congo, Ghana, Ethiopia and Angola, for regular radio and television news broadcasts as well as such broadcasts as CBS Reports, "The Twentieth Century" and "Eyewitness." The Saturday Evening Post recently bought an article he wrote on Katanga.

Prior to his appointment as correspondent, Littell logged thousands of miles at home and abroad in quest of foreign and domestic news. He has crisscrossed the country as a CBS News reporter, a unit manager and a program producer. He went to Cuba early in 1959 to cover the early stages of Fidel Castro's revolution, and to Geneva in the fall of 1959 to co-ordinate CBS News operations for the ill-fated East-West foreign ministers conference.

Littell joined CBS News in 1952 as a writer. He had served in the United States Army during World War II, entering at the age of 18, and was awarded three battle stars in France and Germany. After his discharge at the age of 20, he attended Yale University, and later Columbia.

In 1947, Littell went to England to work in the British motion picture industry. While in Europe, he met Antoinette Francois of Geneva, Switzerland. They were married and then they returned to the United States, where he went to work for the Denver Post.

After almost two years with the Post, Littell accepted an offer from Goldwyn Productions to go to Germany to write a movie script on the American occupation. After completing the script, he returned to New York where he joined the news staff of the Herald Tribune.

At CBS News, Littell's first reporting was on special events assignments for the CBS Radio Network's "The World Today." The assignment took him all over the country with a team composed of Robert A. Skedgell, then CBS Radio Director of Special Events and now Assistant General Manager, Radio News, and CBS News Correspondent Edward P. Morgan.

In the fall of 1954, the trio produced a series of eight special half-hour CBS radio network reports titled "Campaign '54." Littell became the narrator for the series, as well as the writer.

In 1955, Littell was appointed WCBS-TV News Bureau Manager. He produced a year-end show, and then conceived the idea of CBS News' Campaign Cavalcade, a roving unit of CBS News reporters and technicians which toured the country during the winter, summer and fall of 1956 covering the Presidential candidates.

Littell also took part in the original conception of the CBS Radio Network Peabody Award-winning program, "The World Tonight," as its producer.

Littell's family has made a distinguished contribution to American journalism and music. His great-great-grandfather, Eliakim, founded a magazine called "Littell's Living Age." His grandfather, Philip Littell, was a writer, essayist and editorial writer. Littell's father, Robert, now an editor of the Reader's Digest, also wrote drama criticism for the old New York World, and wrote for the New Republic. His uncle, Whittemore Littell, is at present head of the mathematics department at Fountain Valley school.

On his maternal side, Littell's great-grandfather, James G. Blaine, was governor of Maine, speaker of the House of Representatives from 1869 to 1875, a candidate for the presidency against Grover Cleveland in 1884, he served as secretary of State in President Benjamin Harrison's Cabinet from 1889 to 1892. Littell's grandfather was the distinguished conductor Walter Damrosch.

By JIM GLEN

Laurence P. S. L'Estrange, O.B.E. (order of British Empire) Denver's new British consul who visited Colorado Springs Monday, has a gloriously full moustache which brought a nostalgic twinge to this ex-member of the RAF.

"Raff types" as we were generally known as in war-time England, generally made it a point of honor to sprout and carefully nurture the largest, bushiest and most luxurious moustaches in the armed forces. Consul L'Estrange was also in the RAF and his moustache maintains the grand tradition tho he admitted it dated from an earlier period than his air force days.

He spent most of Monday with Mayor William Henderson. L'Estrange succeeds Consul Ian Adams who is being transferred to Washington, D. C. Adams is a Scot and his successor comes of Anglo — Irish parentage which occasionally makes observers not fully acquainted with the ramifications of the British scene, wonder if there are any Englishmen in the British Foreign Office.

L'Estrange is a genial, free-wheeling individual, several light years removed from the conventional idea of the aloof and stuffy British. His family come from Dublin and originally moved there from England during the time of Cromwell, an unpopular name in Ireland even today, as the consul ruefully admitted.

He had been with the British government since 1935 and served in several parts of the world including Venezuela, Caracas, Peru, the Philippines and Spain. This is not his first visit to the United States. He was with the Consulate General in Chicago for two years.

During the war he was in the R. A. F. and flew with bomber command. For the last two years L'Estrange has been in London working in the Western Hemisphere Exports Division and headed the Latin American Division, a position he was eminently qualified to occupy due to his knowledge of South American countries and the Spanish language. He is married and has two grown-up sons. Mrs. L'Estrange will be joining the consul shortly.

When questioned about the recent Common Market fracas he said "It was a blow, but not a fatal one." One thing it had done, he continued, was to make trade between Great Britain and the United States assume a greater importance.

L'Estrange said this was his first visit to Colorado and described it as "absolutely lovely." Golf, riding, shooting and fishing are his hobbies and in that order.

Earlier Monday the consul visited NORAD and the Air Force Academy which made a considerable impression on him. He ended the interview by saying with a warm sincerity which should please Coloradoans, "I hope to spend many happy years here."

Civic Players Present Comedy Of Quiet Humor

By JOHN FETLER

A comedy of quiet humor, involving two sisters, a baby and a few other characters in a picture of 1914 urban Americana, is "Farewell, Farewell Eugene," launched by the Civic Players Monday night at the Fine Arts Center to continue the rest of the week.

The characters are cast with interesting contrast. E. J. Sprague as the staunch, stern and controlled Gertrude, the main wheel of the personages, who nevertheless is susceptible to a change of heart; Her sister Minerva, played with usual effervescence by Pat Bearthrong. Peonie Povis, played with proper emotionalism by Wini Pyle, and Chuck Davis, played with the usual exhuberance by Wayne Roper. The other players included Sharon Sprague, Mickie Tucker, Russ Mickelson and C. W. Smart.

The subject of the quiet humor is that of the shattering of an outworn and unrealistic ideal, and the coming to terms with reality, even if it is in a basement apartment in a brownstone house somewhere in Manhattan late in 1914.

Some fairly familiar characters are in the background, without appearing. The "Father," who was a minister, now dead, the brother, somewhere in Africa serving a good cause, but, as it turns out, more like a sailor than a missionary, and so forth, in stock descriptions and stock characterizations by the actors which fall into well-worn patterns of Americana, to illustrate the "message."

Stewart W. Berland, 24, of 9 Metzler Place paid a $5 fine and costs for knowingly driving a non-registered vehicle March 4. Berland was cited by State Patrolman Robert DeFelice on West Mt. Washington Ave.

Market Trade Discloses 'Sidewise' Movement

Reflecting the lack of drive in either direction, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off a minimal .1 at 255.9 with both the industrials and utilities unchanged and the rails off .3.

Some of the stocks which were off sharply in yesterday's decline rebounded fairly well in what brokers called technical recoveries.

Group leadership, however, was conspicuous by its absence. Except for a slight preponderance of losers among rails, most sections of the market were thoroughly mixed.

The economic background included the seventh straight weekly rise in steel production, a gain in factory employment in mid-February for the first time in seven months, and a February decline in personal income.

The pace of trading, however, lagged even behind yesterday's slow rate and the Street was, apparently, still groping for some clue as to the next strong trend in prices.

Martin-Marietta was helped by the decision of the Army in selecting that company to develop a fast-intercept Sprint missile. The stock rose 1¼ to 21½ on a big block of 23,000 shares, holding most of the gain in later dealings.

Douglas Aircraft was down a point on a string of blocks in disappointment that it was not chosen. North American Aviation, also a candidate for the job, showed little immediate change.

Sunray DX Oil, yesterday's most active stock, recouped its 1-point loss of that session and once again was briskly traded. Leading oils showed narrow fractional changes, Jersey Standard easing.

Steels were virtually unchanged. Motors were irregular, with Ford up and Chrysler down both fractionally, and General Motors trading about unchanged.

Prices moved higher in slow trading on the American Stock Exchange. Martin-Marietta warrants rose more than a point. Other gainers included Mead Johnson, Louisiana Land, Holly Corp., General Plywood, Syntex, Virginia Dare, and Southern California Petroleum. Among losers were Argus, Speed-O-Print, and Pittsburgh Railways.

Corporate bonds were narrowly mixed. U. S. Government bonds showed little change.

Norman F. Kramer, 'Flying Cowboy', Died Sunday

Norman F. Kramer, known from coast to coast as the "Flying Cowboy," and a former resident of Colorado Springs, died Sunday at his home, 1712 Olive St., Denver, at the age of 52.

He was one of the best known airplane pilots in the country and always wore a cowboy hat when flying. He was owner of the Kramer Flying Service of Alamosa, Colo., and owned an ambulance equipped airplane with which he had made many mercy flights between the San Luis Valley and Denver.

He was the author of several articles on mountain flying and was one of the first pilots to operate a dustnig plane. He flew the plane that sprayed insecticides on the grounds used for the Boy Scout International Jamboree here two years ago and was employed by the state Fish and Game Department for work in mountain areas.

During World War II he guided rescue teams to the top of Little Baldy to survivors of a B-24 plane that crashed on the way to Peterson Field. In 1952 he again made flying history when he dropped food packages to trainmen snowbound on the top of Cumbres Pass. He was a member of the First Lutheran Church of Colorado Springs, Masonic Lodge No. 44 of Alamosa, southern Colorado Consistory of Pueblo, the Elks Lodge in Alamosa and the Q-B's, an aviation organization in Denver.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Joella Kramer, of Denver, a daughter, Mrs. Tell B. Blackwell and three grandchildren, Terry, Kathleen and Whit, of Charlotte, N. C.; his mother, Mrs. Mark Kramer, Colorado Springs; three sisters, Mrs. G. C. Myers, Dodge City, Kan., Mrs. George Schoenith, Lamar, Colo., and Mrs. Gerald Weberg, Colorado Springs; and a brother, Mark Kramer, Denver.

Funeral services will be held at the Olinger Mortuary, Colfax and Magnolia Streets, Denver, at 3 p.m. Wednesday, with Masonic rites. Burial will be in Eastlawn Cemetery, Denver.

Church. The Rev. Warren M. Hile will officiate.

A resident of Colorado Springs since 1921, Mrs. Perkins had been a member of First Christian Church since that time and directed the choir there for many years. She was a member of the American Music Society and the Colorado Springs Music Club. She was a long time member of Portia Club.

Born in Hopkinsville, Ky., Mrs. Perkins attended the Boston Conservatory of Music. The family moved to Colorado because of the health of Mr. Perkins, who died in 1934.

Survivors include two sons, Henry H. Perkins of Colorado Springs, Joseph C. Perkins of Denver; a daughter, Mrs. Curtis Gilmore of Lakewood, Colo., the former Grace Perkins, and four grandchildren.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — It seems unlikely that the February reaction fully discounted the very mild recession in business that appears to be under way, says Clark, Dodge & Co.

This raised the more important question of how much additional reaction is likely. It is comforting to see that the longer range bullish forces are building up. The chances of a more immediate, sizable tax cut are rising and capital spending, which is declining momentarily, has brithened its outlook for the second half of this year and for 1964.

Standard & Poor's warns that in view of the possibility the market may run into resistance as it approaches the February recovery highs, new buying should be undertaken more selectively. Apart from this note of caution concerning the immediate outlook, Standards remains optimistic on the market's longer-term potentials.

There is no telling just when the average investor will be back in the market—the guy who buys 10-25 shares of this or that to keep, says Colby & Co., Inc. But he will be, and when he is the rise will be sustained.

Extra Benefits Will Be Up to Love, Controller

DENVER (AP) — It will be up to State Controller Gray Spurlin and Gov. John Love—under a new bill—to decide how much employes at Colorado state institutions should get in extra benefits and how much they should be charged for them.

The legislature completed action Monday afternoon on the bill giving to Spurlin the responsibility for fixing these benefits—officially known as perquisites.

The benefits include such things as housing at state institutions and the privilege of obtaining good from commissaries.

The problem is an old and perplexing one which bobs up periodically. By the nature of their jobs some officials are required to live at state institutions—such as the wardens at the penitentiary and reformatory and game and fish personnel at trout rearing stations.

The final step in legislative action on the bill was final passage by the Senate. The measure now goes to the governor for consideration.

He commented to reporters that he thinks progress has been made in clearing up confusion over the perquisites for employes and he is hopeful of a final solution.

The Senate also gave its final approval and sent to the House a bill giving a boost to new own-your-own apartment projects in Colorado. The bill makes each apartment a separate unit as far as taxation is concerned.

Three Americans Are Attacked by Mob in Madrid

MADRID (UPI)—A mob attacked three Americans today as they were making photographs for a magazine story on hot dogs in downtown Madrid.

One of the three, his face swollen from beatings, asked for medical attention. He was Larry Shaw, an assignment photographer for Argosy magazine. Milt Macklin, managing editor of the magazine, was also among those attacked.

It was not clear what motivated the attack or the ensuing free-for-all in which an estimated 200 persons took part for 10 minutes.

The other American who was knocked down during the brawl was identified as public relations counselor Don Graham of Chicago, representing the National Hot Dog Council.

Two American airline hostesses also were caught in the fray but they were reported not hurt. They were Judy Gilbertson of Park Forest, Ill., and Bernadette Zola of New Kensington, Pa.

According to Macklin, someone shouted "capitalist press!" and knocked Shaw down. Macklin said "The cops seemed to do nothing to stop the people. The people were shouting something."

A bystander, Dominic de Leon, said:

"It was very confusing. I think they must have gotten the idea somehow that the photographs were going to be unfavorable to Spain."

DEATHS DECLINE

CHICAGO (UPI) — Since 1950, the death rate in middleaged men from all cardiovascular diseases declined 6 per cent, reports Dr. James V. Warren, president of the American Heart Association.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures came under heavy selling pressure most of the time today on the Board of Trade while speculators expressed surprise at the government decision to leave the price support unchanged at $2.25 a bushel for the 1963 crop.

The trade generally had expected an increase of at least five cents a bushel and some guesses were of a boost of 15 cents.

Independent Phone Firms Fewer But Flourishing

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The number of independent telephone companies has been shrinking but they flourish as never before.

Their assets, operatnig revenues, and number of phones in use all have grown at a faster rate than the giant in the field, the Bell System.

And the independents boast they serve twice as many communities, 11,000, as does Bell—it's just that she serves the biggest ones. For the independents the chief factors in recent years have been mergers, holding companies, mechanization, and growing pains.

Amongst them the 2,850 independent, operate 12,670,000 phones, 50 per cent more than in 1955, and 16 per cent of the total in use in the nation. They also boast they have as many phones as France and Britain together.

Part of the growth story is the flight to the suburbs from the big cities that the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. subsidiaries serve. The new customers all but swamped some of the small companies trying to accommodate them.

Combined operating revenues of the independents last year were $1.23 billion. The United States Independent Telephone Association says this is 213 per cent more than companies outside the Bell System made in 1951.

But the number of companies has dwindled from the 6,000 competing in the late 1940s. Mergers have accounted for most of this shrinkage. Sixteen holding companies have blossomed and this trend, too, seems likely to continue. Some 60 of the independents are publicly owned. Many of the smallest firms are family owned.

The Bell System has been busy growing on its own and because of the antitrust laws wasn't tempted to snap up any smaller companies. In fact, it says it welcomes their growth. Cooperation between the independents and the giant is widespread, so that a call placed with one can reach a phone operated by the other.

Mechanization has spread fast since 1956. The independents have 97 per cent of their phones dial operated. Bell has 99 per cent.

The independents have their own giant. General Telephone & Electronics has 34 operating companies and 4.7 million phones in the United States, in addition to subsidiaries operating in Canada, Haiti and the Dominican Republic. But only 124 of the independents have more than 10,000 phones each. And they range down to a 10-phone facility in Lucile, Idaho.

For all their spectacular gains since the war, they still face two major problems: rising operating costs and the financing of technological improvements to keep pace with the industry. Their solutions are likely to continue to be mergers and sale of stock to the public.

PRINCESS MARGE WON'T BE AT PARIS PREMIERE

New York — Elizabeth Taylor substituted for Princess Margaret at the Paris premiere of "Lawrence of Arabia." Since proceeds go to the British hospital in Paris the princess had agreed to attend but Prime Minister Macmillan took a dim view of England's Margaret stepping foot in de Gaulle territory, so Liz did the honors. The British Embassy in Paris gave a big party afterwards for the stars and members of the company — Peter O'Toole, Jack Hawkins, Alec Guinness, Omar Sharif and Sam Spiegel. Director David Lean missed the big do — he opened the picture in Brussels. The film was cheered as it should be at its first showing in Japan. The crown prince was in the audience. Incidentally, O'Toole just received the Variety club award as best actor of the year.

Danny Kaye will have no trouble filling an hour on TV every week next year. He could do 60 minutes of ad lib commercials and get more laughs than any other comedian, which is almost what he did when he joined me on Arthur Godfrey's radio show. We had a hilarious session, cut two records at one sitting —and woe is me, I don't even have a radio to tune it in. Danny did commercials as they've never been done, even by Godfrey. Before the show ended, Arthur was pleading, "Please, Danny, will you let me keep just one sponsor?" Kaye did everything but stand on his head — that must have slipped his mind. After a week in Chicago he returns here for a month at the Ziegfeld Theater. He dropped by to case the joint and almost fainted at the sight of the dressing room he'll occupy. It looked like a slum. Following his Ziegfeld stand he'll do a night in Buffalo for benefit of that city's symphony orchestra. Lucky he's young or he'd collapse.

Asked Godfrey when he'd be going west to make his motion picture debut. He had read "Distant Trumpet" which Jack Warner gave him last time he was on the coast. Says the story's enchanting but he didn't care much for the way it had been adapted for the screen. Mr. Warner ordered a rewrite.

Hard-to-get Duke Wayne will be guest of honor at the biggest bang-up party the Lambs club has ever given on April 6 at the Waldorf-Astoria, the only place in town big enough to hold all the people who want in. Frank Thomas, shepherd of the Lambs, was the one who tied up Wayne for the shindig. In the old days the Lambs with their gambols took to the road to tour leading cities. They always staged a parade with all the members marching behind John Philip Sousa, keeping time to his wonderful march "Stars and Stripes Forever" which was written for "El Capitan." The Lamb who got the biggest hand and had the largest number of admiring ladies waiting at his door when the parade was over was David Belasco, the man with the shock of white hair and the turned around collar.

Millie Considine lived it up in Palm Beach despite the fact that she wasn't feeling well. Finally had to go to Mayo's where her ailment was diagnosed as ulcers. From now on she'll have to watch her diet and take off 20 pounds. Millie, who loves parties almost as much as she loves her husband, Bob, has the miseries.

Carroll Baker agreed to attend the Minneapolis premiere of "How the West Was Won" if Metro's Si Seadler could go along. He knows how to keep stars happy — would that M.G.M. had a hundred public relations men like him.

Si has loved Judy Garland from the old days. Every time she does something outstanding, he always writes her a note. She never replies but he keeps right on sending her valentines. Critic Alice Hughes took in the London opening of Judy's picture "I Could Go On Singing," reports the picture is very good and Judy was in fine voice and fettle.

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Manager-Employee Relations

We have been engaged in reading some enlightening material provided by a friend.

The material is in the form of a pair of books, the first of which is, "The Human Side of Enterprise," by Douglas McGregor.

Mr. McGregor, who is with the School of Industrial Management of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been at no little pains to provide some insight into the intelligent use of human resources in business and industry.

So far as we have been able to discover, "The Human Side of Enterprise" is on solid economic grounds and, additionally, sheds some much needed light into the darker recesses of managerial practices.

To us, one of the most interesting bits of information offered was the thought that the typical old-style theory of management-employee relationships had at its base an economic flaw.

It is now understood by free market economists that value is always subjective. This is to say, man seeks to satisfy his "needs" or "wants" on the basis of what has been called "marginal utility." What he doesn't have, is what he wants. Once he has it, his desires shift.

The man who has not eaten for some time has a powerful desire for food. After his meal, food is perhaps the farthest thing from his mind.

When a man does not have a job, and hence is sans income, one of the overpowering ideas in his mind is that he would like an income and hence he seeks a job. But the moment he has the job, the chances are excellent that he will no longer value the job as highly as he did when he first obtained it.

It is fundamental, also, in the attitudes developed by persons who enter into lengthy contracts, especially as a time-payment purchaser or as a borrower of money. At the moment the contract is entered, or the money borrowed, the attainment of the desired goal is highly valued and the terms seem not only satisfactory but probably quite fair and reasonable.

But with the passing of time the value judgment of the time-purchaser or borrower shifts. Presently, unless he is very well educated indeed, an unlikely event in these troublesome times of educational emphasis on mass rather than matter, he may begin to feel that the contract which now binds him was unfair at the outset and that his creditor took advantage of him.

This factor of value shifting has a particularly piercing effect upon working men and their attitudes toward their jobs. For at the outset, it was probably true that the wage offered and the terms and conditions of the job looked inviting. Had it not been more inviting than idleness or penury the job would have gone begging. The person readily accepted the position in lieu of the alternate, to wit: no position.

But having obtained the position, unless certain things occur, the worker is very apt to begin thinking of management much as the borrower of money thinks of the banker who lent him money and thus befriended him.

And here is where old-style managerial theories have tended to come into collision with reality. For the job-seeker, while obtaining his job, wants someone to tell him what to do. He pictures himself as the willing and happy doer of another man's bidding. And management has been all too prone to retain that picture, even as the worker's view of himself has shifted.

For, in point of fact, man is always an individual and his value of himself is forever such that he does not wish to be managed by others. Even tho he has entered into a contract which specifies that he will "take orders," the willing acceptance of these orders probably will not result in the situation both manager and employe confidently anticipated at the outset.

The Magician

It's like the magician's ability to get you to focus your attention where he wants it, so that he can practice sleight of hand. The politician does the same thing, focusing your attention on the "benefit" he says he'll provide you, while at the same time, removing your money without your awareness of his intention and purpose.

Theories 'X' and 'Y'

Using the foregoing as a springboard, the theory of management has been called by Professor McGregor, "Theory X." This theory can be summed up by calling it "line control." Orders come from the top down. Control is vested at the top. It is the typical pyramidal construction of any political unit dispensing patronage and wallowing in power.

The employee, assuming that Theory X is in vogue at his place of work, soon finds himself out of touch with management, with policy, and even with his immediate co-workers, except on a gripe level. He feels that he is being treated like any other piece of working machinery. Someone else pushes his reflexes and he is expected to respond in a prescribed manner.

Altho this may have been his own happy picture of himself BEFORE he took the job, he is no longer satisfied with this picture. He HAS the job. Therefore, his value of the job has deteriorated. Now he wants to find some measure of fulfillment, as a person.

Some intelligent managers have recognized this trait altho they have probably not analysed it scientifically. They seek to treat their employees as "members of a team." They will say: "You are not working for me, you are working with the team or with me."

But mere verbal assurances, provided control still comes "down the line," may not engender a higher job evaluation in the mind of the worker. Yet many a manager is fearful of adopting any other procedure as the slightest variation from this theme might make it appear that he was "losing control" over the business.

McGregor's true contribution to employer-employee understanding is his assertion that the best manager is not so much a commander as he is a teacher. His function is not to tell the worker what to do nor even how to do it, so much as it is his function to awaken within the worker the recognition that the worker has something that is distinctly his own, and hence unique, which the firm wants and can use.

In short, the alert manager seeks to discover the worker's own drives and ambitions, and then tries to encourage the worker to recognize that his own ambitions are in harmony with the general objectives and policies of the firm. As the worker fulfills himself and grows in the company, the company grows with him.

It is a method of delegating responsibility and even authority so that control is largely vested in as many individuals as possible. And these individuals have become part and parcel of the whole operation of the firm and are as intensely interested in its success as they are in their own success. The two are no longer at variance; they become the same drive.

This process, contrary to "line control," could be referred to as "staff operation."

The institution of Theory Y cannot occur without some risks. But there is also a risk inherent in Theory X; to wit: that the worker will not find a place for himself in the firm, cannot make a place for himself, and will end, possibly, doing only those things he is told to do, and worse, doing them exactly as he is told. Implicit literal obedience to a bad policy can be as risky and as costly as misplaced trust in an untried recruit.

The worker who is able, because of managerial policies and practices, to translate his own abilities and talents into those of the firm, will be a happy worker and one who will not readily seek other employment.

Theory Y may not be the last word in the matter but it provides some timely insights into certain practices which many managers have accepted as a matter of course.

These Days

Crazy Like a Fox

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Whether there will be a new labor crisis in steel this coming spring is a question. But as the leaders of the United Steelworkers Union mull over their chances for wringing new concessions from the steel companies, they must be reflecting on a queer irony: Roger Blough, who was a scorned and derided figure last year when he was forced to back down on the matter of a price rise, now looms up as a farsighted man. He has made it tough for the steel union to make out a plausible case for any hefty increases in wages or benefits for 1963.

Even Mr. Blough's conservative friends were guilty of kicking him a year ago after President Kennedy had told him off. They talked pityingly about his "blunder" in public relations, his poor sense of "timing." "Roger Blah of U.S. Putty" was the phrase that William Buckley's conservative National Review pinned on him for alleged pusillanimity in failing to stand up in the face of Kennedy's withering blast.

It seemed to cross nobody's mind during the furore and hullabaloo that maybe Mr. Blough, in establishing the point that the steel industry needed profits in order to keep its plants up to snuff, was putting his company and his industry in a good bargaining position for future crises in labor relations. My own impression of Roger Blough, gained from past journalistic encounters with him, is that he is a cutie, a "phony hick" in the description which Arthur Krock once applied to a writer who pretended to a wide-eyed innocence in order to lure people into boastful confession.

INTERVIEW

Not so long ago I went to see Mr. Blough on an assignment: I was supposed to find out what the United States Steel Corporation was doing to combat the workings of Parkinson's law of bureaucratic "empire building" as it applied to ambitious department heads in the steel business. I got no good answers to my questions for the very good reason that Mr. Blough had no intention of admitting that there was any departmental featherbedding in U.S. Steel to counteract. Mr. Blough was a shrewd man, all right; before the interview was over he was trying to interest me in a story about the inequities of Minnesota state tax law as it applied to the mining of iron ore on the Mesabi Range.

Since Mr. Blough knows his own industry, he could not have been really sanguine last April that a price rise could have been made to stick for very long. No business that is operating a good deal short of capacity will refuse to shade its prices in order to attract customers. When machinery is standing idle, the stated—or "administered" — price is one thing, and the actual price at the moment of dealing is another. Mr. Blough is just as much aware of this rule of competition as any man alive.

ACCOMPLISHMENT

So the scheduled steel prices would probably have been broken even if President Kennedy had kept a civil tongue in his head. Nevertheless, the gesture on the part of U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and other companies was worth the making. In the first place, it succeeded in calling wide attention to the fact that industry must find some valid method of financing the modernization of decrepit manufacturing facilities. Once he had turned thumbs down on higher steel prices, President Kennedy could hardly refuse to listen to the corporations' plea for a more lenient depreciation policy, and some ultimate relief from the 52 per cent tax on corporate profits.

Beyond this, Mr. Blough accomplished another thing: he put the United Steelworkers Union in a bad position to ask for a big wage increase this year or next. Should the Kennedy administration seem about to sanction a general wage increase in steel for 1963 or 1964, it would certainly be assailed with loud cries of favoritism. When Kennedy refused to countenance a rise in steel prices, he based his decision on a general stand against inflation. He can hardly shift his ground this year without risking the charge of inconsistency, mental dishonesty, and craven truckling to the labor vote. And it is no less a person than Roger Blough who has managed to tie the President's hands.

A yokel, this Roger Blough? Would that you and I could be so clever.

Letters will not be published without the name and address of the writer. Letters must be received at least two days before publication.

The statements and opinions expressed in this column are those of the contributors and do not necessarily express opinions or convictions held by this newspaper.

MULTI-REPLY

To the Editor:

To Mrs. Sackschewsky and Mrs. Morrell: A vote of thanks to you ladies for having the intestinal fortitude to express your opinion and your support of my letter. I feel that too many military personnel are sometimes a little cautious in expressing your opinions, but I feel that you ladies did a fine job.

I will not make this letter too long as I can say all I plan to in a few short sentences.

To you, Mrs. Clark, and to you, Mr. Weir, I recommend that you read my letter over again as I do not feel that you digested the letter and you also proved my point in stating once people get out of the services all they do is brag about how tough they had it. I suppose in a few days I should get a reply from the veterans of the Indian Wars, Civil War, Spanish-American War who probably drew considerably less pay than either you, Mr. Weir, or your husband, Mrs. Clark.

I did not complain about how tough soldiers have it today. I only asked that the soldier and Armed Forces members be paid a wage on the level with wages paid to Civil Service workers and other federal employees.

Mrs. Clark, I think that you should check your figures again as the $50 that you say you lived on was paid to service members to assist in supporting their dependents. For people that accept this free housing out here at Carson, are only required to give this allowance back to the government. So, Mrs. Clark, please do a little research before you go into orbit next time.

Mr. Weir, I had a father in the First World War who died two years ago and a contributing factor to his death was the mustard gas used in World War I. I also know how much he was paid and also know that this was about 46 years ago. Don't you think the wages should have gone up just a little bit?

As for having a peacetime Army, missiles can be shot across oceans, planes can fly across oceans, submarines can lurk around our shores. Do you think you need an Armed Forces? Just who in hell do you think will take the force of the attack until forces can be mobilized? Read my first letter again and ask yourself if your tax money is wasted. I can think of many other things that contribute less to your personal safety that tax funds are spent for. We are only asking for a fair shake.

QUOTES AND QUIPS

To the Editor:

Human Events gives up this quaint little item on "Quotes" from Kennedy. Here is his budget message, with comments from the sidelines:

J.F.K. — "I have felt obliged to limit severely my 1964 expenditures proposals. . ."

Comment: What would have been the total if J.F.K. had NOT felt obliged to LIMIT SEVERELY his 1964 expenditures proposals?

J.F.K. — "I mean to insure that in each of the various federal programs, objectives are achieved at the lowest possible cost. . I urge the Congress to enact promptly legislation. . .to provide federal aid to help urban areas solve their mass transportation problems."

Comment: This program will COST MANY BILLIONS once it gets into full swing.

J.F.K. — "I again recommend strongly that the Congress establish a Department of Urban Affairs and Housing."

Comment: MORE BILLIONS!

J.F.K. — "I am. . .again proposing health insurance for aged persons, to be financed mainly thru the social security system, but with benefits for those not covered by social security to be paid from regular appropriations."

Comment: FIRST year's cost ONE BILLION DOLLARS. Once the full health program really desired by the liberals has been put into operation, its tax cost is expected to reach 20 to 25 BILLIONS a year!

J.F.K. — "Legislation is recommended to create a National Service Corps to help by example to strengthen the volunteer spirit in the provision of social services in our local communities."

Comment: The Bureau of the Budget can give no specific figure for a National Service Corps appropriation because they say the amount is "so small it is not worth mentioning" — original estimates range from $4.2 to $6.5 million. But you can be sure that in a few years it will run to scores of millions.

Comment: Noted educationists privately say they hope federal aid to education will reach $20 billion a year in a short time.

J.F.K. — "This budget has been prepared with special attention to employment trends in the federal government. Requests for additional jobs have been reduced or denied wherever possible."

Comment: The number on the federal payroll climbed 145,000 during J.F.K.'s first two years. Civilian total now is 2.5 million. Despite his words about "reduction" only 72 hours later J.F.K. requested 36,500 new federal civilian positions for the fiscal year beginning July 1st!

MANEUVERS

To the Editor:

An "immediate release" from the office of that sterling patriot Congressman James B. Utt calls attention to the bugle call of "Exercise Water Moccasin III" which name is deadly significant of the mysterious military maneuvers that have just started in a 2,500-square mile area just south of Savannah, Ga. These unheralded, surreptitious military maneuvers will include the participation of sixteen foreign allied nations and involves guerrilla warfare, psychological warfare and counter-insurgency.

The foreign guerrilla troops are to try to invade the mythical country of "Claxtonia" and take it over. The inhabitants of the area are supposed to take sides and house, feed and transport the guerrillas to ambush sites. Signs have been posted thruout the area in five different languages and there will be foreign observers and a U.N. contingent to record the effects and results on the public. These maneuvers are expected to last at least three weeks.

There has been a large contingent of bare-footed Africans moved into Cuba for training in guerrilla warfare but it cannot as yet be determined if they are to be used in the Georgia maneuvers. It would be interesting to learn why the Internationalists are carrying out their threatening military experiment in the State of Georgia, the home of One-Worlder Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution. Editor and Columnist McGill is also listed as a member of the Internationalists' ultra-secret Bilderberg Group, which group held their first meeting in America on St. Simon's Island off the coast of Georgia (February 1957) clothed in real hush! hush!

Congressman Utt stated: "It is my belief that this operation comes squarely under Article 43 of the United Nations Charter. This, of course, will be vehemently denied by the State Department, as was everything else that happened in Cuba, the truth notwithstanding. — Instead of bringing peace to the world, the U.N. has brought war, and it has brought disgrace upon the United States."

Kennedy's Tax Cut Not What It Seems

By OSCAR COOLEY
Professor of Economics
Ohio Northern

President Kennedy's proposed tax cut has been greeted with skepticism. People sense that it would not be a real reduction in the burden of government at all. Therefore, why call it a tax cut?

The real burden of cost of government is the total wealth which the government takes out of the economy and consumes, depriving the people of that wealth. It is the steel in the form of warships and guns, the labor of the men who are drafted and of the workers who are hired by the government, the land that is taken over for government use, etc. It is not the money that is taxed away from the people but it is all the wealth that is bought with that money and with other money that is manufactured by the government. This is the real "take."

Does Kennedy propose to reduce this take? Indeed he does not. On the contrary, he proposes to increase it. He proposes to take $98,800,000,000 worth of such wealth next year, which is more than the United States government has ever before taken in any one year, and which is $11,900,000,000 more than he expects the government to receive in revenue.

How would the Treasury pay for this extra $11,900,000,000 worth of wealth? By borrowing, of course. To the extent that the Treasury borrows by selling bonds to people and firms, he will receive cash. This will be money taken out of the economy, like taxes. However, this will not be enough; the Treasury will also have to sell bonds to the commercial banks, not for cash but for bank credit. This will be newly created money. It will dilute the money in circulation, just as water poured into a can of milk dilutes the milk. To the extent that the government "borrows" from the commercial banks and spends for goods and services, it takes wealth from the economy and gives nothing in return. This is a kind of "taxation."

Thus, to "cut taxes," as the President urges, and at the same time to spend even more than before, getting that more by borrowing, is not to reduce the burden on the American people but rather to increase it.

This can readily be seen if we imagine a 100 per cent tax cut, accompanied by no reduction in government spending. Then no taxes would be collected, but does this mean the cost of government would be totally removed from the backs of the people? Of course it does not. The people would be contributing just as much real wealth that is, goods and services, to the government as before. The real cost of government is measured by the total of government expenditures, not taxes.

Money is very useful stuff, but it is not real wealth. It is merely a token of wealth, as a bus token is a token of a bus ride.

President Kennedy is proposing a tax cut but he is not proposing any lightening of the burden of government. Quite the contrary. His all-time record budget of $98,800,000,000 is a proposal that the burden of maintaining the U.S. government during the coming fiscal year be increased some $4,500,000,000, not reduced.

He tries to justify this proposal by saying that to reduce tax rates will stimulate business. The more business will be done, and more income made by both firms and persons. Income being the principal base of federal taxes, the more income the more tax revenue. Even tho tax rates would be lower, applied to a larger tax base they would, within two or three years, Kennedy predicts, yield the same or a higher total tax revenue.

Will it work out? It probably will not, for the reason already stated. The real burden of government, which hangs around the neck of business like a millstone, is not to be lightened by the Kennedy "tax cut" and hence there will be no stimulating effect on business. The tax base will not increase as the President believes and hence the tax revenues will not increase.

The only thing that will increase will be the government debt, and the only thing that will be stimulated will be inflation. Every dollar dreamed out of thin air and poured into the existing stock of dollars dilutes that stock, that is, "inflates" the quantity of dollars and reduces the value of each.

If President Kennedy really wanted to cut the tax burden, he would cut government expenditures, thus reducing the amount of real wealth which the government siphons out of the economy. This having been done, whether Congress cut tax rates or not would not matter one whit. If tax rates remained high the Treasury would accumulate a surplus, which would be returned to the economy by paying part of the government debt. If tax rates were reduced the money would be left in taxpayers' pockets. In either case the burden on the economy would be lightened, but it would be lightened by the reduction of government expenditures, not by tinkering with tax rates.

It is sheer, demagogical deception to pretend that manipulating the tax rates is going to benefit the American economy.

Back to Tristan da Cunha

By RUSSELL KIRK

To the considerable annoyance of certain people who want everybody to be precisely like everybody else, the 260 natives of the island of Tristan da Cunha have decided to return to their remote island in the South Atlantic. You may recall, gentle reader, that late in 1961 these folk were transported from their island to urban England, after a volcanic eruption had destroyed their homes.

It is odd that the British officials settled these hardy islanders in the outskirts of London, where they found life intolerable. They are unmachined people, fishermen and crofters; their wives weave woolens. It might have been possible to establish them satisfactorily in the Hebrides, Orkneys, or Shetlands, off the Scottish coast, where climate and mode of existence would have been nearly identical with life in Tristan da Cunha.

Anyway, their volcano having subsided, the English-speaking, swarthy race will return to their home amidst the wastes of the sea. There they are their own masters, keep their own hours, know no crime, and are safe from demon television and the arrogant automobile. In Tristan, says one of their young men, "A men can come to grips with his soul and his Creator."

Among English - speaking folk, only the descendants of the mutineers of the "Bounty" on Pitcairn Island in the South Pacific, lead an existence so isolated. Creature comforts are gradually luring islanders to the cities, or at least to mainland communities.

There is talk now of a total evacuation of the Gaelic-speaking people of the cliff-bound Aran Islands, off the western coast of Ireland. St. Kilda, the most remote inhabited spot in the North Atlantic, had her population removed 35 years ago — tho her islanders had dwelt there before the memory of man. In the Pentland Firth, between Scotland and Orkney — the wildest water in the world — the island of Stroma was evacuated less than three years ago; one can see, standing on the boulder-strewn shore at John o' Groats, the Stroma village still standing on the rocky spine of the island — now inhabited only by ghosts.

One gets some flavor of these deserted islands' eerie character from an enchanting book by Mr. T. E. White, "The Godstone and the Blackymore." White, seeking for a pagan effigy said to be concealed on such an island off western Ireland, tried to live for a fortnight in the only sound hut remaining in one of these evacuated ancient places, but tho he was only a mile from the mainland, the uncanniness of the island was too much for him, and he got himself taken off, after a single night.

Once I myself lived for a month in the wonderful Isle of Eigg, in the Hebrides, which then had a hundred inhabitants — but now, a decade later, retains only fifty, I am told. Even with that many comparative neighbors, Eigg seemed weird enough: in the eighteenth century, it had 500 souls and more. It is well that some of mankind should still live in awe and wonder: so I send my love and admiration to Tristan da Cunha.

Bids for a Smile

A Texan and an Oklahoman got into an argument concerning the relative state.

Texan: "Oklahoma is for the birds. In fact, it's nothing but an outlying province of Texas."

Oklahoman: "That can't be, because no one has ever heard of a state yet that could outlie Texas."

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 171: "What is the real meaning of laissez faire?"

There is much confusion about the real meaning of laissez faire. Some people contend that it means "no order," that industry is permitted to rob and deprive others of their inalienable rights.

There is considerable confusion as to the origin of this phrase, but the Encyclopaedia Britannica says, "The most probable origin of the phrase is the well-known reply of the manufacturer Legendre to Colbert who asked what he could do for industry: Laissez-nous faire (Let us alone)."

Colbert was a high man in France. He was born in 1619 and died in 1683. He was the chief power under Louis XV. He recognized the great corruption in France and tried to correct some of it, but he believed in government interference with creative energy.

The real meaning of laisser faire or laissez faire passer or alter means to "let do," "to let pass," "to let move." And to "let do," answering the question, means "let create." It doesn't mean, "Let us initiate force against our opponents." It might mean, "Let us use defensive force against our opponents," but never does it mean to initiate force, as a lot of the planners and pseudo-economists contend it means. It is pure voluntaryism. It is the exchange of goods for equal value, where both parties believe they are benefited. The answer to the question, "What can the government do to help industry?" could not have meant anarchy or chaos.

It not only means, "Let us create," but it also must mean, "Let us move our product, and let individuals move where they are most needed." That does away with immigration restrictions.

Bastiat said, "Where goods do not cross borderlines (because of protective tariffs) soldiers will." This means that you'll have wars.

If we had true laissez faire, we wouldn't have long periods of unemployment, we wouldn't have one continuous war after another; our standard of living would be much higher.

It is of the utmost importance that people begin to understand what private property means. Laissez faire means respecting private property.

We will attempt to answer any question pertaining to the means used to improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth. The means, of course, predetermine the results.

[M]arket Trade Discloses [']Sidewise' Movement

[Re]flecting the lack of drive in [ei]ther direction, the Associated [Press] average of 60 stocks at noon was off a minimal .1 at 255.9 with both the industrials and utilities unchanged and the rails off .3.

Some of the stocks which were off sharply in yesterday's decline rebounded fairly well in what brokers called technical recoveries.

Group leadership, however, was conspicuous by its absence. Except for a slight preponderance of losers among rails, most sections of the market were thoroughly mixed.

The economic background included the seventh straight weekly rise in steel production, a gain in factory employment in mid-February for the first time in seven months, and a February decline in personal income.

The pace of trading, however, lagged even behind yesterday's slow rate and the Street was, apparently, still groping for some clue as to the next strong trend in prices.

Martin-Marietta was helped by the decision of the Army in selecting that company to develop a fast-intercept Sprint missile. The stock rose [illegible] to 21½ on a big block of 22,000 shares, holding most of the gain in later dealings.

Douglas Aircraft was down a point on a string of blocks in disappointment that it was not chosen. North American Aviation, also a candidate for the job, showed little immediate change. [illegible]

Prices moved higher in slow trading on the American Stock Exchange. Martin-Marietta was [illegible] point. Other gainers included Mead Johnson, Louisiana Land, Holly [illegible], General Plywood, Syntex, Virginia Dare, and Southern California Petroleum. Among losers were Argus, Speed-O-Print and Pittsburgh Railways.

Corporate bonds were narrowly mixed. U. S. Government bonds showed little change.

Extra Benefits Will Be Up to Love, Controller

DENVER (AP) — It will be up to State Controller Gray Spurlin and Gov. John Love—under a new bill—to decide how much employes at Colorado state institutions should get in extra benefits and how much they should be charged for them.

The legislature completed action Monday afternoon on the bill giving Spurlin the responsibility for fixing these benefits—officially known as perquisites.

It said, however, the governor must approve before any regulation by the controller can become effective.

The benefits include such things as housing at state institutions and the privilege of obtaining food from commissaries.

The problem is an old and perplexing one which bobs up periodically. By the nature of their jobs some officials are required to live at state institutions—such as the wardens of the penitentiary and reformatory and game and fish personnel at trout rearing stations.

The final step in legislative action on the bill was final passage by the Senate. The measure now goes to the governor for consideration.

He commented to reporters that he thinks progress has been made in clearing up confusion over the perquisites for employes and he is hopeful of a final solution.

The Senate also gave its final approval and sent to the House a bill giving a boost to new own-your-own apartment projects in Colorado. The bill makes each apartment a separate unit as far as taxation is concerned.

Three Americans Are Attacked by Mob in Madrid

MADRID (UPI) —A mob attacked three Americans today as they were making photographs for a magazine story on hot dogs in downtown Madrid.

One of the three, his face swollen from beatings, asked for medical attention. He was Larry Shaw, on assignment photographer for Argosy magazine. M[illegible] Mackin, managing editor of the magazine was also among those attacked.

It was not clear what motivated the attack or the ensuing free-for-all in which an estimated 200 persons took part for 10 minutes.

The other American who was knocked down during the brawl was identified as public relations counselor Don Graham of Chicago, representing the National Hot Dog Council.

Two American airline hostesses also were caught in the fray but they were reported not hurt. They were [illegible] of Park Forest, Ill., and Bernadette Zola of New Kensington, Pa.

The battle began when Shaw was photographing one of the airline hostesses giving out free hot dogs. A bystander attacked him.

According to Mackin, someone shouted "capitalist press" and knocked Shaw down. Mackin said "The cops seemed to do nothing to stop the people. The people were [illegible]"

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures came under heavy selling pressure most of the time today on the Board of Trade while speculators expressed surprise at the government decision to leave the price support unchanged at $2.25 a bushel for the 1963 crop.

The trade generally had expected an increase of at least five cents a bushel and some guesses were of a boost of 15 cents.

Independent Phone Firms Fewer But Flourishing

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The number of independent telephone companies has been shrinking but they flourish as never before.

Their assets, operating revenues, and number of phones in use all have grown at a faster rate than the giant in the field, the Bell System.

And the independents boast they serve twice as many communities, 11,000, as does Bell—it's just that she serves the biggest ones. For the independents the chief factors in recent years have been mergers, holding companies, mechanization, and growing pains.

Amongst them the 2,850 independents operate 12,670,000 phones, 50 per cent more than in 1955, and 16 per cent of the total in use in the nation. They also boast they have as many phones as France and Britain together.

Part of the growth story is the flight to the suburbs from the big cities that the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. subsidiaries serve. The new customers all but swamped some of the small companies trying to accommodate them.

Combined operating revenues of the independents last year were $1.23 billion. The United States Independent Telephone Association says this is 213 per cent more than companies outside the Bell System made in 1951.

But the number of companies has dwindled from the 6,000 competing in the late 1940s. Mergers have accounted for most of this shrinkage. Sixteen holding companies have blossomed and this trend, too, seems likely to continue. Some 60 of the independents are publicly owned. Many of the smallest firms are family owned.

The Bell System has been busy growing on its own and because of the antitrust laws wasn't tempted to snap up any smaller companies. In fact, it says it welcomes their growth. Cooperation between the independents and the giant is widespread, so that a call placed with one can reach a phone operated by the other.

Mechanization has spread fast since 1956. The independents have 97 per cent of their phones dial operated. Bell has 99 per cent.

The independents have their own giant. General Telephone & Electronics has 34 operating companies and 4.7 million phones in the United States, in addition to subsidiaries operating in Canada, Haiti and the Dominican Republic. But only 124 of the independents have more than 10,000 phones each. And they range down to a 10-phone facility in Lucile, Idaho.

For all their spectacular gains since the war, they still face two major problems: rising operating costs and the financing of technological improvements to keep pace with the industry. Their solutions are likely to continue to be mergers and sale of stock to the public.

Detroit's Howe Wins Sixth Scoring Title

MONTREAL (AP) — Gordie Howe of the Detroit Red Wings virtually has wrapped up his sixth scoring championship with another one of his patented fast finishes as the National Hockey League enters its final week of the regluar season.

The veteran right winger has amassed 81 points, league figures showed today. Howe, who will be 35 on March 31, possesses a six-point lead over his closest pursuer and he has three games remaining.

Howe has drilled in 35 goals and has collected 46 assists.

The race for the Vezina Trophy, awarded to the goalie who plays the most games for the team that allows the fewest goals, probably will go right down to the wire.

CU Professor To Be Honored At Retirement

University of Colorado alumni, faculty and students will honor retiring Prof. Frank A. Eastom at a testimonial dinner at 7 p.m. Saturday at the university Memorial Center.

Reservations, at $3 a person, may be made by getting in touch with the electrical engineering departmental office at CU by Thursday.

With his retirement June 30, Eastom will end an association with CU that began in 1914 when he enrolled as a student. He is a graduate of Denver's Manual Training High School. He received a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering in 1921 and a professional degree in electrical engineering in 1925. He began teaching in 1921.

Eastom was a pioneer in the field of air-blast circuit breakers. He was the first to construct, test and operate such a circuit breaker in the United States. The device is still used by CU students.

His interest in high voltage applications prompted the General Electric Co. to donate a one million-volt surge generator and support equipment to the electrical engineering laboratories at CU.

Using the generator and a 200,000-volt transformer, Eastom conducted an extensive study of lightning and corona — ionization of air around high voltage lines — at a 5,280 foot elevation.

Active as a consultant, Eastom recommended measures to protect against the burning of wood poles caused by lightning for the Public Service Co. of Colorado. He also did extensive break-down tests on electrical porcelain developed by Coors Porcelain Co., Golden. His work in the area of high-voltage transmission and testing has led to a dozen technical reports for industry.

Eastom's outstanding written work is a book, "Experimental Practice in Electrical Engineering," first published in 1932. He supplanted this text in 1946 with one entitled, "Electric Power Apparatus." The book is a complete treatise on the operation and testing of electrical apparatus. He also has written "Electrical Engineering Laboratory Outlines" and 12 articles for semi-technical and non-technical magazines.

Eastom also has guided more than two dozen student research projects leading to technical papers. Six of those papers have won top prizes in national technical paper contests sponsored by the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

In 1958 Eastom received the College of Engineering Student Appreciation Award in recognition of his teaching characteristics.

Eastom is a fellow and a life member of the AIEE. He is a contributor in the Rocky Mountain Area to the unity program of the Engineers Joint Council. He was chairman of the Denver section of the AIEE in 1949-50 and has served on several national committees of the organization.

He was a member of the 341st Machine Gun Battalion during the St. Mihiel and Argonne offensives of World War I.

Patients Prove Mental Illness No Bar to Work

Many recovering mental patients from Veterans Administration hospitals are proving that a history of psychiatric illness need be no bar to return to full-time employment.

Thru VA in-hospital training and motivating programs, patients are readied for employment and introduced to employers as productive workers in ever-growing numbers.

Representative of the many VA mental hospital plans of this sort is "Chirp" (Community-Hospital-Industry-Rehabilitation Project) in operation at Brockton, Mass., VA Hospital. "Chirp" stresses medical rehabilitation keyed to paid-work incentives to help the patient bridge the gap between hospital and community.

Since "Chirp" was undertaken in July, 1961, 147 neuropsychiatric patients were selected for this factory-in-hospital training program, which pays the worker $1.15 hourly minimum wage. Of these, 124 were screened to go on paying jobs.

The first contract obtained from a nearby concern was to assemble 2,000 sets of a mechanical word game. With the successful completion of this contract, a series of varied work orders followed. Among them were electronic assembly, repair of copper giftware, buffing, woodworking, typing and collating, inspecting and packaging camera accessories, rebuilding generators, and painting of miniatures and plastics.

Nearby firms supply the materials, transport them to and from the hospital, furnish initial instruction in the skills required, and pay the $1.15 hourly minimum. The VA hospital supplies the facilities and the labor force.

One year from "Chirp's" birth, 61 of the original 124 patients with assigned jobs had been separated from the hospital with medical approval. Thirty were being held for further training and motivation. 25 "washed out."

One of the 61 was a World War II veteran who found his highly technical East Coast Navy Yard job overwhelming upon his return from service. After several periods of psychiatric hospitalization, he was finally screened into Brockton's "Chirp" program.

At first his work tolerance was but three hours a day. Over a period of time his work span was increased to eight hours a day assembling electronic equipment. Today he is employed at a nearby electronics plant, where he was recently given a substantial raise.

As trainees graduate from "Chirp" to jobs in the community, other patients are screened into this continuing program. Tho some graduates have been employed by the contract companies, "Chirp" does not encourage ex-patients filling jobs with the countractor similar to the ones they did at the hospital, since this might dry-up future contracts and deny other patients the "Chirp" was to useful productivity.

Judo Lessons Come In Handy for Girl

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Carol Stark, 20, a Drake University senior, attended a concert one recent night. She planned to take a cab home, only to discover she didn't have enough money.

So, she started walking. Along a dark street a carload of boys stopped, and one of them grabbed her, saying "You're going for a ride honey." Seconds later the youth landed with a thud on the pavement.

What he didn't know is that Carol is taking judo lessons. When she called to the other boys, "Who's next?", they sped away.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Manager-Employee Relations

We have been engaged in reading some enlightening material provided by a friend.

The material is in the form of a pair of books, the first of which is, "The Human Side of Enterprise," by Douglas McGregor.

Mr. McGregor, who is with the School of Industrial Management of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been at no little pains to provide some insight into the intelligent use of human resources in business and industry.

So far as we have been able to discover, "The Human Side of Enterprise" is on solid economic grounds and, additionally, sheds some much needed light into the darker recesses of managerial practices.

To us, one of the most interesting bits of information offered was the thought that the typical old-style theory of management-employee relationships had at its base an economic flaw.

It is now understood by free market economists that value is always subjective. This is to say, man seeks to satisfy his "needs" or "wants" on the basis of what has been called "marginal utility." What he doesn't have, is what he wants. Once he has it, his desires shift.

The man who has not eaten for some time has a powerful desire for food. After his meal, food is perhaps the farthest thing from his mind.

When a man does not have a job, and hence is sans income, one of the overpowering ideas in his mind is that he would like an income and hence he seeks a job. But the moment he has the job, the chances are excellent that he will no longer value the job as highly as he did when he first obtained it.

It is fundamental, also, in the attitudes developed by persons who enter into lengthy contracts, especially as a time-payment purchaser or as a borrower of money. At the moment the contract is entered, or the money borrowed, the attainment of the desired goal is highly valued and the terms seem not only satisfactory but probably quite fair and reasonable.

But with the passing of time the value judgment of the time-purchaser or borrower shifts. Presently, unless he is very well educated indeed, an unlikely event in these troublesome times of educational emphasis on mass rather than matter, he may begin to feel that the contract which now binds him was unfair at the outset and that his creditor took advantage of him.

This factor of value shifting has a particularly piercing effect upon working men and their attitudes toward their jobs. For at the outset it was probably true that the wage offered and the terms and conditions of the job looked inviting. Had it not been more inviting than idleness or penury the job would have gone begging. The person readily accepted the position in lieu of the alternate, to wit, no position.

But having obtained the position, unless certain things occur, the worker is very apt to begin thinking of management much as the borrower of money thinks of the banker who lent him money and thus befriended him.

And here is where old-style managerial theories have tended to come into collision with reality. For the job-seeker, while obtaining his job, wants someone to tell him what to do. He pictures himself as the willing and happy doer of another man's bidding. And management has been all too prone to retain that picture, even as the worker's view of himself has shifted.

For, in point of fact, man is always an individual and his value of himself is forever such that he does not wish to be managed by others. Even tho he has entered into a contract which specifies that he will "take orders," the willing acceptance of these orders probably will not result in the situation both manager and employe confidently anticipated at the outset.

The Magician

It's like the magician's ability to get you to focus your attention where he wants it, so that he can practice sleight of hand. The politician does the same thing, focusing your attention on the "benefit" he says he'll provide you, while at the same time, removing your money without your awareness of his intention and purpose.

Theories 'X' and 'Y'

Using the foregoing as a springboard, the theory of management has been called by Professor McGregor, "Theory X." This theory can be summed up by calling it, "line control." Orders come from the top down. Control is vested at the top. It is the typical pyramidal construction of any political unit dispensing patronage and wallowing in power.

The employee, assuming that Theory X is in vogue at his place of work, soon finds himself out of touch with management, with policy, and even with his immediate co-workers, except on a gripe level. He feels that he is being treated like any other piece of working machinery. Someone else pushes his reflexes and he is expected to respond in a prescribed manner.

Altho this may have been his own happy picture of himself BEFORE he took the job, he is no longer satisfied with this picture. He HAS the job. Therefore, his value of the job has deteriorated. Now he wants to find some measure of fulfillment, as a person.

Some intelligent managers have recognized this trait altho they have probably not analysed it scientifically. They seek to treat their employees as "members of a team." They will say: "You are not working for me, you are working with the team or with me."

But mere verbal assurances, provided control still comes "down the line," may not engender a higher job evaluation in the mind of the worker. Yet many a manager is fearful of adopting any other procedure as the slightest variation from this theme might make it appear that he was "losing control" over the business.

McGregor's true contribution to employer-employee [illegible] standing is his assertion that the [illegible] manager is not so much a [illegible] as he is a [illegible] [illegible] worker what to do nor even how to do it, so much as it is his function to awaken within the worker the recognition that the worker has something that is distinctly his own, and hence unique, which the firm wants and can use.

In short, the alert manager seeks to discover the worker's own drives and ambitions, and then tries to encourage the worker to recognize that his own ambitions are in harmony with the general objectives and policies of the firm. As the worker fulfills himself and grows in the company, the company grows with him.

It is a method of delegating responsibility and even authority so that control is largely vested in as many individuals as possible. And these individuals have become part and parcel of the whole operation of the firm and are as intensely interested in its success as they are in their own success. The two are no longer at variance, they become the same drive.

This process, contrary to "line control," could be referred to as "staff operation."

The institution of Theory Y cannot occur without some risks. But there is also a risk inherent in Theory X, to wit, that the worker will not find a place for himself in the firm, cannot make a place for himself, and will end, possibly, doing only those things he is told to do and worse, doing them exactly as he is told. Implicit literal obedience to a bad policy can be as risky and as costly as misplaced trust in an untried recruit.

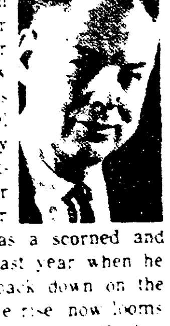
The worker who is able, because of managerial policies and practices, to translate his own abilities and talents into those of the firm, will be a happy worker and one who will not readily seek other employment.

Theory Y may not be the last [illegible]

These Days

Crazy Like a Fox

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN



Whether there will be a new labor crisis in steel this coming spring is a question. But as the leaders of the United Steelworkers Union mull over their chances for wringing new concessions from the steel companies they must be reflecting on a queer irony. Roger Blough, who was a scorned and derided figure last year when he was forced to back down on the matter of a price rise, now looms up as a farsighted man. He has made it tough for the steel union to make out a plausible case for any hefty increases in wages or benefits for 1963.

Even Mr. Blough's conservative friends were guilty of kicking him a year ago after President Kennedy had told him off. They talked pityingly about his "blunder" in public relations, his poor sense of "timing." "Roger Blah of U.S. Putty" was the phrase that William Buckley's conservative National Review pinned on him for alleged pusillanimity in failing to stand up in the face of Kennedy's withering blast.

It seemed to cross nobody's mind during the furore and hullabaloo that maybe Mr. Blough, in establishing the point that the steel industry needed profits in order to keep its plants up to snuff, was putting his company and his industry in a good bargaining position for future crises in labor relations. My own impression of Roger Blough, gained from past journalistic encounters with him, is that he is a cutie, a "phony hick" in the description which Arthur Krock once applied to a writer who pretended to a wide-eyed innocence in order to lure people into boastful confession.

INTERVIEW

Not so long ago I went to see Mr. Blough on an assignment. I was supposed to find out what the United States Steel Corporation was doing to combat the workings of Parkinson's law of bureaucratic "empire building" as it applied to ambitious department heads in the steel business. I got no good answers to my questions for the very good reason that Mr. Blough had no intention of admitting that there was any departmental featherbedding in U.S. Steel to counteract. Mr. Blough was a shrewd man, all right; before the interview was over he was trying to interest me in a story about the inequities of Minnesota state tax law as it applied to the mining of iron ore on the Mesabi Range.

Since Mr. Blough knows his own industry, he could not have been really sanguine last April that a price rise could have been made to stick for very long. No business that is operating a good deal short of capacity will refuse to shade its prices in order to attract customers. When machinery is standing idle, the stated— or "administered" — price is one thing, and the actual price at the moment of dealing is another. Mr. Blough is just as much aware of this rule of competition as any man alive.

ACCOMPLISHMENT

So the scheduled steel prices would probably have been broken even if President Kennedy had kept a civil tongue in his head. Nevertheless, the gesture on the part of U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and other companies was worth the making. In the first place, it succeeded in calling wide attention to the fact that industry must find some valid method of financing the modernization of decrepit manufacturing facilities. Once he had turned thumbs down on higher steel prices, President Kennedy could hardly refuse to listen to the corporations' plea for a more lenient depreciation policy, and some ultimate relief from the 52 per cent tax on corporate profits.

Beyond this, Mr. Blough accomplished another thing: he put the United Steelworkers Union in a bad position to ask for a big wage increase this year or next. Should the Kennedy administration seem about to sanction a general wage increase in steel for 1963 or 1964, it would certainly be assailed with loud cries of favoritism. When Kennedy refused to countenance a rise in steel prices, he based his decision on a general stand against inflation. He can hardly shift his ground this year without risking the charge of inconsistency, mental dishonesty, and craven truckling to the labor vote. And it is no less a person than Roger Blough who has managed to tie the President's hands.

A yokel, this Roger Blough! Would that you and I could be so clever.

(conclusion of Manager-Employee Relations:) vides some timely insights into certain practices which many managers have accepted as a matter of course.

OPEN PARLIAMENT

Letters will not be published without the name and address of the writer. Letters must be received at least two days before publication.

The statements and opinions expressed in this column are those of the contributors and do not necessarily express opinions or convictions held by this newspaper.

MULTI-REPLY

To the Editor:

To Mrs. Sackschewsky and Mrs. M[illegible]: A vote of thanks to you ladies for having the intestinal fortitude to express your opinion and your support of my letter. I feel that too many military personnel are sometimes a little cautious in expressing your opinions, but I feel that you ladies did a fine job.

I will not make this letter too long as I can say all I plan to in a few short sentences.

To you, Mrs. Clark, and to you Mr. Weir, I recommend that you read my letter over again as I do not feel that you digested the letter and you also proved my point in stating once people get out of the services all they do is brag about how tough they had it. I suppose in a few days I should get a reply from the veterans of the Indian Wars, Civil War, Spanish-American War who probably drew considerably less pay than either you, Mr. Weir, or your husband, Mrs. Clark.

I did not complain about how tough soldiers have it today. I only asked that the soldier and Armed Forces members be paid a wage on the level with wages paid to Civil Service workers and other federal employees.

Mrs. Clark, I think that you should check your figures again as the $50 that you say you lived on was paid to service members to assist in supporting their dependents. For people that accept this free housing out here at [illegible] Carson, are only required to give this allowance back to the government. So, Mrs. Clark, please do a little research before you go into orbit next time.

Mr. Weir, I had a father in the First World War who died two years ago and a contributing factor to his death was the mustard gas used in World War I. I also know how much he was paid and also know that this was about 45 years ago. Don't you think the wages should have gone up just a little bit?

As for having a peacetime Army, missiles can be shot across oceans, planes can fly across oceans, submarines can lurk around our shores. Do you think you need an Armed Forces? Just who in hell do you think will take the force of the attack until forces can be mobilized? Read my first letter again and ask yourself if your tax money is wasted. I can think of many other things that contribute less to your personal safety that tax funds are spent for. We are only asking for a fair shake.

QUOTES AND QUIPS

To the Editor:

J.F.K. — "I have felt obliged to limit severely my 1964 expenditures proposals . . ."

Comment: What would have been the total if J.F.K. had NOT felt obliged to LIMIT SEVERELY his 1964 expenditures proposals?

J.F.K. — "I mean to insure that in each of the various federal programs, objectives are achieved at the lowest possible cost . . . I urge the Congress to enact promptly legislation . . . to provide federal aid to help urban areas solve their mass transportation problems."

Comment: This program will COST MANY BILLIONS once it gets into full swing.

J.F.K. — "I again recommend strongly that the Congress establish a Department of Urban Affairs and Housing."

Comment: MORE BILLIONS.

J.F.K. — "I am . . . again proposing health insurance for aged persons, to be financed mainly thru the social security system but with benefits for those not covered by social security to be paid from regular appropriations."

Comment: FIRST year's cost ONE BILLION DOLLARS. Once the full health program really desired by the liberals has been put into operation, its tax cost is expected to reach 20 to 25 BILLIONS a year.

J.F.K. — "Legislation is recommended to create a National Service Corps to help by example to strengthen the volunteer spirit in the provision of social services in our local communities."

Comment: The Bureau of the Budget can give no specific figure for a National Service Corps appropriation because "they say the amount is so small it is not worth mentioning." ... estimates range from $4.2 to $6.5 million. But you can be sure that in a few years it will run to [illegible]

Comment: The number in the federal payroll jumped 145,000 during J.F.K.'s first two years ... total now is 2.5 million. Despite his words about "reduction," only 72 hours later J.F.K. requested 36,500 new federal civilian positions for the fiscal year beginning July 1st.

MANEUVERS

To the Editor:

An "immediate release" from the office of that sterling patriot, Congressman James B. Utt, calls attention to the public call of "Exercise Water Moccasin III" which name is deadly significant of the mysterious military maneuvers that have just started in a 2,500-square mile area just south of Savannah, Ga. These unheralded, surreptitious military maneuvers will include the participation of sixteen foreign allied nations and involves guerrilla warfare, psychological warfare and counter-insurgency.

The foreign [illegible] troops are to try to invade the mythical country of "[illegible]" and take it over. The inhabitants of the area are supposed to take sides and house, feed and transport the guerrillas to ambush sites. Signs have been posted throut the area in five different languages and there will be foreign observers and a U.N. contingent to record the effects and results on the public. These maneuvers are expected to last at least three weeks.

There has been a large contingent of bare-footed Africans moved into Cuba for training in guerrilla warfare but it cannot as yet be determined if they are to be used in the Georgia maneuvers. It would be interesting to learn why the Internationalists are carrying out their threatening military experiment in the State of Georgia, the home of [illegible] Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution. Editor and Columnist McGill is also listed as a member of the Internationalists' ultra-secret Bilderberg Group, which group held their first meeting in America on St. Simon's Island off the coast of Georgia February 1957, clothed in real "hush" hush."

Congressman Utt stated: "It is my belief that this operation comes squarely under Article 43 of the United Nations Charter. This, of course, will be vehemently denied by the State Department, as was everything else that happened in Cuba, the truth notwithstanding — Instead of bringing peace to the world, the U.N. has brought war, and it has brought disgrace upon the United States."

Kennedy's Tax Cut Not What It Seems

By OSCAR COOLEY
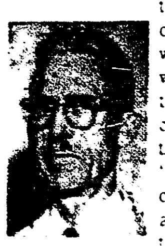
Ohio Northern



President Kennedy's proposed tax cut has been greeted with skepticism. People sense that it would not be a real reduction in the burden of government at all. Therefore, why call it a tax cut?

The real burden of cost of government is the total wealth which the government takes out of the economy and consumes, depriving the people of that wealth. It is the steel in the form of warships and guns, the labor of the men who are drafted and of the workers who are hired by the government, the land that is taken over for government use, etc. It is not the money that is taxed away from the people but it is all the wealth that is bought with that money and with other money that is manufactured by the government. This is the real "take."

Does Kennedy propose to reduce this "take"? Indeed he does not. On the contrary, he proposes to increase it. He proposes to take $98,800,000,000 worth of such wealth next year, which is more than the United States government has ever before taken in any one year, and which is $11,900,000,000 more than he expects the government to receive in revenue.

How would the Treasury pay for this extra $11,900,000,000 worth of wealth? By borrowing, of course. To the extent that the Treasury borrows by selling bonds to people and firms, he will receive cash. This will be money taken out of the economy, like taxes. However, this will not be enough, the Treasury will also have to sell bonds to the commercial banks, not for cash but for bank credit. This will be newly created money. It will dilute the money in circulation, just as water poured into a can of milk dilutes the milk. To the extent that the government "borrows" from the commercial banks and spends for goods and services, it takes wealth from the economy and gives nothing in return. This is a kind of "taxation."

Thus, to "cut taxes," as the President urges, and at the same time to spend even more than before, getting that more by borrowing, is not to reduce the burden on the American people but rather to increase it.

This can readily be seen if we imagine a 100 per cent tax cut, accompanied by no reduction in government spending. Then no taxes would be collected, but does this mean the cost of government would be totally removed from the backs of the people? Of course it does not. The people would be contributing just as much real wealth, that is, goods and services, to the government as before. The real cost of government is measured by the total of government expenditures, not taxes.

Money is very useful stuff, but it is not real wealth. It is merely a token of wealth, as a bus token is a token of a bus ride.

President Kennedy is proposing a tax cut but he is not proposing any lightening of the burden of government. Quite the contrary. His all-time record budget of $98,800,000,000 is a proposal that the burden of maintaining the U.S. government during the coming fiscal year be increased some $4,500,000,000, [not] reduced.

He tries to justify this proposal by saying that to reduce tax rates will stimulate business. The more business will be done, and more income made by both firms and persons. Income being the principal base of federal taxes, the more income the more revenue. Even tho tax rates would be lower, applied to a larger tax base they would, within two or three years, Kennedy predicts, yield the same or a higher total tax revenue.

Will it work out? It probably will not, for the reason already stated. The real burden of government, which hangs around the neck of business like a millstone, is not to be lightened by the Kennedy "tax cut" and hence there will be no stimulating effect on business. The tax base will not increase as the President believes and hence the tax revenues will not increase.

The only thing that will increase will be the government debt, and the only thing that will be stimulated will be inflation. Every dollar dreamed out of thin air and poured into the existing stock of dollars dilutes that stock, that is, "inflates" the quantity of dollars and reduces the value of each.

If President Kennedy really wanted to cut the tax burden, he would cut government expenditures, thus reducing the amount of real wealth which the government siphons out of the economy. This having been done, whether Congress cut tax rates or not would not matter one whit. If tax rates remained high the Treasury would accumulate a surplus, which would be returned to the economy by paying part of the government debt. If tax rates were reduced, the money would be left in taxpayers' pockets. In either case the burden on the economy would be lightened, but it would be lightened by the reduction of government expenditures, not by tinkering with tax rates.

It is sheer, demagogical deception to pretend that manipulating the tax rates is going to benefit the American economy.

By RUSSELL KIRK

To the considerable annoyance of certain people who want everybody to be precisely like everybody else, the 260 natives of the island of Tristan da Cunha have decided to return to their remote island in the South Atlantic. You may recall, gentle reader, that late in 1961 these folk were transported from their island to urban England, after a volcanic eruption had destroyed their homes.

It is odd that the British officials settled these hardy islanders in the outskirts of London, where they found life intolerable. They are unmachined people, fishermen and crofters; their wives weave woolens. It might have been possible to establish them satisfactorily in the Hebrides, Orkneys, or Shetlands, off the Scottish coast, where climate and mode of existence would have been nearly identical with life in Tristan da Cunha.

Anyway, their volcano having subsided, the English-speaking, swarthy race will return to their home amidst the wastes of the sea. There they are their own masters, keep their own hours, know no crime, and are safe from demon television and the arrogant automobile. In Tristan, says one of their young men, "A men can come to grips with his soul and his Creator."

Among English-speaking folk, only the descendants of the mutineers of the "Bounty" on Pitcairn Island in the South Pacific, lead an existence so isolated. Creature comforts are gradually luring islanders to the cities, or at least to mainland communities.

There is talk now of a total evacuation of the Gaelic-speaking people of the cliff-bound Aran Islands, off the western coast of Ireland. St. Kilda, the most remote inhabited spot in the North Atlantic, had her population removed 35 years ago — tho her islanders had dwelt there before the memory of man. In the Pentland Firth, between Scotland and Orkney — the wildest water in the world — the island of Stroma was evacuated less than three years ago; one can see, standing on the boulder-strewn shore at John o' Groats, the Stroma village still standing on the rocky spine of the island — now inhabited only by ghosts.

One gets some flavor of these deserted islands' eerie character from an enchanting book by Mr. T. H. White, "The Godstone and the Blackymore." White, seeking for a pagan effigy said to be concealed on such an island off western Ireland, tried to live for a fortnight in the only sound hut remaining in one of these evacuated ancient places, but tho he was only a mile from the mainland, the uncanniness of the island was too much for him, and he got himself taken off, after a single night.

Once I myself lived for a month in the wonderful Isle of Eigg in the Hebrides, which then had a hundred inhabitants — but now, a decade later, retains only fifty, I am told. Even with that many comparative neighbors, Eigg seemed weird enough: in the eighteenth century, it had 500 souls and more. It is well that some of mankind should still live in awe and wonder, so I send my love and admiration to Tristan da Cunha.

Question Box

We invite questions on economics ... [illegible]

Question No. 171: "What is the real meaning of laissez faire?"

There is much confusion about the real meaning of laissez faire. Some people contend that it means "no order," that industry is permitted to rob and deprive others of their inalienable rights.

There is considerable confusion as to the origin of this phrase, but the Encyclopaedia Britannica says, "The most probable origin of the phrase is the well-known reply of the manufacturer Legendre to Colbert who asked what he could do for industry: 'Laissez-nous faire' (Let us alone)."

Colbert was a high man in France. He was born in 1619 and died in 1683. He was the chief power under Louis XIV. He recognized the great corruption in France and tried to correct some of it, but he believed in government interference with creative energy.

The real meaning of laissez faire or laissez faire passer or alter means to "let do," "to let pass," "to let move." And to "let do," answering the question, means "let create." It doesn't mean, "Let us initiate force against our opponents." It might mean, "Let us use defensive force against our opponents," but never does it mean to initiate force, as a lot of the planners and pseudo-economists contend it means. It is pure voluntaryism. It is the exchange of goods for equal value, where both parties believe they are benefited. The answer to the question, "What can the government do to help industry?" could not have meant anarchy or chaos.

It not only means "Let us create," but it also must mean "Let us move our products and individuals move where they are most needed." That does away with immigration restrictions.

Bastiat said: "Where goods do not cross border lines, because of protective tariffs, soldiers will." This means that you'll have wars.

If we had true laissez faire, we wouldn't have long periods of unemployment, we wouldn't have one continuous war after another, our standard of living would be much higher.

It is of the utmost importance that people begin to understand what private property means. Laissez faire means respecting private property.

Detroit Wins Opening Riff For Olympics

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The city of Detroit has won the opening skirmish but may lose the battle in its bid to hold the 1968 Olympic Games.

Reaffirmed by the U.S. Olympic Committee as the American city most qualified to make the pitch, the world's motor capital was not overly optimistic over its chances of selling itself to the International Olympic Committee.

The Detroit delegation, headed by Gov. George Romney of Michigan and Mayor Jerome P. Cavanaugh, was elated when the city was chosen over four others Monday by the USOC board of directors, but the spearhead of the drive added a sobering note.

"We will be definite underdogs before the IOC next October," said Fred C. Matthaei, Sr., chairman of the Detroit Olympic Committee. "It's no secret that the IOC is heavily European flavored. Also, our cause has been hurt by our internal battles — first, the AAU-NCAA power war and then this fight between Los Angeles and Detroit for the site.

"All this will be distributed among the Olympic countries. Our best bet is to turn it around to our avantage, if we can. We must plead that the bloodshed is finished, and we deserve a chance to get our house in order."

The IOC is expected to pick the 1968 Olympic site at its meeting in Nairobi, Kenya, next October. Besides Detroit, cities bidding include Mexico City, Buenos Aires, Vienna, Lausanne and Lyons, France.

One of the European spots is favored to get the nod. However, Detroit intends to put up a fight —the same kind that won it selection over Los Angeles, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Portland, Ore., in the tussle before the 40-man board of directors of the USOC.

"If we are picked, you will see the greatest Olympiad in the history of the games," said Michigan's Gov. Romney. "I feel good about our chances. The whole world has heard the phrase 'FOB—Detroit.'"

Art Lentz, assistant director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said, "The Olympic structure is undergoing great changes, and tradition is not as strong as it once was. I think the United States' chances of getting the Games are much better than they were six months ago."

Detroit, picked last October by the same board but later challenged by Los Angeles, was reaffirmed by an overwhelming vote after each of the five cities spent an hour making presentations at Olympic House.

With 40 board members voting, 32 chose Detroit, 4 voted for Los Angeles, 2 for Portland and 1 each for San Francisco and Philadelphia. A plurality of 21 votes was all that was needed.

Detroit announced plans for a new, 3-tier stadium, seating 110,000, to be built on the State Fair Grounds, and for an Olympic Village, accommodating 9,000, at Wayne State College.

The added facilities would be financed by extra proceeds from race track betting revenues and revenue bonds. The stadium would be rented to the Detroit Lions football team and the Detroit Tigers baseball team.

Preps Open Spring Season

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Springtime in the Rockies frequently finds area baseball coaches hunting for home plate with snow shovels and if that circumstances is to hold true this year, prepare for the next onslaught of the "white stuff."

Manitou Springs actually comes off with the "eager beaver" award this time as the Mustangs lead off the spring sports campaign in a game with Fountain Valley at the Manitou field this afternoon.

Right on their heels, however, are Gib Funk's Wasson Thunderbirds, defending champions of the South Central League. Wasson opens its 18 game schedule Wednesday afternoon in a 3:30 game at Adams City. Palmer and St. Mary's follow, initiating intracity rivalry when the two meet at Palmer's Erps Field Thursday at 3:30. Manitou and Fountain Valley are scheduled for a rematch that same day at Fountain Valley.

Saturday the two local AAA schools are both in action against a common opponent. Denver Jefferson plays at the Wasson diamond at 10 a.m. and then meets Palmer at Erps Field at 1:30. Manitou hosts Florence, also on Saturday.

Palmer and Wasson track teams also get into the act before the week is over. Jim Hartman's Wasson thinclads go to Longmont Friday afternoon for a 4 p.m. outdoor dual meet. Bill Westbay sends Palmer's thinclads into action Saturday in a high school indoor meet being staged by Colorado School of Mines at Golden.

Other area high schools join the parade outside early next week. The Air Force Academy does not open its spring schedule until next weekend while Colorado College holds off until the first weekend in April.

Wasson graduated key members of its 1962 conference champions, who also went on to take second place in the state tournament. But Funk has an essentially veteran team returning, keyed around what should be strong pitching. Both Tim Hamilton and Leroy Porterfield, the Thunderbirds' top starters last season, are back along with reserve flinger, Bob Kochis.

Also returning are first-baseman Vic Shelton, shortstop Darrell Greene, outfielder Mike Hinton, and utility-infielder Lloyd Neighbors. Those four were all regulars a year ago. Key spots to be filled include the catching department, and third base. In a scrimmage session under blustery conditions Monday, the Wasson coach had Shelton and Greene at their regular positions, Neighbors at second base, and junior Mike Teague at third. There is a strong possibility that this combination may end up as the regular one.

Funk will undoubtedly use these early games to shuffle personnel, however, in search of the strongest unit to attack the South Central League campaign. Several pitchers will probably see action Wednesday, including both Hamilton and Porterfield.

Wasson defeated Adams City twice last year, once by a lopsided score in an early season contest and later by a single run in an extra-inning game that qualified the Thunderbirds for the four-team state tournament at Greeley.

Terrors Have Problem With Rookie Pitching

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Palmer High School opens the 1963 baseball season Thursday afternoon with a question mark pitching staff but perhaps the finest keystone combination the school has had in some years.

Coach Jerry Hughes starts the campaign without a single returning varsity pitcher and it is on the development of a mound staff that the Palmer head man says the fortunes of the Terrors lie.

There will be some experience to aid the young pitching corps, tho. Heading the list will be the keystone duo of second baseman Chuck Reinking and shortstop Pat Berkheim. Reinking missed most of last season due to an injury while Berkheim played regularly at the shortstop post. Hughes calls them a "real fine combination, perhaps the best we've had."

Also returning are letterman Jerry Golden and catcher-outfielder, Larry Nicks. Golden is slated for first base duty, where he started a year ago, but Nicks will probably become a full-time leftfielder. Hughes said that Nicks suffered an arm injury during wrestling season that makes it difficult for him to handle the catching chores.

"Golden should give us the long ball," the Palmer coach says, "but our pitching, of course, is strictly questionable."

In spite of the shortage of returnees, the situation at Palmer is not beyond repair. Hughes had the biggest turnout for baseball that the school has experienced and altho he has trimmed the roster considerably from the original 75, there are still a number of candidates working out, including 19 sophomores.

"We have a fine sophomore class," the Palmer coach says. "We had 55 sophomores turn out and many are good athletes. We have just gotten several out from "B" squad basketball so we don't really know yet how much help we'll get from the group this year."

In the all-important pitching department Hughes has a pair of "B" squad graduates, Ted Jones and Rich Tafoya along with senior Jerry Williams. Other hurlers are from the sophomore class and the Palmer coach has not decided on which ones will join the varsity. In Thursday's opener with St. Mary's he plans to work Jones, Tafoya, and Williams at least two innings apiece.

Other positions are shaping up like this. Junior Don Shoffner appears to have the inside track on the center field berth but three candidates are still battling for the starting job in right field. Jeff Hughes, Roger Swanson, and Chester Johnson, all seniors, are all in contention.

The third base position is currently open with Gary Johnson and Don Grant, both juniors, the prime candidates. Catching could be a bothersome spot but Hughes is presently working junior Don Breeding in the number one position with three sophomores, Larry Williams, Tom Savells, and Freddie Romero, contending.

The Terrors lost several key players off last year's team, including three starting pitchers, Larry Carver, Tony Anderson, and Bob Martinez. Also gone is Jim Hillman, an outfielder-catcher who was among the finest hitters in the South Central League. Other graduates include Bill Endreason, Dick Barr, and Don Shipps.

As for the league race this year Hughes sees Wasson and Trinidad as the top pre-season choices. "Both Gib and Trinidad have all their pitching back," he said. "In fact, Trinidad has practically its entire team back. But they should both be real tough.

Academy's Swordmen Win Title

Coach Nick Toth's Air Force Academy fencers made a shambles of the annual Western Intercollegiate Fencing Championships last Saturday at San Francisco, as they walked off with their fifth consecutive title by an overwhelming margin.

This set the stage for the NCAA Championships to be held at the Air Force Academy, March 29-30 —the first national championships ever hosted by the Academy.

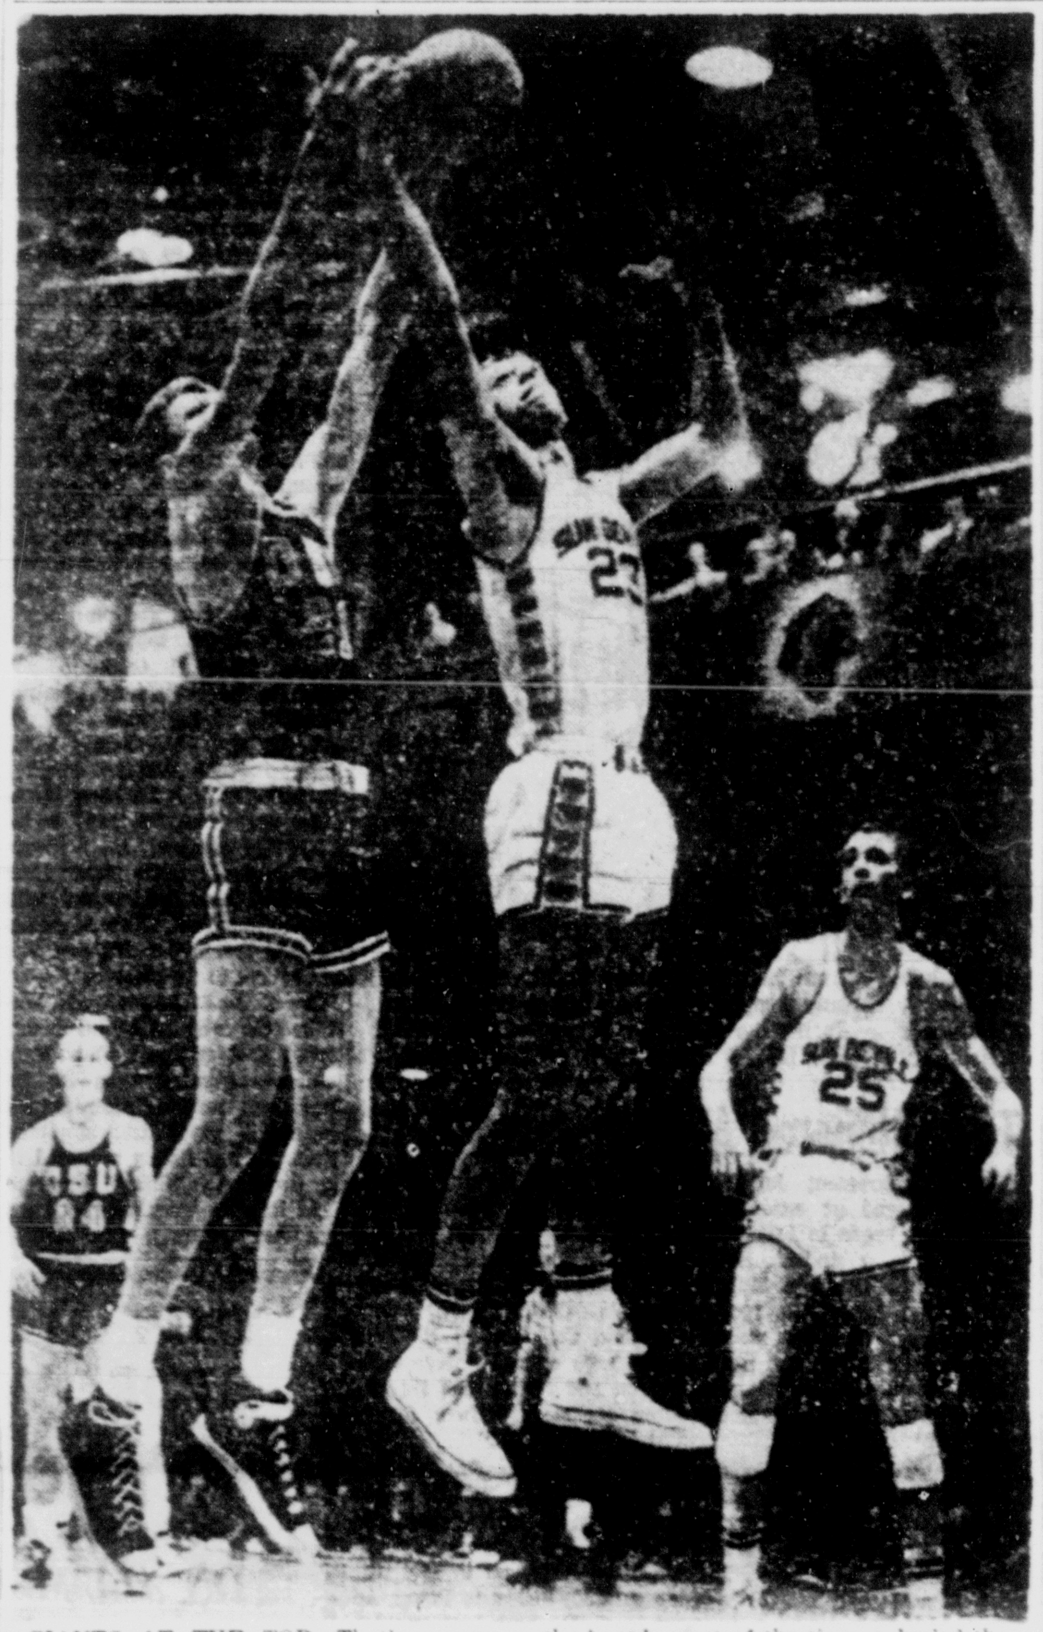
Toth reports that over 20 teams have now entered the nationals, as local fans will be treated to the finest competition in the country during the two-day show.

At San Francisco, Warren Manchess took individual honors in the epee for the only first place individual medal. However, Jock Patterson took second in the epee, Bill Ebert second in the foil, John Prenez second in the sabre, and team captain John Skoro garnered a third in the sabre.

Rigney Picks Giants To Win Pennant Race

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Manager Billy Rigney of the Los Angeles Angels was asked to predict the outcome of the National League pennant race.

"I pick the Giants," he said unhesitatingly. "I think it's the best team playing. I think they have the best 25 players in the game."



GIANTS AT THE TOP—That's seven-foot Mel Counts of Oregon State (21) in the dark and 6-8 Art Becker of Arizona State (23) in the white, battling for a rebound in last weekend's NCAA Regional playoff finals at Provo, Utah. Becker got this one, but Counts controlled the boards most of the time as he led the Beavers to an 83-65 upset. Counts scored 26 points and held Becker to 13 and is the big reason the Beavers are a dark-horse contender in the national finals this coming weekend against No. 1 ranked Cincinnati at Louisville, Ky.

NCAA Finals to Be Aired Over National TV Network

By DON WEISS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The final of the National Collegiate Basketball championship tournament Saturday night will be telecast nationally for the first time since 1954, the NCAA disclosed today.

A spokesman said Sports Network Inc., an independent company which bought package telecast rights for the 1963 tournament, expects up to 140 television outlets to carry the game, which begins at 9:35 p.m., EST.

"More than 100 stations already have signed up and we're told the figure could reach 140," the spokesman said. "Sports network estimates that the telecast will be available to at least 90 per cent of the nation's viewing audience."

The nation's 1-2-3 teams—Cincinnati, Duke, and Chicago Loyola—along with Oregon State have advanced to the national semifinals and finals, which begin at massive Freedom Hall here Friday night. The semifinals, matching Duke against Chicago Loyola and Cincinnati, the two-time defending champion, against Oregon State, will be telecast by Sports Network on a regional basis.

The last NCAA final telecast nationally was in 1954, when LaSalle College of Philadelphia won the championship at Kansas City 92-76 over Bradley.

The major television networks have been interested in televising the NCAA final nationally for several years but balked because the NCAA's insistence on playing the game at night meant the network would have to pre-empt time usually occupied by several of its high-budget Saturday night shows. Telecasts each year have been on a regional basis.

Under the package plan this year, Sports Network handled the NCAA regional tourney telecasts at College Park, Md., East Lansing, Mich., Lawrence, Kan., and Provo, Utah.

The national semifinals and finals long ago were 18,000-plus sellouts at Freedom Hall, site of the championships four of the last six years.

AAU May Leave Denver For Lack of Fan Support

DENVER (UPI)—The 1963 AAU Basketball Tournament opens here Wednesday with a streamlined field designed to provide top flight play.

AAU national men's basketball chairman G. Russell Lyons of Boulder, Colo., said Tuesday the meet, which has been held in Denver every year since 1935 with the exception of 1949, might be moved elsewhere because of non-support.

He said the Rocky Mountain AAU had to underwrite $35,000 for a 24-team field earlier, and an AAU-sponsored two-game match between the Russian and American All-Stars last year lost money.

"This is a year of decision," Lyons said. "Maybe Denver is tired of it (the tourney)."

"Now we've eliminated 12 teams that got to come in here and see Denver and didn't contribute to the national championships. But we feel that this year's 12-team field will be a quality field."

Four seeded teams were given first-round byes —Denver's Denver-Chicago Truckers, Phillips 66 of Bartlesville, Okla., the Akron Goodyears and the Armed Forces All-Stars.

Providence College Makes Fifth Appearance in NIT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Powerful Providence College makes its fifth straight appearance in the National Invitation Basketball Tournament tonight against Miami of Florida in a quarter-final game at Madison Square Garden.

In the opening quarter-final contest, fast-breaking Marquette meets St. Louis. Both Miami and St. Louis were shaky first round survivors, making second-seeded Providence and third-seeded Marquette the favorites to advance into Thursday's semi-finals.

Providence, which won the NIT title in 1961 but was knocked out in the first round last year, carries a 12-game winning streak against sun-tanned Miami. The Friars from Rhode Island will be seeking to avenge a regular season loss to the Hurricanes.

Tonight's winners will meet on Thursday night and flu-ridden Canisius will take on red-hot Villanova in semi-final round games. The final will be held Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. EST and will be nationally televised.

At Buffalo, N. Y., four Canisius starters — Bill O'Connor, Tom Chester, Tony Gennari and Tim O'Mara — have been bedded with the flu. Coach Bob Mackinnon cancelled Monday's practice and ordered the players to rest.

Post Asked To Retract Grid Story

ATLANTA (AP)—The Saturday Evening Post has been asked to retract an article accusing Wallace Butts and Alabama Coach Paul Bryant of collusion to rig the Alabama-Georgia football game last fall.

The move is necessary under Georgia law, to enable a plaintiff to recover punitive damages if a libel suit is filed and won in court.

Both Butts, former athletic director at the University of Georgia, and Bryant have denied the charges. Butts has said he intends to file a libel suit.

Bryant has a $50,000 libel suit pending against the Post in connection with another article about football brutality.

The request for a retraction was made Monday in a telegram to Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia, from Butt's attorney, William Schroder.

Georgia Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook began an investigation Monday and said he may interview Alabama football players. He had not decided whether Georgia players would be interviewed.

Cook said Butts and Bryant both will be questioned, as will Georgia Coach Johnny Griffith, Dr. O. C. Aderhold, president of the University of Georgia, and the writer of the Post article, Frank Graham Jr., a free-lance writer.

The state investigation was ordered by Gov. Carl E. Sanders after the Post charged that Butts gave Bryant detailed information about Georgia's team eight days before the game, which Alabama won 35-0.

George Burnett, an Atlanta insurance salesman, was quoted in the magazine story as saying that he overheard a telephone conversation between Butts and Bryant.

Burnett said in a statement Monday that "an impulsive desire that the truth be known" led him to provide the Post with the story.

Furniture Center, Weicker Win City League Tilts

Furniture Center whacked Smartt-Snell, 80-35, and Weicker Tranfer and Storage eased by Cafe DeVille, 69-67, Monday night in City Basketball League competition at the Lincoln grade school gym.

James May poured in 22 points to spearhead the Furniture Center triumph while teammates John Shepherd hit for 18 and Jim Pratt tallied 13. Gil Abeyta scored 16 points for the losers.

John Bracken pumped in 21 points to lead the Weicker cagers while John Hibler hit 14 points for Cafe Deville roundballers.

Chamberlain Wins Fourth Scoring Title

NEW YORK (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain of the San Francisco Warriors won his fourth straight National Basketball Association scoring championship and also set a record for field goal percentage during the 1962-63 season that ended Sunday.

Final league statistics showed today that Chamberlain accumulated 3,586 points in 80 games for a 44.8 average. The 7-foot-1 Stilt compiled a .528 shooting percentage from the field, bettering the previous mark of .513 set by Walt Bellamy of the Chicago Zephyrs last season.

Swift Set Takes Over

The sideline observer at Colorado's high school basketball championships last week might frequently have thought he had wandered into an indoor track meet by mistake. Aside from a few teams such as Cherry Creek which are throwbacks to more cautious days, Colorado prepsters post fast roundball competition.
speedometer clockings in

The hardwood hum is not restricted to any particular classification. The fast break and pressing defense were frequently used weapons by the majority of dribblers from AAA to Class C.

Actually, most of the better teams are capable of a varied style which combines the best elements of the "run-gun" game and the more sedate pattern-type play. Unless a size differential dictates otherwise, the majority of clubs will reel-off the fast break whenever the opportunity presents itself, however.

Public approval of helter-skelter basketball is obvious by the continued growth of crowds around the state. Over 62,000 shelled out cash to witness some 50 games of tournament play around Denver in a three-day period last week. That's around 10,000 more fans than attended 44 games of basketball during the same three-day span a year ago. Enlargement of the tourney came in the AA Division where the field was expanded from four to eight teams.

Crowd response to jet-age basketball is easily explained. Aside from the spectacle of teams in flight, excitement is bouyed by the fact that the running game and especially the full-court press allow for the complexion of a contest to change almost instantaniously. Proof that in present day hardwood warfare a safe lead is a thing of the past has been offered constantly this season.

More than one perspiring coach in Denver commented that it may soon get to the point where it is preferable to be a few points behind in the last quarter. Many teams saw final period margins evaporate during the three day extravaganza in the Mile-High city.

The advent of the "swift set" more than ever emphasizes that longtime requisite for a champion—poise. Teams which won titles, such as Wheat Ridge, La Junta, and Middle Park, all showed great quantities of this intangible in the face of furious late rallies by opponents.

Nowhere during the three days, tho, was the magnificance of the spirit of high school athletes more exemplified than in Salida's five-overtime victory over Thornton Friday night.

Salida was apparently out of the game with a 10 point deficit in the final period but the Spartans had trimmed that to five when their tremendous All-State forward, Dave Lantz, fouled out. Again it looked like curtains but Salida clamped on the press ever tighter and trailed by just two points when Richard Burleson was the victim of a charging foul at the final buzzer.

In a wave of unnecessary dramatics, referee Ben Dreith made great show of assuring that the floor was completely cleared. Meanwhile Burleson stood alone at the free throw line, an almost pathetically solitary figure spotlighted by the harse glare of the Arena lights.

The Spartan guard had a one-and-one upcoming and he had to make both if Salida was to tie the game and have a chance to win in overtime. Without hesitation he fired thru both shots. Those were the only two points he made all evening.

Five overtimes later, when Salida had finally captured a 66-62 victory, there had been enough heroes that Burleson was almost forgotten. Nevertheless, in 50 odd games where heroics flowed like water, no one had a moment to compare with Salida's little savior.

One of the tournament's most acrobatic flops was turned in by South Central League representatives, partially because they were outmanned in a couple of instances but more often because they played like the basketball season had ended the previous week.

John Kilpatrick has received annual commendations for patience in 14 years of attempting to teach Trinidad Miners to shoot basketballs into hoops with the same skill with which they deposit eight-balls in corner pockets. This winter Kilpatrick may have turned in the state's finest coaching job in winning the SCL title. That supposition was stressed in Denver where the Miners fell flat on their newly-won laurels.

John had waved a magic wand over his team during a long SCL season but in Denver he was left holding the wrong end of the stick. The Miners played their game in Colorado Springs two weeks ago and could muster nothing like that for state tourney opponents, Aurora and Cherry Creek.

Pueblo South's problem was more complex. It appeared as the South Denver coach Bob Wilson had raided the neighboring stockyards when he trotted his Rebels onto the floor. The Colts took one look at their skyscraping rivals and went numb. Pueblo South players were immobile more in 32 minutes last Thursday night than they had been in four years of galloping thru the SCL.

Friday South revived to whip a good Englewood team in overtime in the comparitive safety of the Aurora Gymnasium. Saturday, however, they returned to the Coliseum and the sluggishness returned. They were picked apart by a Cherry Creek team which should have been fair game for the Colts' buzzsaw offense.

Reservations, at $3 a person, may be made by getting in touch with the electrical engineering departmental office at CU by Thursday.

With his retirement June 30 Eastom will end an association with CU that began in 1914 when he enrolled as a student. He is a graduate of Denver's Manual Training High School. He received a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering in 1921 and a professional degree in electrical engineering in 1925. He began teaching in 1921.

Eastom's outstanding written work is a book, "Experimental Practice in Electrical Engineering," first published in 1932. He supplanted this text in 1946 with one entitled "Electric Power Apparatus." The book is a complete treatise on the operation and testing of electrical apparatus. He also has written "Electrical Engineering Laboratory Outlines" and 12 articles for semi-technical and non-technical magazines.

Eastom also has guided more than two dozen student research projects leading to technical papers. Six of those papers have won top prizes in national technical paper contests sponsored by the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Patients Prove Mental Illness No Bar to Work

Many recovering mental patients from Veterans Administration hospitals are proving that a history of psychiatric illness need be no bar to return to full-time employment.

Thru VA in-hospital training and motivating programs, patients are readied for employment and introduced to employers as productive workers in ever-growing numbers.

Representative of the many VA mental hospital plans of this sort is "Chirp" (Community-Hospital-Industry-Rehabilitation Project) in operation at Brockton, Mass., VA Hospital. "Chirp" stresses medical rehabilitation keyed to paid-work incentives to help the patient bridge the gap between hospital and community.

Since "Chirp" was undertaken in July, 1961, 147 neuropsychiatric patients were selected for this factory-in-hospital training program, which pays the worker $1.15 hourly minimum wage. Of these, 124 were screened to go on paying jobs.

The first contract obtained from a nearby concern was to assemble 2,000 sets of a mechanical word game. With the successful completion of this contract, a series of varied work orders followed. Among them were electronic assembly, repair of copper giftware, buffing, woodworking, typing and collating, inspecting and packaging camera accessories, rebuilding generators, and painting of miniatures and plastics.

Nearby firms supply the materials, transport them to and from the hospital, furnish initial instruction in the skills required, and pay the $1.15 hourly minimum. The VA hospital supplies the facilities and the labor force.

One year from "Chirp's" birth, 61 of the original 124 patients with assigned jobs had been separated from the hospital with medical approval. Thirty were being held for further training and motivation. 25 "washed out."

One of the 61 was a World War II veteran who found his highly technical East Coast Navy Yard job overwhelming upon his return from service. After several periods of psychiatric hospitalization, he was finally screened into Brockton's "Chirp" program.

At first his work tolerance was but three hours a day. Over a period of time his work span was increased to eight hours a day assembling electronic equipment. Today he is employed at a nearby electronics plant, where he was recently given a substantial raise.

As trainees graduate from "Chirp" to jobs in the community, other patients are screened into this continuing program. Tho some graduates have been employed by the contract companies, "Chirp" does not encourage ex-patients filling jobs with the countractor similar to the ones they did at the hospital, since this might dry-up future contracts and deny other patients the "Chirp" was to useful productivity.

Diffendorfer Honored; Opponent Team Named

The 6-0 native of Ashland, Ohio, came on strong during the last half of the season, and was instrumental in the upset wins over Utah State, Regis and Marquette, as the Falcons finished with a flourish, winning five of their last seven outings, and knocking off three tournament-bound teams in the process.

The 6-7 whiz was named to the first team by every player, as the Cadets selected what would stack up as an All-America team in anyone's book. In recording their first losing season in history, the Cadets ran into many of the nation's top cagers.

In fact, Parke Hinman, the jumping-jack AFA forward, could nearly pick a personal opponent team, as he drew the assignment of guarding all of this season's top five at one time or another.

First Team

Second Team

Forwards — Jim Caldwell (Georgia Tech) and Wayne Estes (Utah State). Center—Jim Barnes (Texas Western). Guards—Mark Hasen (Utah State) and Jerry Smith (Furman).

Third Team

Coach Bob Spear will be faced with replacing two top assistants next season, as Capt. Joe Bradley and Capt. Walt Lenz leave the Academy on new Air Force assignments.

Bradley, who was Spear's varsity assistant this season, and Lenz, who handled the AFA frosh, both joined the Academy staff in 1958. Bradley is heading for an overseas assignment in Germany, while Lenz was transferred to the Pentagon.

Maj. Ron Allen will be moved into Bradley's job with the varsity, while no replacement for Lenz has been announced.

CSU Battles Elements to Win Track Meet

LAS CRUCES, N. M. (AP) — Colorado State University defied the high winds which affected the times and distances and scored a victory in a triangular track meet here Monday.

Colorado State scored 62 points, Texas Western was second with 52½ and New Mexico State had 43½.

The winds, with gusts up to 40 miles an hour, ruined the jumping events but helped set what could be record-breaking performances in the dashes.

CSU clinched the meet with a first place and third place in the broad jump—the final event on the card.

BOWLING

German Comes Close

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

"I suddenly realized the possibilities of throwing a '300' game after my fifth strike. After that I wasn't aware of anything except releasing the ball," stated Gene German, who blasted the kingpins for a whopping 298 scratch game last Saturday night in the City Employees' League at Classic Bowl.

German left the 5 and 9 pins standing after striking out 11 times. Altho he carries a 147 average, German is looking forward to that magic "300" perfect game, but he'll have to overcome astounding odds to become the fifth kegler in the local area to accomplish that feat. He'll be bowling against 1,200,000 to 1 odds.

Find Home Run Range

Sluggers Come Alive In Exhibition Games

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's getting to be that time of the baseball spring training season when the batters start catching up with the pitchers and begin to find that home run range.

The sluggers went on a home run barrage in the 10 major league exhibition games along the grapefruit and cactus circuit Monday, accounting for 26 round-trippers.

Catcher Johnny Orsino of Baltimore set the pace with three homers as the unbeaten Orioles rang up their ninth straight victory in nipping the Cincinati Reds 4-3 in Tampa. Orsino, a husky right-handed swinger, drove in all the Birds' runs.

Hank Foiles and pinch-hitter Harry Bright tagged home runs for the Reds. All of Orsino's blasts came off losing pitcher Jim O'Toole, who became the first Cincinnati pitcher to go seven innings.

Six circuit clouts were struck in the Houston-San Francisco slugfest at Phoenix, Ariz., with the Colts whipping the Giants 14-5 with 5 runs in the eighth inning and 7 in the ninth. Jim Wyn, Ellis Burton and George Williams clubbed home runs for Houston while Ed Bailey laced two and Jose Cardenal one for the Giants.

The Chicago Cubs hit four homers—including a pair by Nelson Mathews—but dropped their eighth game in 10 outings as the Cleveland Indians prevailed 16-6 at Nogales, Ariz. Ron Santo and Billy Williams were the other Chicago distance swingers. Tito Francona homered for the Indians who slammed out 15 or more hits for the third game in a row.

Rocky Colavito, Norm Cash and Gus Triandos clicked for round-trippers in the Detroit Tigers' 8-5 victory over the St. Louis Cards at Lakeland, Fla. The Bengals annexed their fourth straight, giving Bob Anderson his third win of the spring.

Deacon Jones' home run in the sixth inning off Sandy Koufax enabled the Chicago White Sox to edge the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 at Sarasota, Fla. It was the only earned run off the hard-throwing southpaw, who struck out 13 batters — including the last five he faced—in a seven-inning stint. Ron Fairly walloped a homer for the Dodgers.

Cookie Rojas' homer with two out in the 13th inning off Bill Pleis gave the Philadelphia Phils a 6-5 squeaker over the Minnesota Twins at Orlando, Fla. Bob Allison had a three-run homer for the Twins, his third of the citrus campaign.

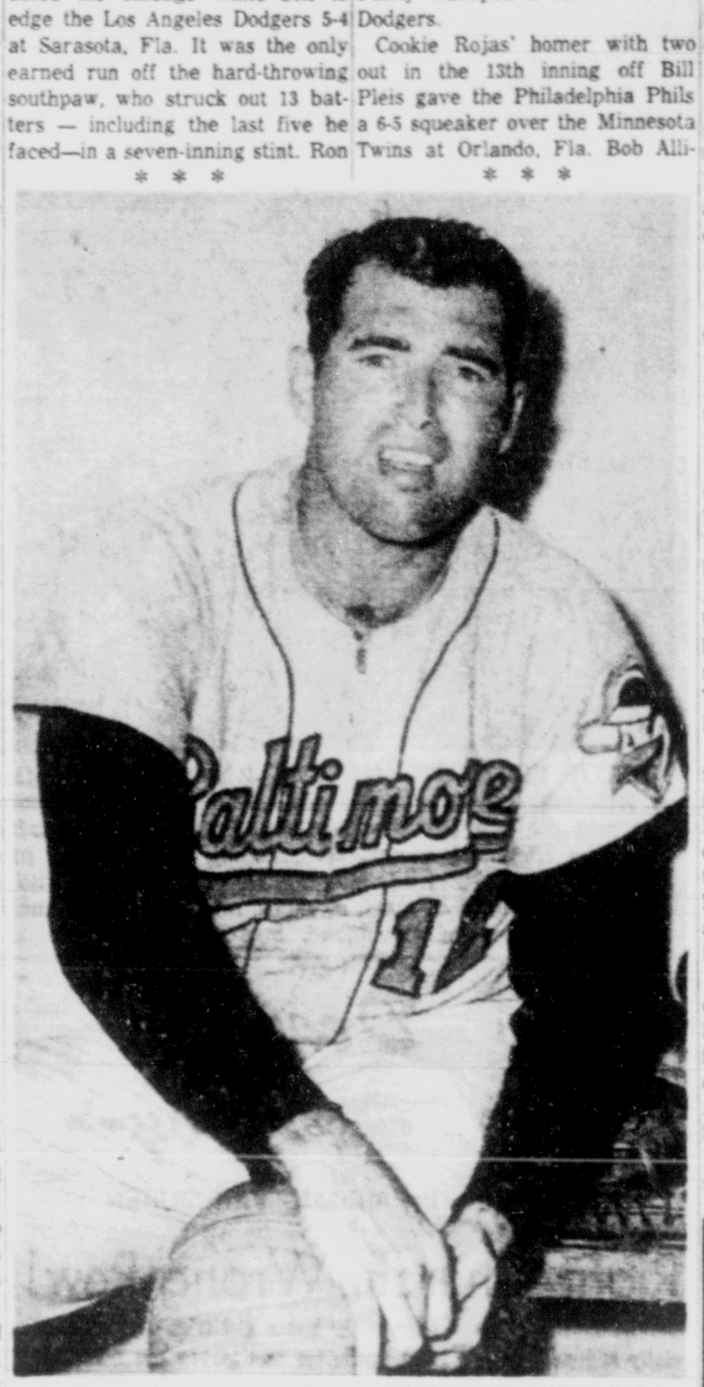
Lee Thomas' three-run home run powered the Los Angeles Angels to a 7-1 conquest over Boston at Palm Springs, Calif. Frank Malzone's smash over the wall accounted for the lone Red Sox run off Dean Chance, who worked six innings for the Angels.

The Kansas City A's and the Pittsburgh Pirates played a 4-4 tie that was called at the end of 12 innings because of darkness at Fort Myers, Fla. Julio Gotay hit the game's only home run for the Buccaneers.

Two sparkling 1-0 pitching duels offset the home run outburst. The New York Mets blanked the New York Yankees 1-0 at St. Petersburg, Fla., as Roger Craig and Al Jackson combined for a five-higger. Larry Burright singled home the winning run in the seventh inning. The Yanks' Ralph Terry held the Mets scoreless in hurling the first six innings.

Washington catcher Ken Retzer's error on a throw to the plate in the 11th inning provided the Milwaukee Braves with an unearned run and a 1-0 verdict over the Senators at West Palm Beach, Fla. Lou Burdette, Tony Cloninger and Hank Fischer scattered five hits in blanking the Nats.

Two players transactions were consummated Monday. Milwaukee obtained outfielder Ty Cline from Cleveland, completing the deal last November that sent Joe Adcock to the Indians. Washington bought pitcher Ronnie Kline from Detroit for slightly more than the $20,000 waiver price.



THREE BACK-TO-BACK HOMERS—John Orsino, Baltimore Orioles catcher, smiles as he gets back into his catching gear after hitting his third consecutive home run in a game with the Cincinnati Reds in Tampa Monday. (AP Wirephoto)

Ralph Terry Doesn't Worry Over Homers, Just Winning

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Ralph Terry will accept another year of leading the majors in home run balls as long as they keep putting his name next to "winning pitcher" in the box score.

"I don't worry about the home runs as long as I win," said the New York Yankees' 23-game winning ace and World Series hero. "After all, I pitched 299 innings last year, more than any right-handed pitcher with the Yankees since 1928. George Pipgras won 24 and Waite Hoyt won 23 that year. I think Pipgras worked 301 innings."

Terry's total of 299 innings was the most in the American League and it was topped only by Don Drysdale's 314 innings in the National League. Terry also showed the way in the American with 39 starts as well as with his 23 victories.

"I think the earned run average is a better indication of a pitcher's work than the home runs," said Terry who was ninth in ERA with 3.19. "In games where we got a lot of runs, I sometimes throw the ball in there if I get behind on a hitter."

Terry gave up 40 home runs in 1962. However, several of them came in games already won easily by the Yanks.

Syracuse, Cincinnati Open NBA Post-Season Playoffs

By United Press International

The National Basketball Association's post-season playoff opens in Syracuse, N.Y., tonight with the Syracuse Nationals facing the Cincinnati Royals in the first game of the Eastern Division's opening round.

The Nationals were favored to take the series despite the fact that the Royals won the teams' regular-season series, 7-5.

The Western Division playoffs start in St. Louis Wednesday night with the St. Louis Hawks playing the Detroit Pistons. The Eastern Division winner goes on to play the defending champion Boston Celtics while the Western Division victor faces the Los Angeles Lakers.

The second game of the Cincinnati-Syracuse series will be played in Cincinnati, March 21, and the second game of the St. Louis-Detroit series will be played on March 22. Both are best-of-five series. The second-round divisional series are best-of-seven as will be the final playoff series between the divisional winners.

The Nationals finished the regular NBA season with a 48-32 record—six games better than the Royals. The Hawks also had a 48-32 season mark—14 full games better than the Pistons.

Sugar Ramos Has Bout With Scales

LOSANGELE S (AP)—Ultiminio (Sugar) Ramos, the No. 1 contender for featherweight champion Davey Moore's crown may be the only fighter facing a weight- making problem ni Thursday's triple title boxing show in Dodger Stadium.

Ramos, The Associated Press was reliable informed Tuesday, was two pounds over the weight early in the morning of the original weigh-in. It took quite a bit of hasty conditioning to pare him down.

Weight-making apparently was no grave problem for the other principals on the Thursday card.

Singapore reports a bus shortage.

Detroit Wins Opening Riff For Olympics

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The city of Detroit has won the opening skirmish but may lose the battle in its bid to hold the 1968 Olympic Games.

Reaffirmed by the U.S. Olympic Committee as the American city most qualified to make the pitch, the world's motor capital was not overly optimistic over its chances of selling itself to the International Olympic Committee.

The Detroit delegation, headed by Gov. George Romney of Michigan and Mayor Jerome P. Cavanaugh, was elated when the city was chosen over four others Monday by the USOC board of directors but the spearhead of the drive added a sobering note.

"We will be definite underdogs before the IOC next October," said Fred C. Matthaei, Sr., chairman of the Detroit Olympic Committee. "It's no secret that the IOC is heavily European flavored. Also, our cause has been hurt by our internal battles — first, the AAU-NCAA power war and then this fight between Los Angeles and Detroit for the site.

"All this will be distributed among the Olympic countries. Our best bet is to turn it around to our advantage, if we can. We must plead that the bloodshed is finished and we deserve a chance to get our house in order."

The IOC is expected to pick the 1968 Olympic site at its meeting in Nairobi, Kenya, next October. Besides Detroit, cities bidding include Mexico City, Buenos Aires, Vienna, Lausanne and Lyons, France.

One of the European spots is favored to get the nod. However Detroit intends to put up a fight—the same kind that won it selection over Los Angeles, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Portland, Ore., in the tussle before the 40-man board of directors of the USOC.

"If we are picked, you will see the greatest Olympiad in the history of the games," said Michigan's Gov. Romney. "I feel good about our chances. The whole world has heard the phrase FOB—Detroit."

Art Lentz, assistant director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said: "The Olympic structure is undergoing great changes and tradition is not as strong as it once was. I think the United States' chances of getting the Games are much better than they were six months ago."

Detroit, picked last October by the same board but later challenged by Los Angeles, was reaffirmed by an overwhelming vote after each of the five cities spent an hour making presentations at Olympic House.

With 40 board members voting, 32 chose Detroit, 4 voted for Los Angeles, 2 for Portland and 1 each for San Francisco and Philadelphia. A plurality of 21 votes was all that was needed.

Detroit announced plans for a new, 3-tier stadium, seating 110,000, to be built on the State Fair Grounds and for an Olympic Village, accommodating 9,000, at Wayne State College.

The added facilities would be financed by extra proceeds from race track betting revenues and revenue bonds. The stadium would be rented to the Detroit Lions football team and the Detroit Tigers baseball team.

Preps Open Spring Season

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Springtime in the Rockies frequently finds area baseball coaches hunting for home plate with snow shovels and if that circumstance is to hold true this year, prepare for the next onslaught of the "white stuff."

Manitou Springs actually comes off with the "eager beaver" award this time as the Mustangs lead off the spring sports campaign in a game with Fountain Valley at the Manitou field this afternoon.

Right on their heels, however, are Gib Funk's Wasson Thunderbirds, defending champions of the South Central League. Wasson opens its 18 game schedule Wednesday afternoon in a 3:30 game at Adams City. Palmer and St. Mary's follow, initiating intra-city rivalry when the two meet at Palmer's Erps Field Thursday at 3:30. Manitou and Fountain Valley are scheduled for a rematch that same day at Fountain Valley.

Saturday the two local AAA schools are both in action against a common opponent. Denver Jefferson plays at the Wasson diamond at 10 a.m. and then meets Palmer at Erps Field at 1:30. Manitou hosts Florence, also on Saturday.

Palmer and Wasson track teams also get into the act before the week is over. Jim Hartman's Wasson thinclads go to Longmont Friday afternoon for a 4 p.m. outdoor dual meet. Bill Westbay sends Palmer's thinclads into action Saturday in a high school indoor meet being staged by Colorado School of Mines at Golden.

Other area high schools join the parade outside early next week. The Air Force Academy does not open its spring schedule until next weekend while Colorado College holds off until the first weekend in April.

Wasson graduated key members of its 1962 conference champions, who also went on to take second place in the state tournament. But Funk has an essentially veteran team returning, keyed around what should be strong pitching. Both Tim Hamilton and Leroy Porterfield, the Thunderbirds' top starters last season, are back along with reserve flinger, Bob Kochis.

Also returning are first-baseman Vic Shelton, shortstop Darrell Greene, outfielder Mike Hinton, and utility-infielder Lloyd Neighbors. Those four were all regulars a year ago. Key spots to be filled include the catching department, and third base. In a scrimmage session under blustery conditions Monday, the Wasson coach had Shelton and Greene at their regular positions, Neighbors at second base, and junior Mike Teague at third. There is a strong possibility that this combination may end up as the regular one.

Funk will undoubtedly use these early games to shuffle personnel, however, in search of the strongest unit to attack the South Central League campaign. Several pitchers will probably see action Wednesday, including both Hamilton and Porterfield.

Wasson defeated Adams City twice last year, once by a lopsided score in an early season contest and later by a single run in an extra-inning game that qualified the Thunderbirds for the four-team state tournament at Greeley.

Terrors Have Problem With Rookie Pitching

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Palmer High School opens its 1963 baseball season Thursday afternoon with a question mark pitching staff but perhaps the finest keystone combination the school has had in some years.

Coach Jerry Hughes starts the campaign without a single returning varsity pitcher and it is on the development of a mound staff that the Palmer head man says the fortunes of the Terrors lie.

There will be some experience to aid the young pitching corps tho. Heading the list will be the keystone duo of second baseman Chuck Reinking and shortstop Pat Berkheim. Reinking missed most of last season due to an injury while Berkheim played regularly at the shortstop post. Hughes calls them a "real fine combination, perhaps the best we've had."

Also returning are letterman Jerry Golden and catcher-outfielder Larry Nicks. Golden is slated for first base duty, where he started a year ago, but Nicks will probably become a full-time leftfielder. Hughes said that Nicks suffered an arm injury during wrestling season that makes it difficult for him to handle the catching chores.

"Golden should give us the [illegible]," the Palmer coach says, "but our pitching, of course, is strictly questionable."

In spite of the shortage of returnees, the situation at Palmer is not beyond repair. Hughes had the biggest turnout for baseball that the school has experienced and altho he has trimmed the roster considerably from the original 75, there are still a number of candidates working out, including 19 sophomores.

"We have a fine sophomore class," the Palmer coach says. "We had 55 sophomores turn out and many are good athletes. We have just gotten several out from "B" squad basketball so we don't really know yet how much help we'll get from the group this year."

In the all-important pitching department Hughes has a pair of "B" squad graduates, Ted Jones and Rich Tafoya along with senior Jerry Williams. Other hurlers are from the sophomore class and the Palmer coach has not decided on which ones will join the varsity. In Thursday's opener with St. Mary's he plans to work Jones, Tafoya, and Williams at least two innings apiece.

Other positions are shaping up like this. Junior Don Shoffner appears to have the inside track on the center field berth but three candidates are still battling for the starting job in right field. Jeff Hughes, Roger Swanson, and Chester Johnson, all seniors, are all in contention.

The third base position is currently open with Gary Johnson and Don Grant, both juniors, the prime candidates. Catching could be a bothersome spot but Hughes is presently working junior Don Breeding in the number one position with three sophomores, Larry Williams, Tom Savells, and [illegible] Romero contending.

The Terrors lost several key players off last year's team, including three starting pitchers, Larry Carver, Tony Anderson, and Bob Martinez. Also gone is [illegible] Hinman, an outfielder-catcher who was among the finest hitters in the South Central League. Other graduates include Bill Endreson, Dick Barr, and Don Shipps.

As for the league race this year Hughes sees Wasson and Trinidad as the top pre-season choices. "Both Wasson and Trinidad have all their pitching back," he said. "In fact, Trinidad has practically its entire team back. But they should both be real tough.

"We should be up in the race, too," the Palmer coach warns. "If our pitching comes around we'll do all right."

Academy's Swordmen Win Title

Coach Nick Toth's Air Force Academy fencers made a shambles of the annual Western Intercollegiate Fencing Championships last Saturday at San Francisco, as they walked off with their fifth consecutive title by an overwhelming margin.

This set the stage for the NCAA Championships to be held at the Air Force Academy, March 29-30 —the first national championships ever hosted by the Academy.

Toth reports that over 20 teams have now entered the nationals, as local fans will be treated to the finest competition in the country during the two-day show.

At San Francisco Warren Manchess took individual honors in the [illegible] for the only first place individual medal. However Jock Patterson took second in the epee, Bill Ebert second in the foil, John Prenez second in the sabre, and team captain John Skoro garnered a third in the sabre.

Becker got this one, but Counts controlled the boards most of the time as he led the Beavers to an 83-65 upset. Counts scored 26 points and held Becker to 13 and is the big reason the Beavers are a dark-horse contender in the national finals this coming weekend against No. 1 ranked Cincinnati at Louisville, Ky.

NCAA Finals to Be Aired Over National TV Network

By DON WEISS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The final of the National Collegiate Basketball championship tournament Saturday night will be telecast nationally for the first time since 1954, the NCAA disclosed today.

A spokesman said Sports Network Inc., an independent company which bought package telecast rights for the 1963 tournament, expects up to 140 television outlets to carry the game, which begins at 9:35 p.m., EST.

"More than 100 stations already have signed up and we're told the figure could reach 140," the spokesman said. "Sports network estimates that the telecast will be available to at least 90 per cent of the nation's viewing audience."

The nation's 1-2-3 teams—Cincinnati, Duke, and Chicago Loyola—along with Oregon State have advanced to the national semifinals and finals, which begin at massive Freedom Hall here Friday night. The semifinals, matching Duke against Chicago Loyola and Cincinnati, the two-time defending champion, against Oregon State, will be telecast by Sports Network on a regional basis.

The last NCAA final telecast nationally was in 1954, when LaSalle College of Philadelphia won the championship at Kansas City 92-76 over Bradley.

The major television networks have been interested in televising the NCAA final nationally for several years but balked because the NCAA's insistence on playing the game at night meant the network would have to pre-empt time usually occupied by several of its high-budget Saturday night shows. Telecasts each year have been on a regional basis.

Under the package plan this year, Sports Network handled the NCAA regional tourney telecasts at College Park, Md., East Lansing, Mich., Lawrence, Kan., and Provo, Utah.

The national semifinals and finals long ago were 18,000-plus sellouts at Freedom Hall, site of the championships four of the last six years.

AAU May Leave Denver For Lack of Fan Support

AAU national men's basketball chairman G. Russell Lyons of Boulder, Colo., said Tuesday the meet, which has been held in Denver every year since 1935 with the exception of 1949, might be moved elsewhere because of non-support.

He said the Rocky Mountain [illegible] $10,000 [illegible] a 24-team field earlier, and an AAU sponsored two-game match between the Russian and American All-Stars last year lost money.

Now we've eliminated 12 teams [illegible]

Post Asked To Retract Grid Story

ATLANTA (AP)—The Saturday Evening Post has been asked to retract an article accusing Wallace Butts and Alabama Coach Paul Bryant of collusion to rig the Alabama-Georgia football game last fall.

The move is necessary under Georgia law, to enable a plaintiff to recover punitive damages if a libel suit is filed and won in court.

Both Butts, former athletic director at the University of Georgia, and Bryant have denied the charges. Butts has said he intends to file a libel suit.

Bryant has a $500,000 libel suit pending against the Post in connection with another article about football brutality.

The request for a retraction was made Monday in a telegram to Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia, from Butts' attorney, William [illegible].

Georgia Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook began [illegible] Monday and said he may interview Alabama football players. He had not decided whether Georgia players would be interviewed.

Cook said Butts and Bryant both will be questioned, as will Georgia Coach Johnny Griffith, Dr. O. C. Aderhold, president of the University of Georgia, and the writer of the Post article, Frank Graham Jr., a free lance writer.

The [illegible] ordered by Gov. Carl E. Sanders after the Post charged that Butts gave Bryant detailed information about Georgia's team eight days before the game, which Alabama won 35-0.

George Burnett, an Atlanta insurance salesman, was quoted in the magazine story as saying that he overheard a telephone conversation between Butts and Bryant.

Burnett said in a statement Monday that "an impulsive desire that the truth be known" led him to provide the Post with the story.

Furniture Center, Weicker Win City League Tilts

Furniture Center whacked Smartt-Snell, 80-35, and Weicker Tranfer and Storage eased by Cafe DeVille, 69-67, Monday night in City Basketball League competition at the Lincoln grade school gym.

James May poured in 22 points to spearhead the Furniture Center triumph while teammates John Shepherd hit for 18 and Jim Pratt tallied 13. Gil Abeyta scored 16 points for the losers.

John Bracken pumped in 21 points to lead the Weicker cagers while John Hibler hit 14 points for Cafe Deville roundballers.

Chamberlain Wins Fourth Scoring Title

NEW YORK (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain of the San Francisco Warriors won his fourth straight National Basketball Association scoring championship and also set a record for field goal percentage during the 1962-63 season that ended Sunday.

Final league statistics showed today that Chamberlain accumulated 3,586 points in 80 games for a 44.8 average. The 7-foot-1 Stilt compiled a .528 shooting percentage from the field, bettering the previous mark of .513 set by Walt Bellamy of the Chicago Zephyrs last season.

Swift Set Takes Over

The sideline observer at Colorado's high school basketball championships last week might frequently have thought he had wandered into an indoor track meet by mistake. Aside from a few teams such as Cherry Creek which are throwbacks to more cautious days, Colorado prepsters post fast [illegible] competition [illegible] speedometer clocking [illegible]

The hardwood hum is not restricted to any particular classification. The fast break and pressing defense were frequently used weapons by the majority of entrants from AAA to Class C.

Actually, most of the better teams are capable of a varied style which combines the best elements of the "run-gun" game and the more sedate pattern-type play. Unless a size differential dictates otherwise, the majority of clubs will reel-off the fast break whenever the opportunity presents itself, however.

Public approval of helter-skelter basketball is obvious by the continued growth of crowds at the state tourney [illegible] to witness some 30 games of tournament [illegible] three-day period [illegible] week. That's around 10,000 more fans than attended 44 games of basketball during the same three-day span a year ago. Enlargement of the tourney game in the AA Division where the field was expanded from four to eight teams.

Crowd response to [illegible] basketball is easily explained. Aside from the spectacle of teams in tight excitement is [illegible] by the fact that the running game and especially the full-court press allow for the complexion of a contest to change almost instantly. [illegible] Proof that in present [illegible] warfare a [illegible] third of the [illegible] constantly this season.

More than one perspiring coach in Denver commented that it may soon get to the point where it is preferable to be a few points behind in the last quarter. Many teams saw final period margins evaporate during the three-day extravaganza in the Mile High City.

The advent of the "swift set" more than ever emphasizes that longtime requisite for a champion—poise. Teams which won titles, such as Wheat Ridge, La Junta, and Middle Park, all showed great quantities of this intangible in the face of furious late rallies by opponents.

Nowhere during the three days tho, was the magnificance of the spirit of high school athletes more exemplified than in Salida's five-overtime victory over Thornton Friday night.

Salida was apparently out of the game with a 10 point deficit in the final period but the Spartans had trimmed that to five when their tremendous [illegible] forward, Dave [illegible] [illegible] Salida clamped on the press even tighter and trailed by just two points when Richard Burleson was the victim of a charging foul at the final buzzer.

The Spartan guard had a one-and-one upcoming and he had to make both if Salida was to tie the game and have a chance to win in overtime. Without hesitation he fired thru both shots. Those were the only two points he made all evening.

Five overtimes later, when Salida had finally captured a 66-62 victory, there had been enough heroes that Burleson was almost forgotten. Nevertheless, in 50 odd games where heroes flowed like [illegible] no one had a moment to compare with Salida's little savior.

One of the tournament's most [illegible] was turned in by South Central League representatives, partially because they were [illegible] in a couple of instances, [illegible] because they played [illegible] the basketball season had ended the previous week.

John Kilpatrick has received annual commendations for patience in 14 years of attempting to teach Trinidad Miners to shoot basketballs into hoops with the same skill with which they deposit eight-balls in corner pockets. This winter Kilpatrick may have turned in the state's finest coaching job in winning the SCL title. That support [illegible] in Denver where the Miners [illegible]

[illegible] SCL season [illegible] Denver he was left holding the strongest [illegible] Miners [illegible] Springs two weeks ago and could muster nothing like that [illegible] state tourney opponents, Aurora and Cherry Creek.

Pueblo South's problem was more complex. It appeared as the South Denver coach Bob Wilson had raided the neighboring stockyards when he trotted his Rebels onto the floor. The Colts took one look at their skyscraping rivals and went numb. Pueblo South players were immobile more in 32 minutes last Thursday night than they had been in four years of [illegible] thru the SCL.

Friday South [illegible] a [illegible] time in the [illegible] of the [illegible], however, they returned to the Coliseum and the [illegible] returned. They were picked apart by a Cherry Creek team which [illegible] game for the [illegible] buzzsaw offense.

Stanley Cup Hockey Playoffs Set March 26

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Hockey League's Stanley Cup finals will begin on Tuesday night, March 26 in the home cities of the teams finishing first and second at the end of the regular season.

The best-of-seven semi-finals will match the first-place finisher against the third-place finisher and the second-place finisher against the fourth-place finisher.

The Toronto Maple Leafs took over undisputed possession of first place during last weekend, opening a three-point lead over the Chicago Black Hawks. The Montreal Canadiens are third, four points back of Toronto and six ahead of the fourth-place Detroit Red Wings. All have three regular-season games left to play.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Right Church, Wrong Pew!

DEAR ABBY: I have been officially engaged (with a two-carat ring) to the same girl three times. Each time she has given me the ring back and says she's changed her mind. She never has a reason. She just changes her mind. I have literally gotten down on my hands and knees and "begged" her to marry me. I don't want to be put off any longer. She's not a child. She's 25 and I am 28. I am crazy about this girl and want to know how I can get her to marry me tomorrow. —IN LOVE

DEAR IN: You cna't. It takes three days for a blood test in your state. Furthermore, any fellow who has to get down on his hands and knees and "beg" a girl to marry him should pray for better sense while he's in that position.

DEAR ABBY: Judging from the phone calls he gets, a married man in our office apparently has a girl friend. She calls the office and leaves her number for him to call back. Yesterday the man's wife called and said she suspected a woman was making contact with her husband at the office, and she asked if there had been any numbers left for him to call. The girl who answered the phone lied for the man and said no. I think she was wrong to protect a dirty, rotten home-wrecker. I have that number and am ready to call the wife and give it to her. My husband told me to keep my nose out of it. Should I? —HATES CHEATERS

DEAR HATES: Yes. Your husband is right.

DEAR ABBY: A girl in our room at school bought herself a dime-store ring and is telling everyone that her "boy friend" gave it to her. She says she can't tell us his name, but he goes to another school. Abby, she doesn't have a boy friend because no one has ever seen her with anyone. She is always alone. She doesn't even have a girl friend. How can we prove she is lying? —HATES LIARS

DEAR HATES: It's easier to hate than to understand. The girl is lonely. And she's ashamed that she has neither girl firends nor a boy friend. Be kind to her. She needs it.

Cadets Plan, Prepare For Annual Assembly

The Air Force Academy Assembly will last three days—April 3-6 — but preparation for the event stretches over more than two months.

Under Cadet First Class Kent E. Harbaugh, the delegate preparation committee provides information on the assembly topic "The Secretary of State," to the 12 cadets representing the Academy. Seminars, discussion groups, and lectures are used to give delegates needed information.

The secretariat committee, Cadet First Class James Olson, chairman, must coordinate and disseminate all information sent to delegates prior to the assembly, received back from them, and distributed to delegates when they arrive at the Academy. Cadet Olson and his staff must also maintain the cadet staff files and publish a daily bulletin during the assembly.

Housing committee chairman Cadet First Class Marvin Odefey and his crew handle all arrangement for billeting delegates during their three-day stay. They set up quarters in the Prep School and Visiting Officers Quarters, assist delegates in finding their quarters, and make arrangements for the closing parties at the Officers Club and Antlers Hotel.

News coverage, including Colorado papers and the hometown newspapers of each delegate, plus the preparation of a pre-conference booklet and the final assembly report, is the responsibility of Cadet First Class Barry M. Meuse and his committee.

"Care, feeding, and transporting" delegates are the concern of the escorting committee, Cadet First Class Albert Anderer, chairman; the messing committee, Cadet First Class Robert M. Foley, chairman; and transportation committee, Cadet First Class Joe H. Wilson, chairman.

Individual escorts are provided for each assembly delegate. Collegians taking part in the sessions will sample the best of Academy "chow" at Mitchell Hall, cadet dining room, the Airman's Dining Hall, and the Officers Club.

The dozens of small details which must mesh to make the assembly a success are the concern of Cadet First Class Henry T. Horton and his facilities committee. For each of the five plenary sessions and the roundtables, microphones must be provided as well as janitors, ushers, troubleshooters, and needed visual aids. Floor and seating plans must be planned and prepared in advance.

On April 3, all the work of the individual committees must be completed and molded into a single object, the assembly.

LIBYA LOOKS UP

Diffendorfer Honored; Opponent Team Named

The 6-0 native of Ashland, Ohio, came on strong during the last half of the season, and was instrumental in the upset wins over Utah State, Regis and Marquette, as the Falcons finished with a flourish, winning five of their last seven outings, and knocking off three tournament-bound teams in the process.

Wichita's All-American, Dave Stallworth, was the only unanimous choice of the Air Force basketball players as they selected their annual All-Opponent team for the 1962-63 season.

The 6-7 whiz was named to the first team by every player, as the Cadets selected what would stack up as an All-America team in anyone's book. In recording their first losing season in history, the Cadets ran into many of the nation's top cagers.

In fact, Parke Hermer, the [illegible] AFA forward, could nearly pick a personal opponent team, as he drew the assignment of guarding all of this season's top five at one time or another.

Find Home Run Range

Sluggers Come Alive In Exhibition Games

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's getting to be that time of the baseball spring training season when the batters start catching up with the pitchers and begin to find that home run range.

The sluggers went on a home run barrage in the 10 major league exhibition games along the grapefruit and cactus circuit Monday, accounting for 26 round-trippers.

Catcher Johnny Orsino of Baltimore set the pace with three homers as the unbeaten Orioles rang up their ninth straight victory in nipping the Cincinati Reds 4-3 in Tampa. Orsino, a husky right-handed swinger, drove in all the Birds' runs.

Hank Foiles and pinch-hitter Harry Bright tagged home runs for the Reds. All of Orsino's blasts came off losing pitcher Jim O'Toole, who became the first Cincinnati pitcher to go seven innings.

Six circuit clouts were struck in the Houston-San Francisco slugfest at Phoenix, Ariz., with the Colts whipping the Giants 14-5 with 5 runs in the eighth inning and 7 in the ninth. Jim Wyn, Ellis Burton and George Williams clubbed home runs for Houston while Ed Bailey laced two and Jose Cardenal one for the Giants.

The Chicago Cubs hit four homers—including a pair by Nelson Mathews—but dropped their eighth game in 10 outings as the Cleveland Indians prevailed 16-6 at Nogales, Ariz. Ron Santo and Billy Williams were the other Chicago distance swingers. Tito Francona homered for the Indians who slammed out 15 or more hits for the third game in a row.

Rocky Colavito, Norm Cash and [illegible] Triandos [illegible] for round trippers in the Detroit Tigers' 8-5 victory over the St. Louis Cards at Lakeland, Fla. The Bengals [illegible] [illegible] Bob Anderson [illegible] of the spring.

Deacon Jones' home run in the sixth inning off Sandy Koufax enabled the Chicago White Sox to edge the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 at Sarasota, Fla. It was the only earned run off the hard-throwing southpaw, who struck out 13 batters — including the last five he faced—in a seven-inning stint.

Cookie Rojas' homer with two out in the 13th inning off Bill Pleis gave the Philadelphia Phils a 6-5 squeaker over the Minnesota Twins at Orlando, Fla. Bob Allison had a three-run homer for the Twins, his third of the citrus campaign.

Lee Thomas' three-run home run powered the Los Angeles Angels to a 7-1 conquest over Boston at Palm Springs, Calif. Frank Malzone's smash over the wall accounted for the lone Red Sox run off Dean Chance, who worked six innings for the Angels.

The Kansas City A's and the Pittsburgh Pirates played a 4-4 tie that was called at the end of 12 innings because of darkness at Fort Myers, Fla. Julio Gotay hit the game's only home run for the Buccaneers.

Two sparkling 1-0 pitching duels offset the home run outburst. The New York Mets blanked the New York Yankees 1-0 at St. Petersburg, Fla., as Roger Craig and Al Jackson combined for a five-hitter. Larry Burright singled home the winning run in the seventh inning. The Yanks' Ralph Terry held the Mets scoreless in hurling the first six innings.

Washington catcher Ken Retzer's error on a throw to the plate in the 11th inning provided the Milwaukee Braves with an unearned run and a 1-0 verdict over the Senators at West Palm Beach, Fla. Lou Burdette, Tony Cloninger and Hank Fischer scattered five hits in blanking the Nats.

Two players transactions were consummated Monday. Milwaukee obtained outfielder Ty Cline from Cleveland, completing the deal last November that sent Joe Adcock to the Indians. Washington bought pitcher Ronnie Kline from Detroit for slightly more than the $20,000 waiver price.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Ralph Terry [illegible] the American League [illegible] was topped only by Don Drysdale's [illegible] innings in the National League. Terry also showed the way in the American with 39 starts as well as with his 23 victories.

"I don't worry about the home runs as long as I win," said the New York Yankees' 23-game winner [illegible] World Series hero. "After all, I pitched 299 innings last year [illegible]."

"I think the earned run average is a better indication of a pitcher's work than the home runs," said Terry, who was ninth in ERA with 3.19. "In games where we get a lot of runs, I sometimes [illegible] the ball in there if I [illegible] on a hitter."

Sugar Ramos Has Bout With Scales

LOSANGELE S (AP)—Ultiminio (Sugar) Ramos, the No. 1 contender for featherweight champion Davey Moore's crown may be the only fighter facing a weight- making problem ni Thursday's triple title boxing show in Dodger Stadium.

The 21-year-old knockout artist from Mexico City had a rough time making the prescribed 126 pounds last Saturday for his title bid with Moore.

The weight—and a possible letdown when the entire card was washed out by rain, may pose a serious problem for the young refugee from Cuba.

Ramos, The Associated Press was reliable informed Tuesday, was two pounds over the weight early in the morning of the original weigh-in. It took quite a bit of hasty conditioning to pare him down.

Weight-making apparently was no grave problem for the other principals on the Thursday card.

Two Local Rotarians Beat Cold in McAllen

The temperature registered 89 degrees when John F. Sunstrum and C. A. Madsen joined 30 tourists from 14 states and Canada for the Rotary visit in McAllen.

The electric power generated on an eight-jet Boeing B-52H Stratofortress is enough to supply all the power needs of 141 average U.S. homes.

Dear Abby--

Right Church, Wrong Pew!

DEAR ABBY: I have been officially engaged with a two-carat ring to the same girl three times. Each time she has given me the ring back and says she's changed her mind. She never has a reason. She just changes her mind. I have literally gotten down on my hands and knees and "begged" her to marry me. I don't want to be put off any longer. She's not a child. She's 25 and I am 28. I am crazy about this girl and want to know how I can get her to marry me tomorrow. —IN LOVE

DEAR IN: You can't. It takes three days for a blood test in your state. Furthermore, any fellow who has to get down on his hands and knees and "beg" a girl to marry him should pray for better sense while he's in that position.

DEAR ABBY: Judging from the phone calls he gets, a married man in our office apparently has a girl friend. She calls the office and leaves her number for him to call back. Yesterday the man's wife called and said she suspected a woman was making contact with her husband at the office, and she asked if there had been any numbers left for him to call. The girl who answered the phone lied for the man and said no. I think she was wrong to protect a dirty, rotten home-wrecker. I have that number and am ready to call the wife and give it to her. My husband told me to keep my nose out of it. Should I? —HATES CHEATERS

DEAR HATES: Yes. Your husband is right.

DEAR ABBY: A girl in our room at school bought herself a dime-store ring and is telling everyone that her "boy friend" gave it to her. She says she can't tell us his name, but he goes to another school. Abby, she doesn't have a boy friend because no one has ever seen her with anyone. She is always alone. She doesn't even have a girl friend. How can we prove she is lying? —HATES LIARS

DEAR HATES: It's easier to hate than to understand. The girl is lonely. And she's ashamed that she has neither girl friends nor a boy friend. Be kind to her. She needs it.

Cadets Plan, Prepare For Annual Assembly

The Air Force Academy Assembly will last three days—April 3-6 — but preparation for the event stretches over more than two months.

When Secretary of State Dean Rusk opens the assembly the evening of April 3 with his keynote address, it will mark the successful completion of the efforts of a small army of Academy cadets.

Committee chairmen handle the myriad details involved in providing housing, meals, and transportation for the 108 delegates and their sponsors in addition to planning and running the assembly itself.

Under Cadet First Class Kent E. Harbaugh, the delegate preparation committee provides information on the assembly topic "The Secretary of State," to the 12 cadets representing the Academy. Seminars, discussion groups, and lectures are used to give delegates needed information.

The secretariat committee, Cadet First Class James Olson, chairman, must coordinate and disseminate all information sent to delegates prior to the assembly, received back from them, and distributed to delegates when they arrive at the Academy. Cadet Olson and his staff must also maintain the cadet staff files and publish a daily bulletin during the assembly.

Housing committee chairman Cadet First Class Marvin Odefey and his crew handle all arrangement for billeting delegates during their three-day stay. They set up quarters in the Prep School and Visiting Officers Quarters, assist delegates in finding their quarters, and make arrangements for the closing parties at the Officers Club and Antlers Hotel.

News coverage, including Colorado papers and the hometown newspapers of each delegate, plus the preparation of a pre-conference booklet and the final assembly report, is the responsibility of Cadet First Class Barry M. Meuse and his committee.

"Care, feeding, and transporting" delegates are the concern of the escorting committee, Cadet First Class Albert Anderer, chairman; the messing committee, Cadet First Class Robert M. Foley, chairman, and transportation committee, Cadet First Class Joe H. Wilson, chairman.

Individual escorts are provided for each assembly delegate. Collegians taking part in the sessions will sample the best of Academy "chow" at Mitchell Hall, cadet dining room, the Airman's Dining Hall, and the Officers Club.

The dozens of small details which must mesh to make the assembly a success are the concern of Cadet First Class Henry T. Horton and his facilities committee. For each of the five plenary sessions and the roundtables, microphones must be provided as well as janitors, ushers, troubleshooters and needed visual aids. Floor and seating plans must be planned and prepared in advance.

On April 3, all the work of the individual committees must be completed and molded into a single object, the assembly.

LIBYA LOOKS UP

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI)—Libya which for centuries has been one of the world's poorest lands, now is having to adjust to relative prosperity. Oil, discovered on Libya's torrid desert in 1959, is expected to yield $500 million in royalties and taxes in the next five years. The North African kingdom is seeking to devise means of using the money wisely, according to the National Geographic Society.

Adequate Trial Record Must Be Provided

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled 5-4 Monday that defendants in criminal cases who are without funds must be provided without cost an adequate trial record for an appeal.

The court did not say that in all cases defendants must be provided with a full transcript of what occurred at their trial. It said there are alternative methods for providing an adequate record.

The decision was delivered by Justice Goldberg. Justice White wrote a dissenting opionion joined by Justices Clark, Harlan and Stewart.

The ruling cleared the way for appeals to the Washington State Supreme Court by Robert Draper and Raymond Lorentzen, convicted on robbery charges in Spokane in 1960 and now serving 40-year sentences in the state penitentiary.

They sought to appeal to the Washington State Supreme Court, but under the state rule paupers are permitted to have free transcript of trial proceedings only if the trial judge finds claims of error are not frivolous.

The trial judge in the case of Draper and Lorentzen said evidence of their guilt was overwhelming and ruled that their request for a free transcript for an appeal was frivolous. His ruling later was upheld by the State Supreme Court.

GOVERNOR OPENS CAMPAIGN — Gov. John Love opened the 1963 Easter Seal Campaign as he was presented with Colorado's first set of seals. Making the presentation were Calvin W. Kunz Jr., Easter Seal chairman, Tonnie and Donnie Cooper, Easter Seal twins, and their mother Mrs. Clarence Cooper. The twins live in Coal Creek, are five years old, and are determined to become firemen. They receive treatment at the El Paso County Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center here, with the Fremont County Easter Seal Society and the Crippled Childrens Section sharing in the expense. The campaign began March 7 and closes April 14.

1,200 Guardsmen Are 'Troops' In Costa Rica

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—Costa Ricans, hosts this week to the meeting of President Kennedy with the presidents of Central American countries and Panama, are especially proud of two things:

1. This is a country where the constitution has abolished the army, instead of the usual reverse pattern. The 1,200 members of the Civil Guard are the nation's only armed force. They perform police duties.

2. Costa Rica has more schools than soldiers. Illiteracy is 20 per cent, compared to an average of about 60 per cent in the rest of Central America.

In 1917 President Alfredo Gnozalez Flores—a man obviously far ahead of the Alliance for Progress —became unpopular by instituting a graduated income tax and trying to raise real estate taxes. His minister of war, Federico Tinoco, took over the presidency, but popular pressure mounted against Tinoco and he was thrown out of the country in 1919. (Costa Rica later got income taxes).

The next violent change occurred in the elections of 1948 when Teodoro Picado was president. Otilio Ulate defeated Rafael Calderon Guardia but Picado's pro-Calderon regime tried to have the National Assembly annul the elections.

Since then Costa Rican elections have been acclaimed for fairness and freedom. Opposition parties have won every election since 1948.

The current president is Francisco Orlich.

On the east is the Caribbean Sea and on the west the Pacific Ocean. To the north is Nicaragua, to the south Panama.

Temperatures range from hot in the banana-growing coastal areas to cold on volcanic mountain peaks, up to 12,000 feet.

Most of the people live on the 35-mile-wide central plateau which is ringed by mountains covered with coffee plantations.

San Jose, the capital, a city of 175,000, is on the plateau at 3,800 feet. The temperature averages 72.

The nation's population is around 90 per cent Caucasian. Most of the Indians died or were transferred under early Spanish rule.

About 5 per cent of the population are Negroes who live mainly in coastal areas. They were brought from the West Indies to work on banana plantations and build railroads.

Singmaster on Leave From U.S. Navy Duty

BLAMES LANDLADY

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (UPI)—Ed Farrell, 23, blamed his landlady today when sheriff's deputies asked him about the bodies of a 90-pound lion cub and two large rattlesnakes they found in a quarry.

"I shot them because my landlady was complaining about my having them in my apartment," he said.

Drug-Induced Confessions Ruled Out

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has unanimously ruled out the use of any "drug-induced" confessions in criminal trials.

While the court agreed unanimously on the drug question, it divided 5-4 on standards under which federal judges must grant habeas corpus hearings growing out of state court convictions.

Stewart's opinion explained he was in complete agreement that a confession induced by use of drugs "is constitutionally inadmissable in a criminal trial."

Federal tribunals in Chicago had rejected a habeas corpus petition by Townsend which contended that a purported confession to robbery-slaying of Boone was obtained by use of a "truth serum."

Warren said in his opinion that, where an "applicant for a writ of habeas corpus alleges facts which if proved would entitle him to release, the federal court to which the application is made has the power to receive evidence and try the facts anew."

Forty million Americans sleep on mattresses more than 16 years old, says the Latex Foam Rubber Council.

Two Boulder Officials Plead 'Not Guilty'

BOULDER (UPI)—Two of four Boulder County officials indicted by a special grand jury March 8 pleaded innocent in Boulder District Court Monday and the other two were granted postponements of their arraignments.

Pleading not guilty were Robert Mendelko, county road foreman, and L.C. Austin, a county commissioner. James W. Graham Jr., former officer manager of the Boulder County garage, and W.D. McCaslin, a county commissioner had their arraignment dates put off.

Graham and McCaslin were ordered to appear in county April 1 to be arraigned. Mendelko's trail was set for Aug. 7, and Austin's for June 3.

Austin is charged with two counts of embezzlement of public propety, two counts of malfeasance in office, and one count of perjury. Graham is charged with two counts of embezzling public property, and Mendelko is charged with four counts of embezzling public property.

Plenty of Bachelors Found in Hong Kong

HONG KONG (AP) — There are not enough marriageable women to go around for Hong Kong's bachelors.

In the most popular marrying age there are 50,000 more men than women, government statistics show.

The most popular marrying age for men is between 26 and 30. There are 141,000 in this age group.

The most popular age for brides is between 20 and 25. There are only 90,000 women in this age group.

AFTERMATH

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — An estimated 6 million unexploded bombs, shells and bobby-traps remain in the Libyan desert where the armies of Montgomery and Rommel dueled during World War II. Oil companies, seeking to exploit newly discovered oil in the "sandbox" nation, have armor-plated their trucks because of the undetonated munitions.

Adequate Trial Record Must Be Provided

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled 5-4 Monday that defendants in criminal cases who are without funds must be provided without cost an adequate trial record for an appeal.

The court did not say that in all cases defendants must be provided with a full transcript of what occurred at their trial. It said there are alternative methods for providing an adequate record.

The decision was delivered by Justice Goldberg. Justice White wrote a dissenting opinion joined by Justices Clark, Harlan and Stewart.

The ruling cleared the way for appeals to the Washington State Supreme Court by Robert Draper and Raymond Lorentzen, convicted on robbery charges in Spokane in 1960 and now serving 40-year sentences in the state penitentiary.

They sought to appeal to the Washington State Supreme Court, but under the state rule paupers are permitted to have free transcript of trial proceedings only if the trial judge finds claims of error are not frivolous.

The trial judge in the case of Draper and Lorentzen said evidence of their guilt was overwhelming and ruled that their request for a free transcript for an appeal was frivolous. His ruling later was upheld by the State Supreme Court.

GOVERNOR OPENS CAMPAIGN — Gov. John Love opened the 1963 Easter Seal Campaign as he was presented with Colorado's first set of seals. Making the presentation were Calvin W. Kunz Jr., Easter Seal chairman, Tommie and Donnie Cooper, Easter Seal twins, and their mother Mrs. Clarence Cooper. The twins live in Coal Creek, are five years old, and are determined to become firemen. They receive treatment at the El Paso County Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center here, with the Fremont County Easter Seal Society and the Crippled Childrens Section sharing in the expense. The campaign began March 7 and closes April 14.

Two Boulder Officials Plead 'Not Guilty'

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—Costa Ricans, hosts this week to the meeting of President Kennedy with the presidents of Central American countries and Panama, are especially proud of two things.

1. This is a country where the constitution has abolished the army, instead of the usual reverse pattern. The 1,200 members of the Civil Guard are the nation's only armed force. They perform police duties.

2. Costa Rica has more schools than soldiers. Illiteracy is 20 per cent, compared to an average of about 60 per cent in the rest of Central America.

This dual effort of raising education and reducing militarism has paid off by giving Costa Rica a tradition of democracy.

In this century there have been only two changes of government by force.

In 1917 President Alfredo Gonzalez Flores—a man obviously far ahead of the Alliance for Progress—became unpopular by instituting a graduated income tax and trying to raise real estate taxes. His minister of war, Federico Tinoco, took over the presidency, but popular pressure mounted against Tinoco and he was thrown out of the country in 1919. (Costa Rica later got income taxes.)

The next violent change occurred in the elections of 1948 when Teodoro Picado was president. Otilio Ulate defeated Rafael Calderon Guardia but Picado's pro-Calderon regime tried to have the National Assembly annul the elections.

Figueres took over the government as head of a junta but turned the presidency over to Ulate in 1949.

Since then Costa Rican elections have been acclaimed for fairness and freedom. Opposition parties have won every election since 1948.

The current president is Francisco Orlich.

The population, now 1¼ million, is growing over 4 per cent annually, one of the highest rates in the world.

On the east is the Caribbean Sea and on the west the Pacific Ocean. To the north is Nicaragua, to the south Panama.

Temperatures range from hot in the banana-growing coastal areas to cold on volcanic mountain peaks, up to 12,000 feet.

Most of the people live on the 35-mile-wide central plateau which is ringed by mountains covered with coffee plantations.

San Jose, the capital, a city of 175,000, is on the plateau at 3,800 feet. The temperature averages 72.

The nation's population is around 90 per cent Caucasian. Most of the Indians died or were transferred under early Spanish rule.

About 5 per cent of the population are Negroes who live mainly in coastal areas. They were brought from the West Indies to work on banana plantations and build railroads.

BLAMES LANDLADY

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (UPI)—Ed Farrell, 23, blamed his landlady today when sheriff's deputies asked him about the bodies of a 90-pound lion cub and two large rattlesnakes they found in a quarry.

"I shot them because my landlady was complaining about my having them in my apartment," he said.

Drug-Induced Confessions Ruled Out

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has unanimously ruled out the use of any "drug-induced" confessions in criminal trials.

While the court agreed unanimously on the drug question, it divided 5-4 on standards under which federal judges must grant habeas corpus hearings growing out of state court convictions.

Stewart's opinion explained he was in complete agreement that a confession induced by use of drugs "is constitutionally inadmissable in a criminal trial."

The court ruled on an appeal by Charles Townsend, who was sentenced to execution for the 1953 slaying of Jack Boone Sr. in Chicago.

Federal tribunals in Chicago had rejected a habeas corpus petition by Townsend which contended that a purported confession to robbery-slaying of Boone was obtained by use of a "truth serum."

Warren said in his opinion that, where an "applicant for a writ of habeas corpus alleges facts which if proved would entitle him to release, the federal court to which the application is made has the power to receive evidence and try the facts anew."

Forty million Americans sleep on mattresses more than 16 years old, says the Latex Foam Rubber Council.
